

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring,

At Dist. 25 meeting

Parents favorable to 6th grade move

A majority of the more than 100 residents who met with Arlington Heights Dist. 25 officials Wednesday, said they favor a consultant's suggestion that sixth graders be transferred from junior high to elementary schools.

The residents attended the first of a series of public hearings conducted by Dist. 25 to get a sampling of public opinion on the district's declining enrollment quandary.

The district is expected to lose 31 per cent of its students by 1984 which could mean a $3.9 million financial deficit because of the resulting drop in state aid.

LAST MONTH a consultant hired by the district released a 150-page study of the district's enrollment problem. A number of alternatives was suggested, but the consultant recommended that the district close four schools, raise taxes and increase class size.

"It is no longer a matter of whether we have to take action but rather choosing between alternate courses of action," board member Donald Gibbins told residents gathered Wednesday in the first of eight scheduled public meetings at Dryden School, 1722 S. Dryden. A second meeting is scheduled tonight at 7:30 at Rand Junior High, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

The plan recommended by the consultant suggests that Thomas and South Junior high schools be closed in 1977, that North School close in 1980 and Kensington School in 1981 or 1982. Sixth graders would then attend elementary schools.

Why close junior highs?, asked parent Louise Baker. Gibbins said by closing a couple of junior highs and moving sixth graders, the district may be able to avoid closing several elementary schools because enrollment is greater in junior highs and the buildings are more costly to operate. One of the advantages of closing South is that it is an old school and costly to maintain, he said.

ON A SHOW of hands the vast majority of parents indicated that they would prefer to move sixth grade to elementary schools.

Parent Susan Fuller said she favored moving sixth graders because it may help to keep more schools open. It's important "that Arlington Heights as a whole keeps a nice distribution of schools in the community," she said. If schools in older sections of town are closed while those in newer sections remain open, she said, "factions in the community" may occur. Keeping schools in the neighborhoods should be a primary goal, she said.

Several parents asked whether the community would be involved in decisions to close schools. "Will the board (Continued on Page 5)

9% rate hike for trash pickup urged by panel

A 9.8 per cent increase in the cost of residential garbage pickup was recommended by the Arlington Heights Village Board's finance committee Wednesday night.

Under the proposal, the monthly garbage bill will go from the present $5.39 to $5.92 effective Jan. 1.

The Laseke Disposal Co., which has an exclusive contract to all refuse collection business in the village, had asked to raise the rate to $6. The finance committee, however, disallowed some of the company's claims to higher fuel costs as a basis for further increase.

LASEKE DISPOSAL is guaranteed an annual 5 per cent raise according to its contract with the village. It also can request additional raises based upon documentation of extraordinary increases in its business costs.

A 30 per cent increase in the cost of dumping charges, higher social security payments for employees and inflated gasoline prices are the basis for the proposed 9.8 per cent increase.

The only objection to the higher rates voiced Wednesday night came from former Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour who asked, "When is a contract a contract?"

"THE 5 PER CENT was intended to take care of everything other than unusual increases in dumping costs," he said, adding that he had no complaints about the quality of Laseke's service.

Frank Palmatier, finance committee chairman, defended the controversial 5 per cent annual escalation, saying that without such a built-in inflation factor the village would not have obtained a reasonable starting rate when it rebid the garbage contract two years ago.

"If we had insisted on a hard and fast price (for the life of the contract) it would have been much higher initially because the contractor would have had to hedge against future inflation," he said.

THE PROPOSED 1976 rate schedule calls for a commercial rate of $4.06 per cubic yard, up from the present $3.82. The roll-off rate would be $3.45 per cubic yard. Schools would be charged $2.55 per cubic yard.

The only disagreement between Laseke officials and Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, whose staff double checked Laseke's accounts, centered on the amount of compensation for higher gas prices.

The finance committee resolved the difference by subtracting added revenue from the 5 per cent increase from the total needed to make up for higher gasoline prices.

The village board, which has final authority to set the 1976 rate, is scheduled to consider the committee's recommendation Dec. 18.

Civilians to replace policemen

The Arlington Heights Police Dept. has begun a program to replace uniformed patrolmen with civilians who will answer questions at the police department's front desk.

The program is designed to return several patrolmen to the streets.

The employees are being hired under a $40,000 federal grant. The grant, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, will provide enough funds for five employees until Sept. 30, 1976. Three have been hired.

Gregory Ford, village personnel director, said the hiring of civilians will allow more efficient use of police personnel by placing them on the streets.

Ford said the national trend is to place the civilians at police desks to handle routine service requests and informational services.

"A LOT OF departments are doing away with the old desk sergeant business of a policeman at a high desk with two globe lights," he said.

The desk personnel will handle inquiries about where to pay parking tickets, court dates, lost pets and overnight parking requests. They will also type police reports and be responsible for some custodial work with property and evidence, he said.

"Many of the calls are about things like where you pay for a parking ticket. You don't have to be a policeman to handle that," he said.

The civilians will not have police authority or powers, although they will be responsible for maintaining evidence or prisoners' personal property. They will not act as jailers for the village lockup, he said.

THE BELIEF by some older policemen that the public expects and wants to see a uniform at the front desk is not being borne out, Ford said.

Police Capt. Maurice English concurred. Both Ford and English said that the civilians (all women) are being well received by the public.

Under terms of the grant, persons hired must be residents of the village who have been unemployed for at least 30 days. Preference is being given to heads of households, Viet Nam (Continued on Page 5)

Police probe accidental shooting

Arlington Heights police are investigating an accidental shooting incident in which a patrolman and a male friend were wounded Tuesday night at the Robin Hood restaurant in the Northpoint Shopping Center.

Police said Patrolman Ronald McCaskey and James Pittzaferro, 40, Des Plaines, were shot when McCaskey's gun discharged while they were examining the weapon.

McCaskey, who was off duty, was shot in the hand, and Pittzaferro was wounded in the foot, police reported.

They and another friend were talking about weapons, and McCaskey handed his gun to Pittzaferro for examination, police said.

After he looked at the gun, Pittzaferro gave the gun back to McCaskey when it discharged, police said. Only one of the two men was admitted to the hospital. Police reported the wounds were not serious.

Police are investigating the incident to see if departmental charges should be placed against McCaskey. Police would not release McCaskey's age.

Communists rule Laos, Indochina conquest complete

Savang Vatthana

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The Communists completed their conquest of Indochina Wednesday when the Pathet Lao seized complete power in Laos, forced the abdication of King Savang Vatthana and abolished the 18-month-old coalition government of neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

The action ending the 600-year-old monarchy in the Buddhist kingdom known as the Land of One Million Elephants brought all of Indochina—Laos, North and South Vietnam and Cambodia — under Communist domination.

An official Radio Vientiane broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, announced the Neo Lao Hak Sat People's Central Committee had accepted the abdication of the 68-year-old king, fired Souvanna and is appointing a new government to be known as "The People's Democratic Republic of Laos."

The whereabouts of the king and Souvanna, 74, were not disclosed. But in recent weeks Souvanna has been in the royal capital of Luang Prabang with the king.

The Communist takeover was not unexpected. Rumors here and in Vientiane had said the king was being forced to abdicate. Several members of the royal family and of former neutralist and rightist leaders already had fled to Thailand.

Cambodia was the first of the Indochinese states to fall to Communist forces, when the Khmer Rouge captured Phnom Penh last April 17.

On April 30, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong captured Saigon, the capital of South Vietnam.

Following the fall of the two neighbor states, Souvanna Phouma negotiated an agreement ending the years-long civil war and giving the Pathet Lao a foothold in the Vientiane government.

The Pathet Lao steadily expanded its control over the country of 3 million population during the summer months. There were anti-American demonstrations and the United States was finally forced to close down its aid program and evacuate all personnel.

The news of the Communist takeover came in a four-minute broadcast. It said: "The representatives of the entire people of Laos accepted the abdication of King Savang Vatthana of Laos. By accepting the notes on dissolution of the temporary coalition government we unanimously agreed that we will abolish the monarchy and replace it with the People's Democratic Republic of Laos..."

Stock market prices take worst plunge in six months

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices took their worst plunge in six months Wednesday in the stock market's third straight setback on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was heavy as the blue-chip Dow Jones industrial average plunged 17.71 points to 825.49, bringing its three-day loss to 35.18 points. It was the worst loss since a 20.88-point setback on May 6. The Dow finished at its lowest level since it closed at 824.54 on Oct. 9.

Volume climbed to 21,320,000 shares in the selloff, up sharply from the 17,930,000 traded Tuesday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran four minutes late in the first half hour.

The loss was as broad as it was steep. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 1.73 to 87.60 and the average price of an NYSE common share fell 61 cents. Declines routed advances, 1,414 to 172, among the 1,998 issues crossing the tape.

One factor in the setback was a report in the Wall Street Journal that two major advisory services presented a gloomy near-and intermediate-term outlook for the market because of the gloomy economic outlook and recommended selling.

The New York City financial crisis aside, Wall Street fears about the economic slowdown heightened following two consecutive declines in the Commerce Department's index of leading economic indicators. First National City Bank economists said the economy won't show significant growth until late spring.

The Commerce Department reported factory orders rose 1 per cent in October, but manufacturers' inventories declined for the eighth consecutive month. Many analysts were disturbed inventories have not increased.

The market's selloff affected virtually every group on the Big Board. The hardest hit groups were the most volatile — oils, chemicals, drugs, electronics and computers.

BETTY FORD obviously enjoyed herself Wednesday in Peking as she kicked off her shoes and joined a ballet class. The President, meantime, joined Premier Ten Hsiao-ping in pronouncing his visit a success toward stronger relationships between nations. The two then began final talks.

House vote brightens tax cut bill chances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House narrowly rejected Wednesday a Republican move to vote on President Ford's $395 billion spending ceiling and moved ahead with debate on a massive tax revision bill.

The 219-197 vote not to open the bill to additional amendments — including the spending ceiling — brightens the prospects of passage of the tax bill in time to prevent tax withholding rates from rising on New Year's Day when 1975's recession-fighting tax cuts expire.

But it also raises the prospect of a presidential veto and perhaps a post-Christmas, special session of Congress because Ford has said repeatedly he would veto any tax bill that did not contain his ceiling on fiscal 1977 spending.

Votes are scheduled Thursday on seven specific amendments allowed by the House Rules Committee, five of them liberal reform amendments.

Capone aide killed gangland style

by United Press International

The body of Ned C. Bakes, an insider of the Al Capone gang which ruled Chicago's underworld more than 40 years ago, was found Wednesday shot and stuffed in gangland fashion in the trunk of his car.

Bakes, 70, had been shot in the head. He had not been seen since Saturday when he left his home in suburban Addison to buy a birthday cake for a family party.

The car was discovered in an unincorporated section of Addison Township by Bakes' daughter, who phoned police and said she had a "premonition" her father's car was somewhere in the area.

Police speculated, however, that the killers called the family to tip them off on the car's location.

Addison Detective Angelo Deneffrio said the daughter had gone to the store where Bakes planned to buy the cake and felt his car was somewhere in the area.

"Then she was scouting around in the area and found a car that fit the total description of her father's car," Deneffrio said. "She went home and called me. Then we went down there."

"The trunk was opened. The body of a man matching Bakes' description was found lying face down in the trunk with a bullet hole in the top of his head."

Sgt. Anthony Heying of the DuPage county sheriff's office said, "It's kind of obvious to all of us that they wanted everybody to know what happened to him and why..."

Bakes had been well known to police as a suspected member of the Chicago crime "outfit" ever since the days of "Scarface Al" Capone and his mob in the roaring 20s and early 30s.

In those days, he was regarded as a member of the Capone inner circle. He reputedly served as messenger boy to one of Capone's chief lieutenants and the eventual successor to his crime empire, Paul "The Walzer" Ricca.

Bakes, police have said, was the man who delivered the orders from Ricca and other top members of the "outfit" to lower grade hoodlums. GRADE HOODLUMS.

In the 1940s, after Ricca inherited the mantle of the dead Capone, Bakes was identified as the "mystery man" who delivered hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes owed by Ricca and other reputed crime syndicate figures, who were in prison at the time on charges of extortion in an attempted takeover of the movie industry in Chicago.

Four bombs explode in Miami, no injuries

Four small, crudely-made bombs exploded at federal buildings — including the FBI offices — in Miami Wednesday night and four others were found unexploded. No injuries were reported in any of the explosions, which occurred over a period of about an hour and a half. The bombs exploded at the FBI building on Biscayne Boulevard; at post office buildings at West Flagler St. and 23rd Ave. and at Southwest 8th St. and 68th Ave., and at the Social Security building at Northwest 36th St. and 14th Ave.

November auto sales up 35 per cent

November sales of U.S.-built cars surged 35 per cent over depressed year-ago levels and pushed imports to their lowest share of the American market in four years, reports from the automakers showed Wednesday. Both domestic and import sales, however, were below what analysts had predicted for the industry. Detroit auto companies sold 654,079 cars in November, slightly lower than analysts had predicted, compared with 505,511 a year ago when sales were heading down and layoffs were increasing.

Tet offensive downgrading denied

The outgoing civilian and military intelligence directors denied Wednesday there was a conspiracy to downgrade Communist troop strength in Vietnam prior to the 1968 Tet offensive. CIA Director William E. Colby told the House intelligence committee that the CIA insisted at the time the Viet Cong had 500,000 or more men, compared to a military estimate of 292,000. Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham testified U. S. military leaders were not surprised by the intensity of the Tet attack which killed 2,200 Americans and destroyed 58 aircraft.

Senate panel hears Katzenbach

Hoover had vendetta against King

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach testified Wednesday that J. Edgar Hoover risked the reputation of the FBI — "his life's work" — in a vendetta against Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Katzenbach told the Senate intelligence committee that when he was attorney general during 1965-66 he knew of telephone wiretaps against King by the FBI and once ordered a tap on King's home phone ended.

But he said he learned later the FBI put electronic "bugs" in King's hotel room without authorization and used other "unlawful and grossly improper" tactics against King.

The committee, investigating FBI harassment of King which allegedly continued for seven years until King was assassinated April 4, 1968, also was told Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy authorized telephone taps against King after Hoover insisted King was under Communist influence.

When questioned about three memos to him written by Hoover in 1965, giving what Katzenbach called "after-the-fact" notification of bugs in King's hotel room, he said the memos contained initials "that appear to be mine" — but he said he could not recall the memos, and said he did not think he initiated them.

There was no explanation as to who else might have initiated the memos.

Katzenbach said Hoover held "conservative views" and as he "grew older and the country changed — for the worse, in his view — the intensity of those feelings and the frustrations at what was taking place grew."

King criticized Hoover and the FBI, Katzenbach said, and Hoover's "capitulation to personal pique stemming from public criticism of the FBI was particularly reprehensible and clearly contrary to the interests of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, constitutional government and the nation."

He drew a picture of Hoover: "National hero... historical accident... served too long... overwhelming political power and political autonomy."

But he said: "I would not have expected him to risk the bureau's reputation — his life's work — by resorting to unlawful or improper tactics."

"His vendetta against Dr. King, if successful, could have led to a civil strife of frightening magnitude."

Also testifying was Ramsey Clark who gave no specifics about what he may have known when he was attorney general in 1967-69, but said the FBI was trying "to destroy the desperately needed moral leadership of Martin Luther King."

William Rogers, attorney general in 1957-61, was to have testified Wednesday, but his appearance was postponed until Monday.

U.N. slates meeting on Israeli air raids

by United Press International

The U.N. Security Council, in two private sessions, failed to agree Wednesday night on an Arab demand for the Palestine Liberation Organization's participation, but scheduled an open meeting for Thursday to take up Israel's air raids against refugee camps in Lebanon.

The first order of business at Thursday's 4 p.m. session will be consideration of a resolution sponsored by Iraq to permit the PLO to take part in the debate without a vote, diplomats said.

The Israeli cabinet served notice that it would not deal with the PLO and Ambassador Chaim Herzog of Israel was expected to boycott the meeting.

Egypt demanded that the Palestine Liberation Organization take part in the meeting. At the same time, however, Israel reaffirmed its refusal to talk with the Palestinian "terrorist organizations" in any forum.

A Palestinian spokesman in Beirut said the raids by some 30 Israeli planes Tuesday killed 74 persons — 53 of them women and children — and injured another 180.

In the Vatican, Pope Paul VI called the Israeli raids an "inadmissible act of violence." Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami said the "brutal raids gave a clear picture of the conduct of Israel which is based on racism, aggression and expansion."

Air raid sirens sounded across Lebanon Wednesday when more Israeli warplanes streaked across the border. The aircraft flew around Palestinian refugee camps in Nabatieh in the south and Tripoli in the north — the targets of Tuesday's raids.

But the planes apparently only took pictures of the damage and made no attempt to attack again.

Israel had said the raids were aimed at guerrilla bases and training camps.

An Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said, "Israel will not conduct negotiations with the terrorist organizations in any forum and will not participate in the Geneva conference if a representative of these organizations is invited."

Israel already has announced it would boycott talks in the Security Council in January if the PLO accepts an invitation to attend.

Jerusalem government sources said Israel would ask the United States to avoid any contact with or recognition of the PLO and to oppose inviting the Palestinians to any talks that included Israel.

Parents-NSSEO meeting brings no real answer

An information session for parents of children in Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization programs soothed hard feelings Wednesday night but many parents believed officials were skirting major issues.

About 20 parents and 40 NSSEO teachers attended an information night presented by the NSSEO governing board.

In a letter to parents, the board said the meeting was to be a discussion session on teacher salaries and working conditions, but instead the NSSEO administration presented a 45-minute program describing how the organization's special education schools are operated.

MANY PARENTS called the information program a waste of time but were pleased when a question and answer period started at 9:30 p.m., an hour and a half after the meeting opened.

"We don't have any gripes about how the schools are run," Charlotte Stevens, a Mount Prospect parent, said. "We don't want to lose our excellent teachers because they are dissatisfied with their salaries."

NSSEO director Edward MacDonald said the information program was a result of some questions phoned in by parents concerning the financial relationship of Kirk Center, Palatine, to NSSEO.

"The board sent us a sheet comparing our teachers' salaries to salaries of other special education groups," said Cele Spivak, Mount Prospect.

"But we aren't concerned about those groups; what we know is that other teachers in the surrounding school districts where we live are paid more than our teachers."

THE BOARD'S letter to parents stated the NSSEO teachers' school day is shorter than that of teachers in other districts. In the question and answer session parents said that many NSSEO teachers spend their lunch hour with their children.

MacDonald said that when he came to NSSEO in July the NSSEO teachers were the lowest paid in the area, and now they are higher paid than two area districts.

"This is progress at least," he said. "I believe salaries are a subject for negotiations not a question for the administration."

The information night was a result of a stormy Nov. 5 board meeting attended by about 150 parents and teachers supporting the NSSEO teachers' right to unionize.

THE NSSEO TEACHERS formed a union last spring, but a breakdown in communication between the board and teachers delayed recognition of the union as sole bargaining agent for the teachers.

Monday the teachers held a formal vote in which all the teachers voted to join a union affiliate of the statewide Illinois Education Assn.

At the Nov. 5 meeting, the board passed a resolution to recognize the union once teachers had formally voted to join it.

Wednesday, however, when MacDonald asked the board to formally recognize the union, the board decided to delay recognition until its lawyer could draw up a specific form for recognition.

UNION PRESIDENT Tom Schwartz said he was disappointed that the board did not vote on recognition at the meeting. He said he wants to avoid any more confrontations between the board and the union.

At the board meeting held before the information session, parents asked the board to consider airconditioning Kirk Center.

Armilda Lapinski, president of the NSSEO parents' organization said that Kirk Center was built for air conditioning, but it has not yet been installed.

"Windows at Kirk Center do not open for proper ventilation and some children, particularly those with respiratory and heart conditions, suffer from the heat during the warm months," she said.

The board agreed to study the problem and consider it at the next meeting.

NSSEO operates special education programs for 10 Northwest suburban elementary and high school districts.

Talks tonight on juvenile branch

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep. Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 8 p.m. dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a new $1.5 million police and courts building under construction on

Virginia Macdonald

Schaumburg Road.

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased vandalism in the village.

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocaris, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocaris said Wednesday he feels it "premature" to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time, but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles juvenile court branch," Geocaris said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington. Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep. Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 22 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

"There is talk of urgent need for this facility and I believe if these communities take the initiative and responsibility, and we can express our local need, then we can make an acceptable package to present to Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle," Rep. Macdonald said.

Administrative shuffle OK'd by Dist. 59 board

A major shakeup of top level administrators in Elk Grove Dist. 59 sets up an administration that will promote the new superintendent's goal of giving local principals more authority.

The school board this week approved the management shuffle that sets up two associate superintendent positions. Alvah Stone, former assistant superintendent for noncertified personnel, and Robert Brower, former Friendship Junior High School principal, were named to the new positions. They will work directly with Supt. Roger Bardwell to make decisions affecting the schools and to advise principals during the decentralization process.

Brower also served as assistant superintendent for instruction when Bardwell was superintendent in the district from 1950 to 1966.

THE MOVE SETS up an administration that will work toward Bardwell's goal of giving local schools and principals autonomy for implementing district goals and programs with guidance from the central office, school officials said. Bardwell's philosophy contrasts with former Supt. James Erviti who believed in strong, centralized control over the schools by the central office administrators.

Bardwell was hired as superintendent in January after the forced resignation of Erviti.

The first management change came in June when the board demoted Erwin Stevenson, former assistant superintendent for instruction, to a fifth grade teaching post. He was not replaced.

OTHER ADMINISTRATORS affected by the reorganization include:

• Arthur Perry, former assistant superintendent for administrative services, will now be in charge of long-term financial planning and the district budget. He drops the responsibility for overseeing business services, accounting, transportation and buildings and grounds.

• Alan Lawson will become the director of accounting, purchasing, buildings and grounds and transportation.

• Merlyn Swanson, former district psychologist, will be the director of education and oversee personnel, curriculum, special education and staff development. Merle Nevenhoven, former director of pupil personnel, will work for Swanson as director of special education.

• Albeon Waltman, former assistant superintendent for certified personnel, will be in charge of special projects in the district.

• Philip Zarob, former associate principal at Friendship, will replace Brower as the school's principal.

The changes take effect immediately.

Parents favor 6th grade move at Dist. 25 meet

(Continued from Page 1) make the decision or will it force it down our throats?" asked parent George Allen. Gibbins said the purpose of the public meetings is to get the community involved.

Parent Skip Kenney asked Gibbins if the board will put alternative plans to the voters in a referendum or if it plans to make the decision itself.

"THE COMMUNITY will not put up too long with a board that is not representative of the community or at least not listening to the community," Gibbins replied.

Gibbins said the board is studying the consultant's report and soliciting community response to the report before it comes up with its own alternatives for remedying the enrollment problem. The administration will make detailed studies of those alternatives and the board will probably select a course of action next spring.

The board's aim is to select a plan with the "greatest cost saving, with a minimum effect on programs, minimum effect on class size and educational quality," Gibbins said.

Dunton School parent Anne Frost asked what the district would do with schools it closes. Gibbins said he personally feels they should be turned over to a public agency on a long term lease basis so they could be reopened if enrollment picks up in the future. "I doubt that we would ever sell all the schools," he said.

A FEW PARENTS asked about the district's financial condition. Kenney asked if taxes would go down as enrollment declines. Gibbins said that even with the drop in students, expenses would still increase slightly as costs go up with inflation.

Parent Patty Smith asked if the district could get more state aid. Residents should make their legislators aware of the problem, Gibbins said, and seek a change in the state's formula for funding schools. The state now has a ceiling on the amount a district can spend per student.

'Sunny Side of Life' opens at Meadows

Songs, dances and comedy skits highlight this year's variety show at Rolling Meadows High School.

"Stay on the Sunny Side of Life" will be presented by students at 7:30 p.m. today and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the school.

Tickets are $2, $1.75 and $1.50 depending on seat location. Tickets will be sold in advance and at the door.

The production staff this year is Isla McGlashan, director; Eileen Hand, student director; Dominica Trevor, assistant director; Mike Pagels and Gary McRann, technical directors; Joe Nykiel, choral director; Patty Palmatier, assistant choral director; Doug Harry, band director; Karen McRann, publicity; and Kathy Hand and Sharon Duffy, choreographers.

Village complaining over This & That

The Village of Arlington Heights' complaint over This & That go-go lounge, 1607 N. Rand Rd., has been referred to the Cook County Sheriff's Police.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel sent a letter to George W. Dunne, Cook County liquor commissioner, protesting the striptease entertainment at This & That, located in unincorporated Cook County.

Siegel said Tuesday he received a letter from Dunne's office saying that the matter has been referred to the county sheriff for further investigation.

Ford said applicants should have some experience in dealing with the public and be able to type approximately 40 words per minute. The program pays $3.40 per hour as well as all village benefits.

WHEN THE CURRENT grant expires, the village will have to decide whether to fund the program itself, Ford said.

Both the village and park district have hired persons under previous CETA grants. Ford said they have worked out well and have been moved into regular positions.

Persons interested in applying for the position should contact Ford at the village municipal building, 253-2340.

Schools

St. Raymond's School

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

The London Junior High School versus Holmes Junior High School girls' basketball game scheduled Friday at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will be played at 4 p.m.

Two students from Cooper Junior High School, Kathy Dulski and Dawn Lensler, attended the Buffalo Grove Board of Trustees meeting last month as representatives of the student council. The students reported their reaction to seeing the village government in action to the constitution classes at Cooper.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The corridor walls at Orchard Place School are telling the story of America's history in pictures, cutouts and 3-D reliefs. The students call the project "Centennial Time Line" and invite the community to view their project. The school is at 2727 Maple Ave., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 211

The Bicentennial Committee of Conant High School will sponsor a freedom fair, "Reflections of the Past: Images of the Future," in March.

It is intended that the fair be a community project. Any group or individual desiring to exhibit crafts, hobbies, homemaking skills, antiques or collections that relate to American history are invited to participate.

Information may be obtained by writing to: Conant High School, Bicentennial Committee, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172. Phone calls should be directed to Ron Szymanski, 885-4366 ext. 75.

Maine Twp. photographer escapes Beirut terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return. "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

Mike Schiff

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Sidon, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Village board wrapup

Library vote gains backing of trustees

A Feb. 28 referendum on a $2.25 million bond issue to expand the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave., has been endorsed by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The bond issue would add about $8 to an average homeowner's tax bill for the next 20 years.

Library officials want to double the size of the existing building, to have room for more books. Voters approved a $720,000 bond issue April 1, but rejected a separate bond issue to expand the building.

A controversial 500-seat community auditorium has been dropped from the expansion plan. Library officials blame the auditorium for the April 1 defeat of the building referendum.

Sanitary relief sewers added

Two sanitary relief sewers, costing an estimated $210,000, have been added to a $3.2 million non-referendum flood-control bond issue.

The Arlington Terrace relief sewer, $140,000, and the Brandenberry relief sewer, $70,000, will eliminate the need for two electric lift stations and eliminate sewer backups in the Arlington Terrace, Arlington Vista and Brandenberry Park neighborhoods.

Cost of the sewers, plus a 10 per cent contingency fee, increases the bond issue to $3.435 million. The village borrowing will cost an average homeowner $12 to $15 annually for the next 15 years.

The two sewer projects had been scheduled for utility tax funding in 1977, but pressure to repeal the tax had cast doubt on funding for the sewer projects.

4 named to parking panel

Four new members have been named to the special committee on a downtown parking garage. Trustee August Bettman, committee chairman, asked to expand the committee by adding two downtown property owners and two merchant tenants to the group.

Named were Donald Morton of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn.; H. Myles Gordon, developer; Bud Mills of Weber Paint Co.; and Michael Witt of Victoria Gardens.

Officials view Lutheran Home building plans

Plans for the second phase of a long-range development program for the Lutheran Home for the Aged were presented to Arlington Heights officials Tuesday.

The plans call for the construction of two wings on the main building, 800 W. Oakton St. The additions will add 128 beds to the facility which now has a capacity of 353 beds.

The wings will be built to the south and east of the present structure, with a parking lot planned along Oakton Street.

The wings would form a center courtyard with the other buildings. The courtyard will be landscaped, and have an emergency vehicle access in case of fire.

The additions are to be three stories tall, as are the other buildings in the complex.

THE PROPOSAL is part of 10-year plan to build apartments and cottages for the residents of the home. The apartments would range in size from efficiency-kitchenettes to one- and two-bedroom models.

The cottages are part of the longer range plans, with no construction timetable set for them. The 350 cottage units will be one-story and will be built in clusters of six or eight units.

The plans were presented to the plat and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission. The full plan commission will hold hearings on the proposal on Jan. 7, 1976.

The addition is part of a master plan presented to the village last year.

Ryan in another effort to end boundary dispute

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan again will meet with leaders of the Prospect Heights incorporation movement in an attempt to resolve disagreement on the common boundary between the two towns.

Arlington Heights is appealing a Circuit Court ruling clearing the way for a referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation tentatively set for Jan. 31.

Trustee David Griffin tried unsuccessfully Monday night to get the Arlington Heights Village Board to drop its appeal which village officials admit is an 11th hour attempt to forestall the referendum.

"There is nothing to be gained in filing this appeal other than to create hard feelings in the long run," Griffin said.

Arlington Heights officials have never accepted Waterman Avenue as the proposed boundary with Prospect Heights. Instead they have proposed Dale Avenue, east of the Brandenberry Park Apartments as a boundary.

THE VILLAGE BOARD rejected Griffin's move to drop the court appeal but adopted Ryan's suggestion that a new effort be made to reach agreement.

"If we drop this, Prospect Heights will go on its merry way," said Trustee Frank Palmatier. "I have always felt this (boundary) was meant to be an imposition on Arlington Heights."

Village officials contend that they are required to provide municipal services to Arlington Heights residents in the vicinity of Waterman Avenue and cannot give up water and sewer mains in the area to Prospect Heights.

They also fear that Prospect Heights will encroach on valuable unincorporated land along Rand Road which legally will become part of Arlington Heights.

No date for the meeting between Ryan and Prospect Heights leaders has been set.

Bowling alley proposed on Arlington Hts. Road

A 40-lane bowling alley with a restaurant and lounge has been proposed along relocated Arlington Heights Road south of Dundee Road.

Arthur Schmidt presented the preliminary plans for the bowling facility to the plat and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday.

Schmidt, who has a similar operation in Streamwood, plans to build on 3.5 acres near the northern industrial park. He is seeking rezoning for the property which is now classified for single-family houses.

While village officials were generally receptive to the idea of a bowling alley in the area, they raised questions about sewer and water service to the site. The area is not now connected to either sewer or water lines, and the nearest ones are along University Drive about 2,000 feet away.

Schmidt said he wanted to open the facility by next fall in time for the formation of new bowling teams and leagues.

The building would be one-story Mediterranean style with face brick construction. It would have meeting rooms and nursery facilities, he said.

Schmidt will meet again with the subcommittee before his plans are reviewed by village department heads. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Burbank happy with results of incorporation

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of south suburban Burbank say they are glad they voted to incorporate five years ago because it has allowed them to preserve and develop their community.

The 32,000 residents of the city just south of Chicago experienced the same problems that Prospect Heights residents have today as an unprotected, unincorporated area.

Outlying parcels of the community were continually being annexed by neighboring suburbs, depleting the tax base of the area's rural park, fire and library districts.

THE PEOPLE OF Burbank weighed the alternatives and voted to incorporate in 1970.

Burbank officials now have encouraged Prospect Heights residents to do the same when they go to the polls to decide the issue Jan. 31. If the 13,000 Prospect Heights residents vote to incorporate, an area bounded by Sanders Road on the east, Windsor Drive on the west, Hintz Road on the north and Euclid Ave. on the south will become the newest Northwest suburb.

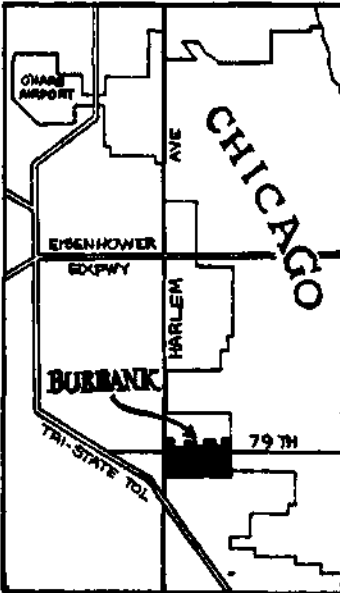

Burbank Mayor John Fitzgerald said the main advantages to incorporation have been the ability to independently coordinate the growth of the area, hold the line on taxes and services and oversee improvements.

There have been "no real problems" in the formation of the new city during the past five years.

"OUR SITUATION was very much like the one that Prospect Heights is in now. We saw that piecemeal annexation to nearby suburbs or incorporation were our only alternatives. We never could have remained a viable unincorporated area," Fitzgerald said.

Burbank residents were undecided on the incorporation for nearly 10 years until 5,000 of the community's 17,000 eligible voters turned out in the 1970 referendum to put the issue to rest.

Today, Burbank operates on a $21 million budget that is supported with revenues from motor fuel tax funds, sales tax, state income tax, business and liquor license fees, vehicle stickers and traffic fines, Fitzgerald said.

Burbank's income has increased yearly with only a slight rise in real estate taxes, he said, "and we are still in the black, five years into incorporation, and we expect to remain that way."

BURBANK HAS encouraged commercial development which has boosted municipal sales tax receipts and has prohibited industrial development to protect the "residential character of the area," Fitzgerald said.

"If we hadn't incorporated, by now we would have been partially industrial and annexed into Oak Lawn, Chicago and other nearby cities. We just wouldn't be here," he said.

The advantages speak for themselves, Fitzgerald said: real estate value has more than doubled in the last five years; several unincorporated areas on the city's west boundary were recently annexed, adding 2,000 more residents; overall population has increased by 4,000 since 1970 and assessed valuation has increased from $59 million to $96 million.

Local taxes increased slightly during the first years of incorporation to cover administrative operating costs and improvements requested by the residents, he said. Fire insurance rates simultaneously decreased because the area's rural fire district was absorbed by the city and improved to a full-time force.

Annex brought better services to New Town

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of the New Town area of Mount Prospect cite upgraded services as one of the primary advantages of annexation into the village in 1971.

Previously an unincorporated part of Cook County, the area, a 1.5-square mile parcel bounded by Kensington, Willow, River and Camp McDonald roads chose the annexation route while Prospect Heights did not.

It has been a slow adjustment for the estimated 10,000 residents of New Town. Some residents have protested the changing of street names and the failure of the village to take control of a private utility company serving the area with water which they say is of "low quality."

BUT MOST RESIDENTS polled earlier this year expressed satisfaction with the results of annexation which has provided them with full-time police and fire protection and garbage pickup. Previously, residents had to contract for those services.

Should the Jan. 31 referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation fail, annexation to Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights or Wheeling may be the only way the community's 13,000 residents can obtain satisfactory services.

"The services have improved 100 per cent since we've annexed to Mount Prospect. I don't think anyone will argue with that," said Marie Caylor, a New Town resident and one-time Mount Prospect trustee who was one of the forces behind the 1971 annexation.

Mrs. Caylor said there has been only a slight increase in taxes for most New Town residents during the last four years.

RESIDENTS' FIRE insurance rates drastically decreased when Mount Prospect offered full-time service which took the place of a rural fire district volunteer force.

The taxes needed to support fire, police and garbage service are now included in the village tax rate.

"So, it seemed that the new taxes we inherited by becoming part of the village were offset by our not having to pay more for the services. My tax bill balanced off and I think most residents' bills did," she said.

"ANNEXATION HAS worked out well for New Town. At this point, the people of Prospect Heights have fought long and hard for the chance to hold a referendum on incorporation. Now they can, and I wish them well," Mrs. Caylor said.

In 1971, the residents of New Town hoped that Prospect Heights would annex along with them, Mrs. Caylor said. "Now things have changed, and it's up to Prospect Heights residents to decide on their own future," she said.

Many of the residents have offered their services in the village's municipal boards and committees. They are striving to feel more a part of the village.

"As long as the village backs the residents and helps them with their problems — that's the main thing. We have that going for us and the rest will follow," Mrs. Caylor said.

Pool passes price cut until Dec. 24

The Arlington Heights Park District has reduced the price of its annual swimming passes purchased before Christmas.

The price of the family passes will be lowered to $30 from $35 if purchased before Dec. 24. Individual passes will cost $11 instead of $16 during this period.

The Olympic Park indoor pool offers a full range of activities during the winter including programs for senior citizens, adults, children, competitive swim teams and lessons.

Swimming passes, good for 12 months from date of purchase, are honored at the Mount Prospect Park District Kopp indoor pool, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect, and the Buffalo Grove Park District Aquadome, 1100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

For more information, contact the Arlington Heights Park District, 253-0821.

The American Legend Wall Rug

BY Alexander Smith Carpet

an impressive and unique commemoration of our bicentennial, beautifully boxed for gifts to friends and formal presentations

- for your home, office, store
- for schools, fraternal or social clubs, young peoples organizations, business and trade associations
- for business gifts, awards and congratulatory presentations

We proudly present The American Legend wall-rug, heirloom beauty for traditional or contemporary settings. The Eagle, Liberty Bell and Flag are depicted in 24 true-to-life colors. Alexander Smith chose acrylic fiber for luster and axminster weave for precision; each feather is defined, the engraving is legible, the flag's red, white and blue are vibrant. In the presentation box is a keepsake folder explaining the design's symbols and easy hanging instructions.

Jet noise before U.S. panel today

Solutions to jet noise pollution at O'Hare Airport and other U. S. airports will be considered in hearings today before the Aviation Subcommittee of the U. S. House of Representatives. Added hearings are slated for Dec. 10 and 11. While these sessions are in Washington, D. C., sessions may be scheduled for early 1976 in Chicago or other locations.

Area residents who are affected by airport noise should send comments to the subcommittee, said U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th.

Mikva said he will protest noise levels at O'Hare at subcommittee hearings. His testimony will center on a bill he sponsored allowing communities surrounding an airport to order the facility and the airlines to adopt safe, economical noise abatement procedures.

"IT IS TIME that Congress establish and insist on implementation of methods to reduce aircraft noise, as the people who live near major airports have been asking for years. Federal bureaucrats, the airline executives and airport operators do not have their health impaired, their lives disrupted and the atmosphere ravaged the way people who live in the vicinity of airports do," Mikva said.

The subcommittee will consider legislation to reduce aircraft noise levels in 1976. Comment on aircraft noise can be sent to: Subcommittee on Aviation, Room 2166, Rayburn Office Building, Washington, D. C. 20515.

The Federal Aviation Administration recently issued a proposed rule to require the next generation of aircraft types to include stringent noise standards. For information on the proposed standards, or to comment on the proposals, write: Federal Aviation Administration, Office of Chief Counsel, Rules Docket, AGC-24, 800 Independence Ave., S.W., Washington, D. C. 20591. The deadline for comment on the proposal, Notice No. 75-37, Docket No. 15131 is Jan. 5.

Dorothea Sauer

Dorothea M. Sauer, 78, nee Haseman, of Arlington Heights, died Tuesday.

She is survived by her husband, Frank E.; a daughter, Hazel (John) Ernst of Arlington Heights; a son, Vernon F. (LaDonna) Sauer of Arlington Heights; 10 grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; two sisters, Clara Bruns of Palatine and Ruth Hoffie of Arlington Heights; and three brothers, Elmer Haseman of Sun City, Calif., Herbert Haseman of Florida and Gustav Haseman of Marengo.

Visitation is from 3 to 9:30 p.m. today in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The body will lie in state Friday in St. John United Church of Christ, 308 N. Evergreen Ave., Arlington Heights, from noon until services at 1:30 p.m. Burial will be in Randhill Park Cemetery, Palatine.

Family requests memorial donations to St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights.

County zoners mull action on master plan

The Cook County zoning board of appeals Wednesday held the final public hearing before the zoning board makes decisions on the comprehensive county plan.

The hearing, which included comments by Steve Lenet, Palatine planning and zoning administrator, dealt with final comments on the new county zoning ordinance, new zoning maps and the planning rationale used to draw up the ordinance.

Representatives of Save Our Suburbs, the Barrington Area Council of Governments and the village of Barrington also spoke at the public hearing.

Zoning board secretary Paul Marcy said zoning board members would hold a meeting before next Wednesday with planning consultant Rolf C. Campbell before making final recommendations on the zoning ordinance, maps and the rationale to the county board.

The way we see it

New gag rule perils media

The United States Supreme Court should move quickly to protect the press' First Amendment right to report events which happen in open court.

The latest threat to the public's right to know comes from Nebraska and, indirectly, from Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who last month refused to stand squarely behind Constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press.

In late October a Nebraska lower court ruled that the press could not report what had been seen or heard in court about a gruesome murder of six members of a rural Nebraska family.

Local press groups petitioned the Nebraska Supreme Court to rule promptly to overturn the gag rule. That prompt ruling did not occur, so they petitioned Judge Blackmun.

On Nov. 21 Blackmun threw out only a portion of the Nebraska ruling. He maintained that the local court could block the press from reporting on a confession and perhaps a criminal record, if the court found such a gag rule necessary.

The effect of Blackmun's ruling is that it serves as a prior restraint, a practice which has been rejected before by the high court. In effect, it permits a defendant's Sixth Amendment fair trial rights to supersede the rights of a free press permitted by the First Amendment.

We find this ruling ominous because it could encourage other gag rules and lead to the kinds of "star chamber" proceedings which our forefathers detested. After all, how will judicial corruption be discouraged, and individual rights protected, unless a vigorous press is allowed to report the whole story of what goes on in court?

We are sympathetic to the need to allow an accused person a fair trial. But there are other ways to avoid the taint of publicity, such as sequestering a jury, changing the location of a trial or offering a new one if necessary. The alternative is to stifle the American tradition of press freedom, an unacceptable alternative in a free society.

The Nebraska Supreme Court on Monday unanimously endorsed the Blackmun-ordered form of modified censorship. In fact, it allowed it to extend to future pre-trial hearings.

We disagree with this decision. For the protection of a free and unencumbered press, which dovetails with the public's right to know how its government works, we support a prompt U.S. Supreme Court review of the matter. This cloud of censorship over this country's free press must be dispelled.

Nellie Fox 'worked hard for every honor'

Chicago sports fans must live in the past. The present has not been rewarding.

The past, that glorious past, was vividly brought into focus again this week with the death of Nellie Fox, little Nellie, Chicago's great second baseman for so many years.

Fox, who died of skin cancer, was a sparkplug for the Chicago White Sox and the league's Most Valuable Player in 1959 when Chicago won the American League pennant.

Little Nellie, with that perpetual chew of tobacco in his jaw and that choke grip on the bat, was not long on size or even great ability, but he played some of the finest second base ever seen in professional baseball. He hustled in a way few athletes hustle today. He worked hard for every honor he received.

Hall of Famer Ted Williams normally isn't effusive. He isn't given to saying things he doesn't mean. When he heard of Fox's death, he said, "I just loved him. He was such a loyal little guy."

Everybody loved little Nellie — and respected him.

When New York Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle was struggling at one point in his career, and told to bear down and try a little harder, he turned to his coach and said, "Look, I'm doing the best I can. Not everybody can be a Nellie Fox!"

Mickey Mantle was absolutely right. Not everybody can.

NELLIE FOX

In a recent letter, Glenn Killoren, the president of the Fremd High School Student Council, attacked the strategy used by the National Student Coalition Against Racism and the rally which began the October national conference of NSCAR as too "radical" for most students. He then suggested working toward changes in the school curriculum as a means of fighting racism.

It is wrong to counterpose attempting to educate people about the evils of racism to organizing peaceful mass protest actions. Both are necessary. Furthermore, the anti-racist fight is a political fight and must use the methods of political struggle, including rallies, marches, teach-ins and picket lines. The recent stampede of politicians to jump on the bandwagon of racist anti-busing demagoguery demonstrates this. Mass protest actions can also have a powerful educational effect. I believe that the civil rights demonstrations in the Sixties did more to educate people about racism and injustice than the schools, the press or any other established institutions.

I also disagree with Killoren's characterization of NSCAR's mass action strategy as ultra-radical. In the last decade, these methods have become accepted and used by many sections of society. The National Education Association and the National Student Association, the largest teacher and student organizations in the country, both had representatives at NSCAR's rally. The AFL-CIO also held a protest rally on April 28 of this year for jobs, one that NSCAR supported, (because unemployment hits the oppressed racial minorities the hardest). As far as I know, no one has even called George Meany a radical. Many changes have taken place in the last decade. Where have you been all these years, Killoren?

Lastly, NSCAR's mass action strategy is effective. The May 17 national march on Boston, which was backed by a broad coalition of civil rights, student, community, labor and teacher organizations (including the Dist. 211 Education Assn.) was a tremendous success. Following the protests organized by NSCAR and others, are dropping like stones in the well of confusion.

As for the matured, an Office of Education study has recently concluded that one of every five adults cannot intellectually cope with society.

To say the least, the schooling investment return is, as Education Commissioner T. H. Bell puts it, "a mixed bag." We have now a nation that teaches college calculus to qualified high school seniors, but also one, according to the USOE study, where perhaps 15 million adults cannot properly address an envelope, and where 16 million cannot fill out a bank check. We have, says Bell, "a long way to go in education."

Yet Bell says it should come as no surprise to anyone that the schools are in trouble. Sitting in his office, a slight man, a Utah Mormon with the look of propriety about him, Bell insists the nation cannot expect "the schools to be healthy in a sick society." Sounding like a prep school headmaster at an assembly, Bell quietly laces into what he sees as a nation of negativism. Materialism and greed have replaced self-reliance and self-denial, he says, "we care more about chrome than children."

The television culture receives much of the brunt of the commissioner's ire. By the time a student is 17 years old, Bell says, he has been in 12,000 hours of school, but has watched 15,000 hours of TV, mostly "garbage." What kind of madness is this? Bell sympathizes with the TV lure, admitting an affection for old westerns himself, but he did not grow up under the influence, did not come to believe that murder was painless, that rape was accompanied by a dramatic musical score or that Kojak was an acceptable evening substitute for Herman Melville.

And what of the parent's role in all this? Bell believes it is substantial. Recognizing that if a father spends each evening with Groucho he will likely breed a child who does the same, Bell suggests that if America's children are wandering, then America's parents share the blame. He agrees absolutely with Gandhi in that "there is no school equal to a decent home and no teacher equal to a virtuous parent."

Too many adults, he says, do not act as parents because they do not know how to act as parents, this too being a failure of American education.

The commissioner's thoughts, assuredly, are from straight out of the past, the subject therefore of much ridicule among many educators who feel Bell has the philosophy of an 18th century gymnastics teacher. He believes in corporal punishment as a last resort, he uses words such as "stewardship" to define the educator's role. As to the instructional experimentation that has been purchased so dearly in recent decades, Bell says for each that have aided schools, "perhaps 20 have failed."

Undenialably, Terrell Bell is a pragmatist, a man who carried the ideas of a Utah school district to Washington in a rented truck actually, and who has spent 18 months in his obscure federal post advising a bloated industry that listens only politely if at all. A pity.

In a nation where the USOE says that one of four adults does not know that normal human body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, there is the sound of authenticity in the commissioner's old time religion.

Gospel, particularly, is the verse he preaches concerning the quality of some of today's teachers. Many of them, he sighs, are hammering cold iron. He would like to retire the incompetents, where possible, with monetary inducements, and so would legions of others who observe the educational scene. At least there would be an altogether positive return on that educational expenditure.

Today is Thursday, Dec. 4, the 338th day of 1975 with 27 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

Actress-singer Lillian Russell was born Dec. 4, 1861.

On this day in history:

• In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered liquidation of the Works Progress Administration, created in 1935 in the depths of the depression to provide work for the unemployed.

• In 1965, America's Gemini 7 spaceship was launched into orbit for a then-record 14-day voyage around the earth.

• In 1971, India joined East Pakistan in its war with West Pakistan. West Pakistan subsequently lost and East Pakistan became the Republic of Bangladesh.

• In 1974, a chartered airliner carrying 182 Indonesian Moslems on a pilgrimage to Mecca and nine crew members crashed and burned near Colombo, Sri Lanka, killing all aboard.

'Failure' of education assailed

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — The United States has spent more than $1 trillion on formal education in the past half century, including $108 billion in the fiscal year just completed. And what is the result? Among the highest standards of living in the world, certainly, but also some of the most astonishingly deviated students, many of the most demonstrably incapable teachers and a good number of the most glaringly uneducated adults compared to any other advanced nation on the globe.

For all too many Americans the schools are, in the words of Lewis Carroll's Mock Turtle: "Reading and writhing, and the different brands of arithmetic — ambition, distraction, uglification and derision." One million pupils quit before high school graduation; crime, alcohol and drugs are a major preoccupation on the secondary grade level; college entrance scores are dropping like stones in the well of confusion.

As for the matured, an Office of Education study has recently concluded that one of every five adults cannot intellectually cope with society.

To say the least, the schooling investment return is, as Education Commissioner T. H. Bell puts it, "a mixed bag." letters to the editor the racist forces became divided and demoralized. Both they and the government saw that there were masses of people determined to fight any assault on racial equality. This fall the Massachusetts and Kentucky state governments finally called in the National Guard and prevented a recurrence of the massive violence of last year. The racists became even more demoralized. If Killoren's suggestions had been followed by the anti-racist movement, the racists would have been unchecked and the lynch mobs would have reappeared. Instead, NSCAR has taken the first steps toward defeating the racist drive and winning new victories for human rights and social justice.

In the sixties, there were many debates on which was better, education or action. The question has long since been resolved: both are needed and neither one can be effective without the other. Indeed, they go hand in hand. Education leads to action and action leads to education. The National Student Coalition Against Racism will continue to pursue its current strategy of education and mobilization against racism.

Dear Eleanor Rives:

Thanks ever so much for the excellent and spacious coverage given the Maple School screening program in Thursday's paper. Your interesting and informative treatment of the subject should provide a greater understanding of the importance of screening. And, hopefully, other children will have the opportunity to reap its benefits as a result of your fine article.

Berry's World

Youths more conservative: survey

by DOROTHY OLIVER

It's like deja vu.

The annual survey conducted by Who's Who Among American High School Students, Northbrook, was released this week and results show today's young people are less tolerant of drug use, more puritanical sexually and more old-fashioned in their attitudes towards marriage and the women's movement than groups polled in other years.

The 22,300 students surveyed, mostly college freshmen, are among the young people listed in the 1974-75 edition of "Who's Who..." and are considered leaders of their former high school classes.

The results of this survey remind me very much of the attitudes expressed by the kids that made up the good old class of '63 back in my high school days.

THE "WHO'S WHO..." survey points out that there is an increasingly negative attitude towards drugs other than alcohol. Nine out of 10 of the young people have not tried hard drugs, only 23 per cent feel marijuana should be legalized, compared to 42 per cent in the 1973 survey, and only 19 per cent said they would use it, a drop of 6 per cent. At the same time drinking seems to have taken the place of drugs with 79 per cent admitting they have indulged once or twice.

When it comes to sex and marriage, 69 per cent polled said they have not had premarital intercourse and 50 per cent said this is due to their own moral standards.

Although 53 per cent said they would participate "with someone they cared deeply for," only 18 per cent said they would seriously consider living with another person without being married, down 24 per cent from the 1974 survey.

Eighty-nine per cent of the students plan to marry and 77 per cent favor a traditional marriage. Eighty-five per cent plan on using some form of birth control, including 58 per cent of the Catholic students. Fifty-four per cent of the males would not approve of an abortion and 56 per cent of the females would not have one.

NINETY-FOUR PER CENT of those surveyed think the women's movement has been effective, but support of the Equal Rights Amendment has dropped from 74 per cent in 1974 to 63 per cent this year.

Religion has become increasingly important to teens polled during the last three years.

In 1972, 63 per cent said religion played an important role in their lives, compared to 86 per cent this year. In 1972, 70 per cent said they were members of an organized religion compared to 80 per cent this year. Just 3 per cent said they feel there is no God or vital force and 7 per cent weren't sure.

Politically, 37 per cent associate themselves with the Democratic party, 24 per cent with the Republican party and 25 per cent call themselves independents. Only 5 per cent placed themselves on the far left or far right of the political spectrum, with 24 per cent saying they are left of center, 41 per cent taking the middle of the road and 16 per cent right of center.

NINETY-FIVE PER CENT of those surveyed will be of age to vote in the 1976 elections and 92 per cent intend to vote.

Of the "Democrats," 53 per cent are undecided on for whom they will vote for president. U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, (D-Mass.) received the most support in the survey, with 15 per cent saying they would support him. Alabama Gov. George Wallace came in second with 8 per cent.

Of the "Republicans" in the survey, 66 per cent said they were undecided on a presidential candidate, but

Education Today

20 per cent said they favored President Gerald Ford Ronald Reagan was the next top vote getter with 7 per cent

Ford did pretty well with the young people. Asked to rate him on his overall performance in domestic policy, 4 per cent said excellent, 43 per cent said good, 39 per cent said only fair, and 11 per cent said poor

Rating Ford's foreign policy, 10 per cent said excellent, 49 per cent said good, 31 per cent said fair, and 7 per cent said poor.

Who are the heroes of this group? The young people listed the people who have made the greatest contribution to the world and nation during their lifetime. The top three for the nation were John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and Henry Kissinger. The top three for the world, were Henry Kissinger, John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon.

It's enough to make a radical shudder.

League votes 'no' on White Sox sale

The meeting of American League owners in Cleveland Wednesday voted to reject the offer of Bill Veeck to buy the Chicago White Sox because of a lack of sufficient funds. The owners did, however, give Veeck a vote of confidence if he can raise the necessary amount in the near future.

Oakland A's owner Charley O. Finley said the owners did not accept Veeck's bid as presented.

"They're asking him for more equity," he said.

Informed sources said Veeck was given until Dec. 10 to come up with another $1.2 million and be able to call on his stockholders for an equal amount as a buffer should the franchise get in trouble.

Veeck had left the owners meeting earlier without an answer on whether he would be allowed to purchase the franchise using his method of financing. The owners continued to huddle, trying to decide whether to approve the purchase or approve moving it to Seattle, after he departed.

Veeck said he was given until Dec. 10 to raise another $1.2 million to add to the $4.8 million he proposed.

"It's possible, and we're going to try," said Veeck. "That's our impression at this time."

"Obviously I'm not happy. I thought we had a viable deal, a reasonable deal, and suddenly I find I did not have a reasonable deal," Veeck said. "I'm worried that the ball club will leave Chicago, and that's anathema to me."

He said he does not think the owners are harassing him.

"Maybe they are hanging me slowly by the neck, but I wouldn't call that harassment," said Veeck.

Veeck said he thought his deal was comparable to those used in purchasing other clubs. He also said he thinks he can double White Sox attendance if given the chance.

"It's like the old gag, I guess, of the carrot and the donkey, but in this case the stick is too long," he said.

His attorney said Veeck has about a 25 per cent chance of coming up with the additional money.

American League President Lee MacPhail said the initial vote on Veeck's proposal was three in favor, DANGEROUS DAN. Hersey's Dan Muenz runs through his side horse routine to the tune of 8.25, event and the all-around title. Hersey will host good enough to win the event in the Huskies' dual meet win over York. Muenz also captured the P.Bars Hoffman Estates in the conference opener tonight.

Mid-Suburban gymnastics, wrestling slates begin

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

What is shaping up as the most closely fought Mid-Suburban League gymnastics season in recent memory will get underway tonight with the Hersey Huskies, fresh from a chalk thin win over York, out to defend their crown with a home date with Hoffman Estates.

Other matches will find Rolling Meadows at Wheeling, Buffalo Grove at Elk Grove, Palatine at Prospect, Fremd at Forest View and Arlington at Conant.

The varsity meets will begin at approximately 8 p.m. with a frosh-soph meet preceding them.

Hersey's head coach Don Von Ebers will have half of the Muenz brothers back for a run at their fourth straight conference crown. Kevin has graduated to Southern Illinois but Danny, despite a sore foot, looked like an early line favorite for the conference all-around title in the opener against York.

"Danny's foot is nothing drastic," said Von Ebers. "He tapes it and he seems to function OK. There is nothing wrong with it that affects his performance."

Muenz opened his senior season with titles in all-around (7.83), P-Bars (7.75) and pommel horse (8.25).

"Danny, in particular, did a fine job against York," Von Ebers said. "He looked very sharp for this early in the season."

Von Ebers felt the Huskies' 134.15 to 133.71 victory was slightly overscored but by the end of the season he sees his team as a potential 145 to 150 squad.

Helping Muenz toward that goal will be several individuals who can only get better as the season progresses. They include Bob Barut (FX and tramp), Jim Huck (all-around), Ray Peters (FX and tramp), Paul Brown (side horse), Rich Stange (high bar and P-Bars), Mike Caruso (P-Bars) and Vince Corrado (rings).

Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows, Prospect and Arlington will have the best shot at Hersey this year, with Fred Gaines' Grenadiers tabbed by most coaches as the best team in the league.

"We're going to be really tough by the end of the year," said Elk Grove coach Gaines. "If we do a good job we might hit 130 in the opener."

Gaines has two of the finest gymnasts in the league, and perhaps the state, in Gene Christensen and Matt Damore.

They will handle the Grens' all-around chores. Both were all-conference selections in 1975 as was Tim Connelly, a state finalist on the pommel horse.

Don Bosslet (FX), Bob Hamilton (FX), Tom Balla (side horse), Jim Schwartz (P-Bars), Tom Hadley (tramp) and Dan Wudtke (rings and all-around) are the other performers the Grens will need to win their first league title since they shared it with Hersey in 1973.

Prospect's Knights will open the season without their ace, Doug Zahour. And until he returns Pat Kivland's team won't hit the stride he expects of them.

"We have a better nucleus than we did last season," Kivland remarked. "And we finished eighth in the state then. Whether this team fulfills their potential only time will tell."

Until Zahour returns, Russ Klingaman and Tim Jones will be the Knights' top all-around men. Special-

Single duel tonight kicks off mat action; busy weekend card

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue.

That could be Darryl Phillips. A familiar fixture in the area but brand new to the varsity head coaching ranks, borrowed from Forest View (permanently) to don Prospect blue and take over the Knight wrestling helm this winter.

The Knights undertake a rather ambitious schedule this weekend. They travel to Buffalo Grove tonight to signal the beginning of a new Mid-Suburban League mat campaign. Friday they visit another loop foe — Rolling Meadows — and Saturday they're off to Plainfield for an eight-team invitational meet.

Phillips isn't the type to dwell much on ironies or coincidences. He hasn't had much time since the once proud and potent Prospect wrestling program he is inheriting has fallen on some hard times.

But while Phillips has been too busy putting his own ambition to work building the Knights back into a contender, the fact remains that his move to the Prospect coaching staff is worthy of special mention.

Back in the early '60s when the paint was still drying on the walls of the new Prospect High School it was Phillips and some of his cronies (including current Falcon head football coach Fred Lussow) who led athletic teams to a few of their finest moments. The Knight football and basketball squads in his graduating year of 1960-61 rank among the best ever from this area and Phillips was a three-time Knight district mat champ.

Four years of college and nine years of coaching football and wrestling (two at Mt. Vernon, Ind. and seven at Forest View) later, Phillips has found that the paint is a bit cracked and the wrestling team has just suffered through losing seasons at all four levels. The Knight varsity was 0-8 in conference last winter after forfeiting more matches than they fought.

It looks like Phillips is already turning things around though. True, the Knights were hammered by Maine West in their opener last week but there was a grappler ready to go at every weight. The jayvee unit lost, every weight. The jayvee unit lost, the sophos lost, but the freshmen won and the underlevels fielded full teams too.

"It's not going to happen overnight, but I think we're going to get the program going here again," Phillips offered. "We're using a lot of juniors on the varsity this year and they just need some seasoning. Next year I can see us being respectable and with a good freshman group this year to build on, we could be on our way in a couple of seasons."

After the Knights and Bison inaugurate the new MSL campaign this evening, eight other teams will follow suit Friday, mostly against inter-divisional rivals. The Knights are at Meadows, Elk Grove entertains Conant and Schaumburg visits Forest View in the South while Arlington hosts Wheeling in the North.

Buffalo Grove will be at Hoffman Estates in a crossover tussle Friday and St. Viator takes on Carmel at home to open their loop campaign.

Saturday while a number of area teams are going against non-conference competition, the Mustangs, the Cardinals and Hersey go on the road to tackle cross division foes Fremd, Conant and Schaumburg respectively.

Jim Murray column starts Friday

Jim Murray

You'll find a new look in sports columns when you discover the writings of Jim Murray. He is a man who has built a reputation as one of the best sportswriters in the United States.

Murray's new sports column starts Friday in The Herald. The column will appear on a Monday, Wednesday and Friday schedule in the future.

The popular columnist was named the winner of the famous Headliner Award for sportswriting. In addition, Murray received the No. 1 rating by his peers — the coveted National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Award.

Murray covers sports accurately, controversially and with a tremendous sense of humor and irreverence. He writes with a complete lack of chauvinism.

A top staff writer for Sports Illustrated Magazine before joining the staff of the Los Angeles Times in March, 1961, Murray is syndicated to newspapers across the nation.

Although his headquarters is in Los Angeles, the complete sports world is Murray's beat. He picks his own assignments with no regard to strictly regional interests and travels regularly to all parts of the country. Within the past six months he has traveled over 25,000 miles in search of column material.

Before taking his assignment with Sports Illustrated Magazine — he was West Coast Editor — Murray worked for Time Magazine as a sportswriter. Prior to his magazine assignments he was a reporter for a number of newspapers.

Sports world Rock Island cutting sports

The Rock Island Board of Education has decided to eliminate all school athletics next year along with a number of academic programs because of an anticipated budget deficit of $1.2 million.

On a 5-0 vote the board voted to cut out all athletics in the 1976-77 school year to save $100,000. The board previously had voted to eliminate $900,000 in program and personnel costs.

Assistant School Superintendent Dillard Harris said Wednesday the cuts would not have been necessary if the state school aid formula had been fully funded this year.

He said Rock Island would have received $400,000 more than it did if the legislature had overridden Gov. Daniel Walker's $115 million cut in school aid bills.

Harris said Rock Island, which has 10,000 students in its elementary and secondary schools, also lost money because it was forced to reduce property tax assessments under a measure passed by the legislature last spring.

Aside from the athletic program, Harris said, the board eliminated most teacher aid positions, cut 11 supervisory jobs, increased class size to an average of 30, eliminated advanced courses in which only 10-15 students enrolled, and also cut out some vocational courses.

Hawks kiss sister again

Dick Redmond's second goal of the game with 11:38 to play gave the Chicago Black Hawks a 3-3 tie with the Pittsburgh Penguins Wednesday night to extend their unbeaten string to 15 games, tying the club record set in 1967.

It was the fifth straight tie and the eighth in the last nine games for the Black Hawks, who have 11 ties in 25 games this season and nine of them in the 15-game unbeaten string.

Redmond got the first goal of the game when he carried the puck around the edge of the rink from the point and shot successfully over Penguins' goalie Michael Plasse. His game tying score came on a 50-footer from the side six seconds after the Hawks began a power play.

The puck hit the side of Plasse's pads and bounced into the net. Chicago's third goal, also on a power play, went to John Marks in the second period.

Bulls hop Boston, 109-106

The Chicago Bulls broke out of their losing ways on the Boston Garden floor Wednesday night as Bob Love bombed in 35 points to lead his teammates to a 109-106 win over the Boston Celtics.

The Bulls had lost 11 of the last 12 games and, ironically, the best effort they had produced for the young season had been a home win over the Celtics.

Jo Jo White led Boston with 31 points while Dave Cowens added 28 and Jon Havlicek 18.

The Bulls showed excellent balance with Mickey Johnson hitting for 16, Norm Van Lier 14, Bobby Wilson 20, and Jack Narin 10.

Griffin heads UPI squad

Archie Griffin of Ohio State, the only two-time Heisman Trophy winner, Wednesday was named to the United Press International All-America college football team for the third year in a row, becoming the first player in over a quarter century to achieve that honor.

The 5-foot-9, 184-pound senior tailback is the first player since Doak Walker of SMU to make the UPI All-America first team three times. Walker was named to the All-America squad in 1947-48-49.

Griffin, the leading career rusher in college football history with 5,177 yards, emerged as the leading vote-getter in the All-America balloting of sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation.

Fourteen schools are represented on the first team, with third-ranked Oklahoma leading the way with four players named. Top-ranked Ohio State, second-ranked Texas A&M, fourth-ranked Alabama, California, Notre Dame, and Penn State each had two players on the squad while Wisconsin, Georgia, Texas, Nebraska, Toledo, Navy and Southern Cal each played one.

Joining Griffin in the All-America backfield are running back Ricky Bell of Southern California, the nation's leading rusher; running back Chuck Muncie of California, a triple threat performer who was the fourth leading rusher; and quarterback Gene Swick of Toledo, the nation's total offense leader for the second straight year.

Anderson will be ready

Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown said after Wednesday afternoon's practice it looks like injured quarterback Ken Anderson will be able to start Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"We have every expectation that by the end of the week Kenny will be reasonably back to normal," said Brown.

"Assuming that he is, he will be our starting quarterback." Anderson missed last Sunday's game against Houston because of "severe chest contusions" suffered after a hard hit against Cleveland Nov. 23.

Brown said he anticipates Anderson being "100 per cent" by Sunday.

Giants' future hazy

The board of directors of the San Francisco Giants held a telephonic conference Wednesday and failed to reach an agreement on the sale of the baseball team, reportedly to a local group.

Chuck Rupert, Giants executive vice president, conducted the conference in the absence of the still ailing Horace Stoneham, and said the board "discussed the current status of negotiations for the sale of the company's assets. No firm decision was reached on the matter and representatives of the company were instructed to continue with pending discussions."

The current discussions are believed to be with a local group of businessmen and fans who are trying to raise $12 million to buy the distressed National League franchise from Stoneham, who owns 70 per cent of the club and wants to sell it before next week's major league winter meetings in Hollywood, Fla.

The local group reportedly has made an offer of $8 million but that offer has been rejected. Stoneham, it is said, wants $10 million for the club and the National League is insisting the new ownership have at least $2 million in hand to operate the team until such time as it starts to take in money.

A Toronto syndicate pulled out of the bidding on Tuesday when it discovered it would take at least $7 million in indemnification costs to uproot the club from San Francisco. That group reportedly offered $14 million for the team and its real estate holdings in Arizona.

Tigers' Horton top DH

Sluggish Willie Horton, No. 3 career home run hitter on the Detroit Tigers with 248, won Wednesday the Outstanding Designated Hitter for 1975.

The award, co-sponsored by the American League and the Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader, went to Horton after the 5-10, 205-pound batted .275 as a designated hitter, hit 25 homers, drove in 92 runs and amassed 259 total bases.

A panel of writers, broadcasters and club public relation directors from the league's 12 cities cast 72 of the 81 votes for Horton.

Rookie Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox received four votes as runner-up. Two votes went to Billie Williams of the Oakland A's, and one each to Tony Oliva of Minnesota, Tommy Davis of Baltimore and Cecil Cooper of Boston.

League gym action begins

ists include Dave Scheible (side horse), Ron Alesia (tramp), Jim Tangney (P-Bars), Bob Lopotko and Glen Wilke (rings).

Rolling Meadows is led by returning all-around man Guy Owsiany and third in the state high bar specialist Keith Liszewski.

The Mustangs hit 128.27 in their opening meet with help of returning specialists Chris Hirth (FX), Bob Gauger (side horse) and Dave Bycroft (rings).

Arlington has been stung by the injury insect, too, losing top all-around man Mark Tike until at least mid-December with mono.

Head coach Tom Chapman has all-arounder Rob Erickson and specialists John Harwell (FX), Ken Hogrefe (side horse), Chris Smith (tramp), Larry Smith (P-Bars) and Kyle Chamblee (rings) on a team he hopes will hit in the 140s by the end of the season.

Buffalo Grove, which hit 121.01 in their opener and will get top all-arounder Dewey Deal back from a shoulder injury in mid-December, is a darkhorse with Phil Laier, Lee Battaglia and Mark Farrington carrying the hopes of coach Dennis Mazur.

Gymnastics is a sport of progression and if the league challenges progress as their coaches hope the MSL in 1975-76 is shaping into a real dogfight.

Chicago Jesters
Senior Division (Age 18 & 19)
 The Chicago Jesters entered the Minor Hawk Thanksgiving Tournament and won third place.
Jesters 8 vs. Minor Hawks 4
 The Minor Hawks dominated this game, and outshot the Jesters by 27 to 11. Marc Shipbaugh played well in the Jester net and stopped many hard Minor Hawk shots.
Jesters 4 vs. Galt Canada 3
 The Jesters and the Canadian team were evenly matched through two periods, before the Jesters scored two goals in the last eight minutes of the game to win. Jester goals were scored by Mike Budjovics, Don Wilson, Brad Sterling and Eddie Olczyk. Jester assists were scored by Scott Simon and Olczyk. The Jester defense played an excellent game and were led by Kevin Plunkett, Richard Dote and Wilson.

Jesters 2 vs. Spartans 1
 The Spartans outshot the Jesters by 22 shots to 15. However, the Jesters were able to put more shots into the net. Jester goals were scored by Billy Colacich and Eddie Olczyk. Assists were registered by Scott Simon, Mike Budjovics and Olczyk. Marc Shipbaugh played a super game in the Jester net. Tom Bukari, Scott Dume and Ken Spencer led the team in outshooting the Spartan club. Richard Dote, Brad Sterling, Scott Brunner and Kurt Kibak did an excellent job of backchecking and helping to protect the Jester net.

Jesters 3 vs. Little Caesars 2
 The Little Caesars team got off to a fast start by scoring on their first two shots to take a 2-0 lead in the first three minutes of the game. The Jesters then played catchup for the other three periods, and wound up on the short end of a 6-3 contest. The Jesters managed to outshoot the stingy Detroit team by 21 shots to 14. The Little Caesars team went on to capture the co-championship, with the Minor Hawks.

Swimming

Northwest YMCA

The Northwest Suburban YMCA's "A" swim team opened its 1975-76 season at Waukegan and came home with their first victory. The boys outscored Waukegan 204 to 123 while the girls posted a win of 248 to 101.

The team has an unusually long schedule this year with 11 more meets between now and the championships in March. A total of 121 young people make up the team which they have nicknamed "the Northwest Neptunes." This Saturday the "Neptunes" will host the Elmhurst team in the Blake pool at 10 a.m.

Ed Richardson is returning for his third year as head coach. Assisting Ed will be Paul Dyer (a former swim team member), James Ludlow and Yvonne Pritchett. First place winners only: one abstention and eight opposed. He said a final vote on whether to allow Veeck to buy the club if he comes up with more money was 10-0 in favor.

League nixes Veeck proposal

"The basic proposal was too much debt and not enough equity," MacPhail said. "Whenever we've had difficulties with some of our franchisees, in each instance it's been with teams that were underfinanced."

MacPhail confirmed that Veeck has until Dec. 10 to raise more money. When asked if $1.2 million was the figure, he said, "You're in the right area."

"He (Veeck) indicated it may be difficult with the time he has to come up with it (the money)," MacPhail said.

MacPhail said owners considered only Veeck's proposal at the meeting. He would not speculate on offers to move the franchise elsewhere if Veeck is unable to purchase it.

"We will have to cross that bridge when we come to it. Hopefully we won't get to it."

MacPhail said Veeck's debenture plan was unacceptable to the league because debentures represent debt. He said he defines capital for such a purchase as "unencumbered equity."

Ask Andy

Life depends on proper balance

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Rick Parker, 16, of Peoria, for his question:

WHAT DOES LIFE ON EARTH DEPEND ON?

Whole regions of plant and animal life perish in floods and in long scorching droughts. Late frosts or de-luging storms can wipe out a coun-try's corn crops, creating possible famine for people and animals. It seems that life on earth is quite frag-ile, and many things must be just right to keep it going.

Our planet supports more than a half-a-million different plants and twice as many different animals. All of them depend on a few basics, such as air, water and food. But each species has its own special needs, in-cluding a balanced diet and a suitable climate.

All this is possible because our spin-ning planet has a cloudy atmosphere, land and vast oceans. And it happens to be just the right distance from the radiant star we call the sun. Many other forms of life may survive on hotter or colder planets with less air and water. But life as we know it on earth depends basically on our air, water and global climate.

In the modern world, groups of se-lected animals share certain local-ities and depend upon each other. Prairie grasses supply food and shel-ter for many herbivores. A smaller number of meat-eating predators prey on the herbivores, thereby keeping their population within bounds, so that all the grass is not devoured. This sort of balanced ecology depends on living things that are adapted to a re-gion and to each other.

It has taken several billion years for life on earth to develop to its present complex stage of inter-dependence. When the story began, things were much simpler and the survivors depended on just the few basics. However, aside from sun, air and water, even the earliest animals depended on plants to provide food and oxygen. And the plants took some of their necessary carbon dioxide from gases breathed out by the ani-mals and benefited from animal-en-riched soil.

Most likely the plant and animal worlds have depended upon each other from the beginning. However, all species depend on the sun and the earth, with its oceans and breezy air, to supply their basic needs.

Through the long ages, certain plants and animals changed and adapted to cope with special regional conditions. Cactuses adapted to sur-vive in arid deserts. The polar bear is comfortable in the Arctic, where lions would shiver to death. The earth's multitude of living species depend on a few basics, plus a long list of spe-cial necessities, to make life bearable for this one and that one.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Nancy Brad-ley, 10, of Gastonia, N.C. for her ques-tion:

WHAT IS A FERRET?

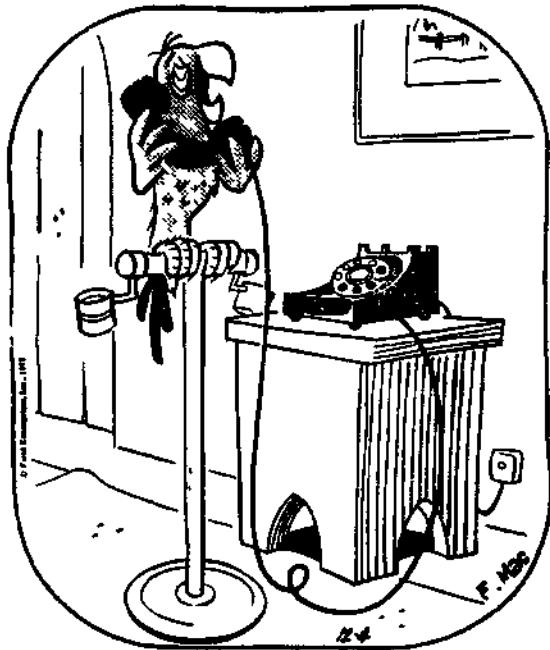

This peppy little member of the slinky weasel clan is a cousin of the polecat. We call him the black-footed ferret because his dainty feet are black. He is at home in the United States and parts of Canada. He feeds on freshly caught meat, and if he lives in the central region his favorite food is prairie dog.

Our black-footed ferret looks some-what like a large squirrel, though his tail is only six inches long. His furry coat is thick and silky for, after all, he is related to the expensive minks. His color is yellowish buff, with a pal-er shade on his tummy. He has black patches under his eyes and a black tip to his tail, which match his little black feet. True, he is a bloodthirsty little fellow, but we must admit that he is handsome, quick and graceful.

(Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. En-tries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.) (c) 1975, Los Angeles Times

Jim puts squeeze on in tourney play

Here is a hand that helped Jim Jacoby and Paul Allinger win the National men's pair championship back in 1956.

Jim sat South and passed over East's preemptive three-club opening. When Paul jumped to four hearts Jim used Blackwood four and five trumps. Since the five trump call guaranteed to Paul that they held all the aces, Paul jumped all the way to seven trump to try for a real top score. Honors don't count in match-point duplicate, but 10 points extra for notrump does.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

West opened the queen of diamonds and Jim saw that he had 12 top tricks and an automatic squeeze for the 13th. Only West could stop diamonds; only East could stop clubs. Proper timing would make it impossible for either one to stop spades. He cashed the two top diamonds and clubs and ran off hearts. On the last heart lead, East had to chuck a spade to keep a high club. Then Jim discarded his last club. It had done its work. West also had to go down to two spades in order to keep dummy's deuce of diamonds from being a winner and Jim had three spade tricks and his top score. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Planners seeking revitalized downtowns

Small-town charm vs. deterioration; volunteers, professionals ponder alternatives

by LEA TONKIN

Things are looking up for suburban downtown areas.

The faded look of yesteryear which reflected deterioration as much as small-town charm is giving way to central business district planning. In several Northwest suburban communities, ambitious volunteers and professionals are pooling their efforts to reach a common goal: to give people a reason to come downtown.

"The more you study, the more you find that we're really not unique," said Robert Bennett, chairman of the Mount Prospect downtown redevelopment commission. "Our downtown is getting older. The facilities were not built with today's type of uses in mind."

"WE HAVE MUCH in common with communities such as Evanston and Des Plaines, towns that recognize they've got a downtown problem," Bennett said.

Redevelopment of a central business district (CBD) does not come fast or cheap, however. Bennett said his commission planned to come up with a general plan for revamping the Mount Prospect downtown area by the fall of this year.

"We got sidetracked on a parking plan," he said. "In the short run, we'll work on this to completion."

Outside consultants were hired at one time to weed out unworkable CBD plans, Bennett said. "No matter what people would like to see downtown, there is an economic discipline on us," he said.

Downtown rejuvenation means different things to different people, Bennett added. Surveys show downtown Mount Prospect cannot compete with regional shopping centers such as Randolph and Woodfield.

"THE GOOD OLD days aren't going to come back," Bennett said. "In the final analysis, we're going to have to come up with a plan — it may be kind of corny — but to do the greatest good for the greatest number of people."

The preservation of the municipality's character will undoubtedly influence the final plan, "but I'm not sure what the downtown character is," he said. "To some people it's charming and small-townish. To others, its deteriorating."

Diversity of opinion also marks the planning procedure for downtown Arlington Heights development, said Joe Kesler, village planner. He works with a central business district special committee. "In the long range, we must sort out alternatives," Kesler said. "Financing is not the biggest problem, but trying to get approval."

SUBURBAN downtowns are in a difficult stage, said David Outhred, a planner working in Des Plaines and Palatine under a program administered by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government affairs.

Kesler said short-range CBD plans in Arlington Heights include proposed parking areas on village-owned land and a one-block pedestrian shopping mall. "If the people in town like this, then we can do more of it," Kesler said.

AMONG THE revitalization proposals are plans for construction of "air rights" development above railroad right of way and village parking lots. Downtown Arlington Heights cannot compete with the large downtown stores at Woodfield, Kesler said, but the community could shore up specialty store sales in a more attractive environment.

"The downtown of suburban communities is in a difficult stage," said David Outhred, a planning specialist who is working with Des Plaines and Palatine downtown planning groups in a program administered by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs. "There has been some decline," Outhred said. "You can't just wave a magic wand."

"What needs to be done is to establish the credibility of public and private coordination of work in the downtown area," Outhred said.

He cited the Superblock project in Des Plaines as an example of long-range CBD plans. The project, in the works for 10 years, was finally launched in September. A 10-story office building, a shopping mall and a parking garage are among Superblock's features.

OUTHRED SAID he hopes to work with Superblock planners on programs such as historic preservation and parking.

In Palatine, "very eager local people" are considering redevelopment plans for the community's downtown area, Outhred said.

"What I'm trying to do is to pull together some of the threads that have gone on before," Outhred said. Citizen involvement is important in the planning process, he said. Local organizations will be contracted in an effort to drum up redevelopment suggestions and support.

Outhred's work is a pilot program designed to test procedures developed by the Dept. of Local Government Affairs. Emmanuel Berk, an urban planner for the agency, said a downtown improvement manual was drafted to help Illinois communities solve the companion problems of congestion and decline.

Berk spoke at a recent community planning conference in Chicago. The session was sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry and the department.

A SIGNIFICANT BOON to planners, Berk said, is new legislation which allows municipal districts to issue revenue bonds to finance development. Cooperative efforts by volunteer and professional planners should result in "more creative and competitive plans for downtown redevelopment," Berk said.

Mary Means, Chicago-based regional director of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, said at the conference that efforts to revamp downtown areas should not eliminate character, "that special sense of time and place."

She criticized small-town efforts to emulate shopping centers, plastic facades, "mansard-itis" the spappy paint can approach and sandblasting. "The thalidomide baby of preservation," Ms. Means said, "Downtown can be revitalized and still retain its character. You don't have to sacrifice one to get the other."

Mel Helms, vice president of J. R. Gottlieb & Co., project developer for downtown Des Plaines' Superblock, said redevelopment should be a joint venture of the city, developer, merchants and financiers. Thanks to cooperative effort, land acquisition and other problems in Des Plaines were solved, he said.

Other conference participants included Jack Pettigrew of Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc., who discussed the downtown planning process, and Evanston City Manager Edward Martin, who outlined financing procedures. Charles Mosher of Barton-Aschman described landscape design and pedestrian improvements.

THERE IS A difference between available apartment units in the suburbs. Shop and compare, suggests Tracy Hill, vice president of Kimball Hill Inc., Rolling Meadows.

Apartment hunters, check for cleanliness, security

Slow down, apartment hunters.

Take your time to check and compare the features of area living units. Your rental decision will affect your personal comfort for some time, said Tracy Hill, vice president of Kimball Hill Inc., property management company, Rolling Meadows.

Hill suggested that prospective tenants keep a check list of the following features in an apartment complex:

- Is the property well-maintained? Check for signs of neglect such as peeling paint and litter.
- Are the public areas such as the hallways, clubhouse and mailroom well-maintained?
- Special features in the apartment development should be inspected. Is the swimming pool in good shape? Are tennis courts clean, and is the children's play area fenced and located in a safe place?

- Take a look at model apartments. Check for cleanliness.

• The refuse collection area is another check point. No matter what scavenger service picks up the garbage, building management is responsible for the site.

• Safety and security should be considered. Check the locks and security system in an apartment complex. Are fire extinguishers and smoke detectors highly visible? Does management allow tenants to use charcoal grills on balconies that have overhanging wood roofs, or other potential fire hazards?

- Check the number of elevators. Are stairwells well-marked and clear of debris? Do fire doors work easily?

• Ask about the policy for pet owners. Are pets allowed in any units, or do pet owners live in a separate building?

• Once you've been interviewed by the rental agent, turn the tables and do some interviewing for yourself. Find out as much as you can about the management firm. What other properties do they manage? Beware of the overly aggressive rental agent. Don't be pushed into a quick lease-signing.

The Kimball Hill firm manages apartments in Schaumburg and Chicago Heights.

Baird & Warner breaks records

Baird & Warner, Inc. will establish all-time company production and dollar volume records during November with the aid of 322 sales participations and $17,938,499 chalked up in October.

On the basis of those results, the 120-year-old diversified real estate company needs only to produce another 181 sales units and $4,971,715 in dollar volume to establish new marks. If it does so it will topple the production record of 4,123 sales set in 1972 and the dollar record of $243,433,000 reached last year.

Even though November is characteristically a slow sales period because of a long Thanksgiving weekend and related holiday travel and preparations, Baird & Warner officials expect to set the marks this month. Last November the company reported 199 transactions and more than $11 million. November totals the year before were 214 sales and more than $12 million.

October figures compared with 211 sales and $16,064,001 in the year ago month.

The residential division rose to 295 sales and $15,934,648 from 187 sales and $9,825,904 for the same month last year, according to Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general sales manager for the division.

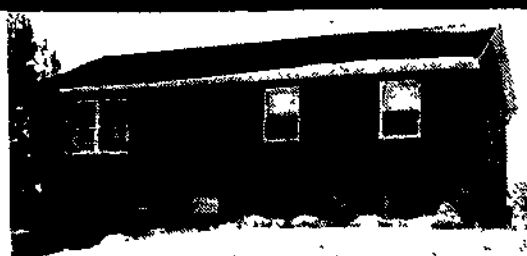

Commercial and industrial sales production increased from 24 to 27 sales for the month but dollar volume decreased from $6,238,097 to $2,003,851 for the period.

For the 10 months through October, production was ahead of last year by 457 units — 3,943 sales against 3,486 — and dollar volume was $30,085,402 higher on $238,471,285 compared with last year's $208,375,883.

Seven of the company's 30 offices pitched in with million-dollar-plus months in October, including: Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect combined for $1,915,206; Barrington, $1,418,660; Geneva, $1,294,900; Palos Heights, $1,161,900; Lake Shore, $1,133,500; Winnetka, $1,084,000; and Wheaton, $1,064,350.

Is gain on sale taxable?

Willingly or under compulsion, large numbers of Americans each year join the "mobile society" by selling their homes, noted Commerce Clearing House.

When one does so and realizes a profit, the question crops up: "Is the gain taxable?"

The gain may or may not be taxable; that depends on the particular facts. There is tax relief where the seller replaces his or her residence within a specified period, and the sale proceeds from the old residence and the replacement cost of the new one are substantially equal. Also, if the seller has reached the age of 65, he or she may lawfully escape tax on part or all of the gain without having to invest in another home.

To assist those concerned with the ramifications of this major decision, CCH announces publication of Tax Breaks for Buying or Selling a Home. This 32-page booklet discusses the tax implications of deferring gains tax on the sales of a residence and the possibilities of excluding gain on the sale of a residence.

Tax Breaks explains the possible tax benefits on the sale of a residence. Although these "tax breaks" have been available for some years, there are few court decisions construing the Internal Revenue Code provisions and the rulings and regulations that pertain to those benefits. A knowledge of those matters is important not only because residential sales are so frequent, but also because the Internal Revenue Service has an unlimited time in which to assess a tax deficiency on the transaction unless the seller files a statement with the IRS regarding replacement of the residence.

For the many persons whose dream of owning a home had not yet materialized, the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 offered encouragement in the form of a tax credit for the purchase of a new residence. This stimulus to home buyers and home builders is explained in detail.

Citadel Real Estate opens office

William Cowin

William Cowin, trustee on the Hoffman Estates village board.

Partners with Cowin are James Markgraf and John Smolenski. On the staff are Irene Markgraf, Andy Battler and Edmund Szozda.

Cowin, a life member of the Million Dollar Club of the Illinois Association of Realtors, said Citadel is involved in commercial and investment property as well as real estate management.

Performance set for December 6

The Mighty Homefinders Art Players will perform a musical play, "Oklahoma," (cq) in connection with their annual Christmas party. The Players are employees of Homefinders Realtors, 235 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine.

The Christmas party will be held for all employees at 6:00 p.m., Dec. 6, in Itasca Country Club, Itasca.

Written by Homefinders President Bob Zaun, "Oklahoma" is the sixth play written and produced by Zaun. This year's three-act play, a Western centering around a Chinese real estate broker in the Old West, includes a cast of 20 employees.

At the dinner party Zaun will give Christmas bonuses and award Million Dollar certificates to 17 salespeople.

Joan Miller

Joan Miller gains promotion

Joan Miller has been promoted to vice president of Robert L. Nelson Real Estate. She will continue as sales manager of the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Arlington Heights office.

Mrs. Miller has been with the Nelson Real Estate Co. since 1960. She joined the sales force in 1968 and has been a Million Dollar sales person for eight straight years during which time she has achieved a total of over 11 million dollars in real estate sales.

She resides in Arlington with her husband and family. She has been among the top real estate salespeople in the Nelson organization and in the entire MAP Multiple Listing Service since she began selling real estate in 1968.

Pepper builds office addition

Pepper Construction Company, a Chicago-based general contractor, has been awarded a contract of some $300,000 to build a 7,000 square-foot addition to the existing office building of Power Systems, Inc., Schaumburg.

The two-story steel and masonry office addition of 1211 E. Tower St., is scheduled for completion during March, 1976, said Richard Mueller, Pepper project engineer.

Comprehensive Planning Corp., Chicago, is the project architect. Power Systems, Inc., owner of the building is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Fischbach & Moore, Inc., and is a mechanical contractor serving the utility industry.

Everything Bolger Touches Turns to "SOLD"

Kunkel expansion is successful

The sales staff at the new Arlington Heights office of William L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, has sold over $3.7 million worth of real estate, all closed residential transactions since February.

Kunkel opened the office in January after amassing enough records and repeat customers in 50 years of service in Des Plaines to serve as its own marketing consultant on the Arlington Heights expansion question.

As Ralph Martin reports, "We could see several trends just by pulling together facts from our files. For example, many of our customers located in the Des Plaines area were relocating further out.

"Our listings and sales in the Arlington Heights area have been steadily increasing since 1970, over the previous decade. Our commercial-investment division had access to shopping center and industrial park development data indicating a fantastic growth pattern for the area."

Under the direction of John Bye, manager, and Jim McLaughlin, assistant manager, the Arlington Heights office became home-base for 13 real estate professionals.

Both Bye and McLaughlin are members of the Illinois Association of Realtors' "Million Dollar Sales Club" for achieving yearly sales in excess of $1 million.

All of the Kunkel sales associates are residents of the area they serve. Bye, McLaughlin, Bernard Joquin, Diana Loneragan, Parker Calahan, Betty Conley and Martha Wisbacher reside in Arlington Heights.

Others are from nearby communities served by Kunkel: Al Prusko, Rolling Meadows; Gary Pemberton, Hoffman Estates; Virginia Gearhart, Chuck Frieberg and Patricia Gutzmer Davis, Des Plaines; and Ed Barth of Glenview.

In June, despite the uncertain economy, Kunkel Des Plaines-Arlington Heights set an all-time record for monthly sales and listings.

According to Bye, the future looks good for Kunkel's new venture. "It's becoming easier for our customers to get mortgage money and the rates are gradually improving. There are good indications, too, that the new home construction market, which has a direct positive effect on existing home sales, is also picking up.

"With the high morale of the Kunkel staff, plus the good news that an upswing in the economy is just around the corner, I feel confident that we're here to stay and will grow with the Arlington Heights area."

Daniel Caporusso

Daniel Caporusso passes $1 million

Daniel Caporusso, sales manager of Quinlan and Tyson's Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office, has gone over the million mark in sales again.

This is the second straight year that he has topped the million level.

Since joining Quinlan and Tyson in April of 1973, Caporusso has rolled up a career sales total of $3 million. Last year, he received the Quinlan and Tyson Award of Excellence for having the best first year in real estate with Quinlan and Tyson.

A licensed real estate broker, Caporusso is a Realtor member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. He graduated from the Quinlan and Tyson Institute.

Caporusso also is working toward completion of courses leading to the G.R.I. designation.

Caporusso and his wife, Nora, live in Mt. Prospect.

To rent or own your home?

Buy a house or rent an apartment — which alternative is best is a question that draws endless debate and probably won't ever be answered to everyone's satisfaction.

"From a numerical standpoint, the figures favor the homeowners who constitute 62.9 per cent of the families in the U.S., according to the 1970 census," reports William D. Sally CPM, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., and general manager of the company's property management division.

"But in Chicago, the odds are reversed, with renters making up 65.1 per cent of the household," he noted. "If you include the suburbs, the figure is 41.1 per cent."

One reason renting is so popular in the city itself is that there are more rental units than houses available. The closer to the center of the city you get, the more expensive land becomes, and the more economically feasible renting is. In fact, owning a home other than a condominium (which is basically an apartment) in the center of town is prohibitive for most people.

But there are other reasons renting makes sense for many people, Sally noted. Among them:

Renting an apartment is easier than buying a house. In most cases, you pay only a month's rent and security deposit in advance and you move in. A house, on the other hand, requires a hefty down payment and a lot of paperwork.

Renting is flexible. If you don't like where you live, or if you have to move because of a job change or slump in income, you're bound only by the term of the lease, usually a year. By subleasing or re-leasing, you may get out even sooner.

When you rent, you have no maintenance worries. The landlord takes care of that. You're free to come and go as you please.

Renting means that the landlord, not you, pays the taxes, insurance, repair bills, etc. Certainly, these are built into the rent, but once you pay the rent, your worries are over, practically speaking.

Renting is a good way to get the feel of a community without making a commitment. If you like the area, you can buy later on.

Renting is great for people who don't want to be tied down but who like to keep moving from one location to another. It's also good for people who like to travel and vacation a lot, since they don't have to worry about taking care of the apartment.

"One of the major questions concerning renting vs. owning has to do with which costs more in the long run," Sally said. "Most people assume that because real estate values are increasing and because the homeowner is building equity through his mortgage payments, he will come out way ahead."

The difference isn't that great. John P. Shelton, a business administration professor at the University of California (Los Angeles) made a study of the economics of renting vs. owning. He concluded that the homeowner's net advantage per year is 1.98 per cent of the value of the house.

"The mechanics of Shelton's study are complicated, but what he did basically was figure that the landlord must pay more than the homeowner for maintenance, a vacancy allowance, management and income taxes, all of which is reflected in the rent," Sally said. "However, the landlord can take depreciation in figuring his taxes, which is a saving. The net difference is the 1.98 per cent advantage for the homeowner."

However, this 1.98 per cent saving can be wiped out if the homeowner keeps his house for less than four years. That's because the transfer costs of selling a house — agent's commission, title search, legal fees, survey and tax stamps, etc. — amount to 8 per cent of the value of the house on the average.

"The average American moves every five years," Sally said, "and the homeowner moves about every eight. So on a house sold after eight years, transfer costs would reduce the homeowner's advantage to 1 per cent a year."

Obviously, if you plan to stay in a location for four years or less, renting makes more sense.

But what about the advantage you gain when you sell your house for a price higher than what you paid for it? Prof. Shelton says this gain is often an illusion. The same inflation which raised the value of your house also raised the price of the next home you buy.

"If you sell your house and move into a cave or tent, you will have a capital gain," he said, and will have to pay taxes on that gain. "But if you buy a comparable house, then you will lose as a buyer what you have gained as a seller." In other words, you'll come out even.

Shelton's figures are one answer to the economics of renting vs. owning. Other authorities have figured that if the renter were to invest the money for a house down payment in some good stocks and bonds, he'd be money ahead of the homeowner.

"There has been no really satisfactory answer to the economic question," Sally said. "Whether you rent or buy, costs will continue to go up because of inflation and the rising levels of taxes, maintenance, insurance, fuel and so on. So a decision to buy or rent should be made largely on which form fits your lifestyle best. If your lifestyle changes, then you may want to shift from renting to owning or vice versa. But for flexibility and mobility, you can't beat renting."

Starck attends 2 meetings

Robert W. Starck of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, participated in two professional association meetings of leading American Realtors at one time recently.

Starck was in San Francisco for both the annual business and awards meeting of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, and the 68th annual convention of the National Association of Realtors RELO, founded at the NAR convention 15 years ago, announced a fiscal 1975 sales gain of over 19 per cent above last year's sales — a new all time record.

Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, became a RELO member in 1962. Starck is past treasurer and member of the Board of Directors.

MGM sales good

MGM Realty has had a record October in home sales, according to Robert B. Green, president. Sales for October, 1975, totaled $2,753,265 compared with $1,582,575 in the same month in 1974.

Green said the home sales market is unusually good for this time of year. He attributes the increased sales over last year to the availability of financing.

"Interest rates aren't as meaningful as we thought they were," Green said. "Most home buyers can afford the increased monthly payments due to higher interest rates. What they can't afford are the large down payments which were as high as 40 per cent to 50 per cent at this time last year."

MGM has offices in Wheeling, Niles, Skokie and Chicago.

2-bedroom condominium provides extra comfort

For the single person and young couple thinking of moving from their rented apartment and for the older couple whose children have grown and left home, the two-bedroom condominium is proving to be a popular attraction.

"Whether it's used as a bedroom or for some other purpose, a second bedroom and a second full bath provide that extra increment of space that makes for comfortable living," reports Jack McGlinn, sales manager of the Village on the Lake condominium community in Elk Grove Village.

"Besides that," he adds, "two-bedroom condominiums have appreciated considerably in value, rising about $1,500 a year as the costs of new construction go up. A two-bedroom condominium that we sold for $26,000 in 1971 sells for $32,000 today. And when our next building is started, I wouldn't be surprised to see a $2,500 increase."

But value appreciation aside, two-bedroom units are popular for numerous reasons:

For young persons, including singles and marrieds, the two-bedroom condominium offers expansion room.

"Most of our young buyers are former renters moving up from a studio or one-bedroom apartment," McGlinn said. "They tell me they don't want to be stuck in a one-bedroom unit, particularly if they decide to have their first child."

For older couples, the second bedroom is ideal as a place where visiting grandchildren can sleep over, or if the couple decides they want separate bedrooms.

Both young and older buyers like the idea of a second bedroom as a place for a den, at-home office, hobby room or guest room, McGlinn said.

At Village on the Lake, a variety of two-bedroom condominium homes are available at prices ranging from $32,490 to $39,290. Each has two full baths and a private balcony or patio.

According to McGlinn, the most popular two-bedroom home unit at Village on the Lake is the E unit. It features a 20-by-13-foot living room with sliding glass doors leading to a 14-by-6-foot balcony; a 9-by-8-foot dining room; 9-by-8½-foot kitchen; 16-by-11½-foot master bedroom suite with dressing area and full bath; 12-by-11½-foot second bedroom; and a second full bath.

The Village on the Lake community consists of 442 condominium homes in five fireproof buildings on a 28-acre site. Amenities include a 35-acre lake for sailing and fishing, four tennis courts and an outdoor heated swimming pool. The builder is United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co.

Furnished models are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. The development can be reached by taking Arlington Heights Road south to Biesterfeld Rd., in Elk Grove Village, then turn west two blocks to Wellington Ave.

Elk Grove building leased

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates recently announced the leasing of the one story industrial building located at 737 Fargo Avenue, Elk Grove Village to U.S. Pioneer Electronics Corporation. The move represents a major expansion for U.S. Pioneer Electronics Corporation, manufacturers and distributors of stereo and electronic equipment.

Edward A. Rowe and Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented both lessor and lessee in the $1,300,000 lease transaction. The building was designed by Robert L. Friedman & Associates, Ltd. Attorneys were James Frankel of Ettelson, O'Hagen, Ehrlich and Frankel for the lessor and Joel Kellman of Davis, Stafford, Kellman and Fenwick of Palo Alto, California for the lessee.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has also been named exclusive agent to sublease U.S. Pioneer's present one story 29,633 office and warehouse facility located at 1500 Greenleaf, Elk Grove Village.

Schultz wins trip

Lakewood Realty and Mortgage Corporation announced that Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has won a one week all expense trip to Jamaica as the cooperating broker in transactions with total consideration in excess of $137,000.

Schultz was instrumental in the leasing of the following spaces: Solar Division, International Harvester - 3,075 square feet, Boehringer Mannheim Corporation - 3,075 square feet, Glenn Dunn Studios - 3,680 square feet, G. M. Chemical Company - 1,440 square feet and David Corporation - 1,600 square feet.

Tower Industrial and Office Plaza, only 10 months old, is now 90 per cent leased with major tenants including Amoco Oil, Nena Cosmetics, Nordens Corporation, Woodfield Bank and Krenner Automation, Inc.

Vernon E. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was sole broker in all five lease transactions. Gregg Loesch of Lakewood Realty represented the ownership in these transactions.

THE CROSS-BEAM effect on the wall behind the bed is interior designer Richard Honquest's way of adding unusual interest to a large wall surface. In the corner next to the window, a mirror creates the effect of an entrance to another room. The bedspread is a brown, gray, cocoa and rust floral pattern on a natural linen background; the same material is used for the drapes. Campaign chests for the nightstand and dressers and a Parsons table for a desk in the corner complete the scene in this Village on the Lake two-bedroom condominium.

Three top million mark

Three salespeople from Roger A. Evans Realtors have each been involved in real estate transactions over one million dollars this year. They are Linda Orris, Jeff Stone and Dave Beakey.

Linda Orris has been with the firm since spring of this year.

Jeff Stone has been with Evans almost three years and has passed his million dollars in volume with a combination of home sales and industrial and commercial leases. Stone has extensive knowledge on residential financing including VA-FHA.

Dave Beakey has been with Evans for over three years and has been successful not only in residential sales but also in transactions involving commercial and vacant property.

For the second time in four years the Oldsmobile division has captured third place in domestic sales for a model year.

1975 model year-end figures released today show Oldsmobile holding a firm grip on third place with the delivery of 575,640 cars, 110,230 ahead of its nearest rival. This also surpasses the division's 1974 model year total by 8,394.

Oldsmobile closed out the model year with the strongest month and 10-day period in two years. During the last 10 days of September, Oldsmobile delivered 30,705 cars to boost the monthly total to 66,691.

Divisional officials said Oldsmobile's share of the domestic market will reach an all-time high when figures are finalized soon.

Other model year totals are 27,621 Starfires, 38,731 Omegas, 115,753 Eighties-Eights, 75,225 Ninety-Eights and 21,258 Toronados.

"In looking ahead to 1976 we are confident we have the products, the people, the dealer network and the sales momentum going for an even better year," Buxton emphasized.

This marks Oldsmobile's second third-place model year finish in modern automotive history. The division was third in 1972 and fourth during the last two years. The automotive industry model year is from October 1-September 30.

Marion Kminek sells $1 million

Marion Kminek of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors, has sold $1 million of real estate this year.

A real estate sales representative in the firm's Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area office, she topped the mark in November.

Mrs. Kminek joined Quinlan and Tyson in August of 1973 after previous experience selling area property. She holds the G.R.I. designation and has graduated from the Quinlan and Tyson Institute.

Mrs. Kminek is a long-time resident of the northwest suburban area. She and her husband, Frank, have five children.

Extend gift plants blooming period

The blooming period of potted plants can be extended if you give careful attention to watering, light and temperature, says James E. Schuster, horticulture extension adviser at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service.

Greenhouse pampering is the main secret of producing these potted beauties, he says. All potted plants enjoy almost daily watering in the greenhouse. The consistent waterings develop pure colors and quality foliage. If you allow your gift plant to dry out, many days of beauty may be lost.

You can determine when to water by feeling the top of the soil in the pot, Schuster says. When the soil feels dry, apply enough water to create a small surplus. A little water in the pan under the pot indicates the soil is well moistened. After a half hour, pour off the extra water to prevent waterlogging of the soil.

Locate plants near windows — but not in direct sunlight — to help the plants grow and maintain their rich, green foliage, Schuster advises. Faded flowers and faded foliage are signs of poor lighting conditions.

Temperature control can stretch the life of flowers and potted plants by 25 per cent. An ideal situation for poinsettias calls for night temperatures near 60 degrees F. and daytime temperatures near 75 degrees F. Move your plant to a cooler room every evening, Schuster advises, then back to the bright living or dining room each day.

Executives to change at Venture Stores

In accordance with his long-standing agreement with The May Department Stores Company, John F. Geisse, chairman and chief executive officer of the Venture Stores, Inc. discount division of May, will become a consultant to May in the spring of 1976, it was announced recently. At that time, he will be succeeded as chief executive officer of Venture by John T. Lundegard, president.

The Venture discount store at Dempster and Elmhurst, Mount Prospect, is part of the May Company.

David E. Babcock, chairman of the board of the parent May company, said Geisse "undertook the challenge in 1969 of building Venture as a brand new discount store operation with the understanding that he would only be available until the division was solidly on its feet as a functioning unit."

Babcock said that Lundegard, who is 44, moved from the position of a vice president and general merchandise manager of the May Co., California department stores to Venture 2½ years ago to work with Geisse in preparation for becoming chief executive of Venture in 1976.

Venture today operates 20 large stores with 3,063,000 square feet in the St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago metropolitan areas and in Peoria, Illinois and Springfield, Missouri.

Sale of existing homes active

Sales of existing single-family homes in September continued to be the most active segment of the real estate market, reports the National Association of Realtors Department of Economics and Research.

The seasonally adjusted volume index (1972=100) climbed eight points to a record level of 119, surpassing the previous sales high of 112 established in February, 1973.

The advance in sales was broad-based, and the seasonally adjusted volume index achieved new highs in each of the four regions of the nation. But, while gains in existing home sales have been impressive, prospects for continuation of the trend depend heavily on maintaining favorable conditions in the mortgage market, the department reports.

Median sales price of an existing single-family home in September rose to $35,769, 10.2 per cent above the median reported in September, 1974.

The advance reflects a further reduction in the percentage of homes available at less than $30,000, and an increase in the percentage of transactions occurring in the upper price ranges.

Price advances by region were varied. In the Northeast region, the price rise in a year's time was 11.1 per cent to $40,960; Western region, 14.3 per cent to $40,860; Southern region, 7.8 per cent to $34,470; and North Central region, 9.2 per cent to $30,560.

Homes containing four or more bedrooms accounted for 28.4 per cent of September existing single-family home sales, and sold at a median price of $49,000.

Three-bedroom homes — which accounted for six per cent of September sales — sold at a median price of $34,820. Homes with two bedrooms or less sold at a median price of $27,170, and accounted for 17.6 per cent of September sales.

The existing home sales report series is based on data submitted monthly to the Department of Economics and Research by about 140 boards of Realtors across the nation. Data reflects actual sales prices, not offering prices, for homes during the month.

Oldsmobile attains record sales

Oldsmobile sales reached their highest level in two years with the delivery of 72,913 new cars in October.

"This surpasses last October's total by nearly 20,000 and represents Oldsmobile's strongest month since October, 1973, when more than 75,000 cars were sold," said William J. Buxton, divisional general sales manager.

Oldsmobile, which continues to maintain a strong hold on third place in domestic sales, is well ahead of last year's performance. Since January 1, 517,357 Oldsmobiles have been sold, up 18 per cent over the 446,945 delivered in the first 10 months of 1974.

Oldsmobile concluded October with 28,171 sales for the second strongest 10-day period this year. A breakdown for the October 21-31 period shows 615 Starfires, 1,679 Omegas, 15,463 Cutlasses, 5,288 Eighty-Eights, 4,166 Ninety-Eights and 960 Toronados.

Roger Evans

Evans' sales up

Roger H. Evans has announced sales by his Prospect Heights real estate firm for 1975 have gone up 80 per cent from the previous year.

"I see the firm's involvement in two multiple listings as being demonstrative in making us one of the strongest single office operations in the area. I anticipate our listings and sales will continue to grow," Evans said.

Does your snow melt on roof?

Snow on the roof sometimes signifies plenty of heat below. If the snow on your neighbor's roof is melting while yours is sitting up there day after day it indicates that a lot of his house heat is escaping by way of his roof, while yours is not. You probably have adequate insulation above the ceiling which keeps the heat inside the rooms, where it should be.

If yours is the one that is melting, then you have a problem. It shows that a good part of your heating dollar is escaping to the outside too quickly, reminding the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Single family homes remain popular

Paraphrasing Mark Twain, "reports of the demise of the single family home are greatly exaggerated." So emphasizes Thomas W. Dooley, executive vice president of Gallery of Homes, Inc.

Addressing a meeting of Gallery affiliates attending the recent National Association of Realtors convention in San Francisco, Dooley reported that statistics recorded by Gallery licensees throughout the nation indicated a "substantial resurgence of activity in the single family detached home."

"The upswing in the national economy is very pronounced in the 'used home' market," Dooley said, "especially in suburban areas of metropolitan centers."

"Activity in prime established residential areas is not surprising," Dooley explained, "in light of the tremendous slow down in new construction during 1974 and 1975."

"Another factor is the current level of accelerated home sales activity," Dooley stipulated, "is the resurgence in the employee transferee activity of major corporations."

"During the depths of the recent recession," Dooley explained, "employers severely curtailed normal movement of key personnel from one company location to another. It was part of a general 'belt-tightening' procedure."

"Now, both the economy and the pent-up need for personnel changes have given rise to massive movement of corporate manpower."

An analysis of transferee activity handled by Gallery's International Relocation Service indicates a thirty-five per cent increase during the third quarter of the year compared to the similar period in 1974 and a twenty-seven per cent increase over second quarter activity.

Given the alternatives, Dooley suggested, the vast majority of home seekers prefer to live in single family homes.

"While such a preference might be expected among family groups with children, we also detect a discernible trend on the part of newly married couples — and singles — toward home ownership."

"An influencing factor in this trend is the growing realization that historically home ownership has been an effective hedge against inflation, providing in most cases, acceleration in value which has out paced the general economy."

"Above all else," Dooley contended, "the preference for single family homes is based on an individual's realization that it is only in such a structure that he can best express his particular life style."

"Apartments, condominiums, even mobile homes, have their justifiable place in the over-all housing market," Dooley asserted, "but normally they are accommodations to temporary individual circumstances rather than the fulfillment of first choices."

The "first choice" — by a wide margin — Dooley believes remains "one's castle" — the single family detached home.

Bob Green

Green hits million mark

Village Realty in Elk Grove announced that Bob Green has become a member of the 1975 Million Dollar Sales Club.

Green began his real estate career with Village Realty in September, 1972. He currently resides in Elk Grove with his wife, Joann, and his two sons. He is currently an active member of the Elk Grove Lions Club.

Fashion show is planned

The Holy Trinity Philopetochos Society will present "Snowflakes and Silhouettes," a fashion show by Michelle Gabrielle of Rosemont, Dec. 9 at the Diplomat Restaurant, Chicago.

Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. Donations are $10 per person.

Associates attend convention

The National Convention of the National Association of Realtors held in San Francisco November 8-13 was attended by Robert W. Starck, John Kottelba, Carmen Kerrigan, and Mary Jane Starck, all of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors.

They also attended the annual meeting of RELO, nationwide real estate service organization, on November 17. Robert W. Starck & Co. will receive an award for selling over $8 million in referral sales during 1975, a record that was bettered by only six other members out of 820 broker-members of RELO.

Tandy shows continued gains

Tandy Corporation (NYSE), parent company of the Radio Shack electronics store chain, reported a sales gain of 30 per cent in their continuing electronics group for the first quarter of their 1976 fiscal year.

For the three months ended September 30, Tandy reported sales of $139,320,693 from continuing operations. For the same period last year sales were $107,048,556.

Net income was $8,389,877 compared with $4,036,325 last year. The strong increase in net income is attributed to the sales gain in the company's electronics group, a reduction in unprofitable operations, and a reduction of interest costs.

Earnings were up 108 per cent to $1.20, with the electronics group (Radio Shack) contributing $0.93. Last year, for the same quarter, earnings were $0.65, with Radio Shack contributing $0.44. Average shares outstanding on September 30, 1975 were 9,006,571, compared to 9,214,306 a year ago.

Tandy Corporation recently completed all requirements to spin off two new companies, splitting the concern into three parts. Under the plan, Tandy Corporation will continue its consumer electronics business, represented by Radio Shack, Tandy International Electronics, Tandy Electronics Manufacturing and Allied Electronics.

The corporation's hobby and handicrafts business will be spun off as Tandy Crafts, Inc. and its leathergoods manufacturing business as Tan-

Investors dine at Chez Paul

The 25 investors in the new Chez Paul Restaurant being built in Rolling Meadows, were the guests of Will Contos, president of Chez Paul Restaurant, at a champagne dinner at the Chez Paul Restaurant in Chicago, Nov. 25.

The organization, known as C. P. Associates, was co-hosted by Dwight Walton, president of Walton Properties of Arlington Heights.

The new Chez Paul Restaurant is scheduled for completion in May of 1976 at Route 53 and Euclid Road in Rolling Meadows, and will feature authentic Country French architecture and a landscape of ponds and specimen trees from the typical French countryside.

HOW IMPORTANT ARE RESUMES?

A resume is your first impression with a potential employer. It is the only effective method to present your credentials when applying for a job.

Unfortunately, a resume will frequently ELIMINATE an applicant that will secure the all-important interview.

Now can you overcome this obstacle? Your resume must be composed so that it DEMANDS attention and at once presents you as a logical choice for employment.

Phone for details or a no-obligation appointment. Since 1957, we have assisted men & women on their first job, in the senior executive.

Economic expansion due: report

The U.S. will experience a significant economic expansion during 1976, accompanied by continued high unemployment and 5 to 6 per cent price increases, said Herbert Neil Jr., Harris Bank vice president and economist.

In a report released this week by the Chicago bank, Neil said real gross national product will increase 6 per cent next year. Consumers, business and government will contribute to the rise in spending, he said.

Neil said the "financial position of most consumers and businesses has improved from a year ago."

Among the 1976 developments forecast by Neil are:

- A moderate increase in business inventories.
- Record corporate profits, spurring new plant and equipment expenditures.
- A 10 per cent gain in consumer spending.

The economist said his forecast hinges on the assumption of a continued moderate growth in the money supply.

"High unemployment poses the greatest challenge to economic policyholders in 1976," Neil said. He contends that expansionary fiscal and monetary policies aimed at reducing the jobless rate could cause a rapid rise in interest rates and a slowdown in economic expansion.

The 1976 elections will provide a clue to Americans' preferences between reduced unemployment and "avoiding a resurgence of double digit inflation," he said.

Neil said the 1976 federal budget deficit of $60 billion may cause increased rates on U.S. government will be available to meet the capital securities. He warned that without a sharp decline in U.S. Treasury borrowings, "it is doubtful whether funds will be available to meet the capital requirements of the next decade."

Northwest bar slates party

A Christmas party is slated Dec. 10 by the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. The gathering will be at the Elks Club, 405 Lee St., Des Plaines. A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. Reservations are required.

Manufacturers not expanding purchases

The U.S.'s 1,000 largest manufacturers are not expanding plans for plant and equipment purchases, despite increasing profits during the past six months.

In a Conference Board report released Wednesday, third quarter 1975 plans for $10.8 billion in capital investment is reported for the 1,000 largest U.S. manufacturers. The New York-based, non-profit group said figure compares to $11.1 billion in appropriations during the second quarter of the year. The planned expenditures are a .1 per cent increase above second quarter plans when petroleum industry is excluded.

Although spending for capital projects is at record levels, the latest appropriations data indicates companies are using profits to improve liquidity rather than plowing them back into business. Appropriations are authorizations to spend money in the future.

Capital expenditures are actual outlays.

Durables and non-durables manufacturers' appropriations were unchanged during the quarter. Within these categories, non-ferrous metals plans dropped 30 per cent, while rubber and food and beverages increased 83 per cent and 69 per cent, respectively.

Total expenditures rose 2 per cent during the quarter. Manufacturers cancelled $8 billion in third quarter appropriations for a total of $2.4 billion during the first three quarters of the year.

Elliot Grossman, Conference Board economist, said capital spending will decline 1 per cent in 1976. He adds that appropriations may increase 14 per cent during the coming year, setting the stage for spending increase in 1977.

Machine tool industry needs marketing jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The machine tool industry in the United States needs to do a lot better marketing job, particularly in the Communist world, says a top trade association official.

James A. Gray, executive vice president of the National Machine Tool Builders Assn., said the industry is much too complacent over a steady but modest rise in its dollar sales. "Actually, if you discount the sales for price inflation they're a little behind those of 1967, the industry's last really big year," he said.

Meanwhile, the domestic machine tool builders have seen their share of the international market drop in 10 years from 21 per cent to 9 per cent.

NOW WEST GERMANY and other European Common Market countries have 56 per cent of the international market and Japan, coming from nowhere, has grabbed 4 per cent of the international export market, and 11 per cent of the total global market which includes all domestic and export sales combined.

Counting domestic sales, the U.S. machine tool builders were making one-third of the world's output in the mid 1960s. Now they make only about 20 per cent.

Foreign producers also have grabbed about 10 per cent of U.S. domestic machine tool market.

Gray said it is difficult to translate dollar sales into unit sales for yearly comparison purposes because one new machine may do the work of two older machines.

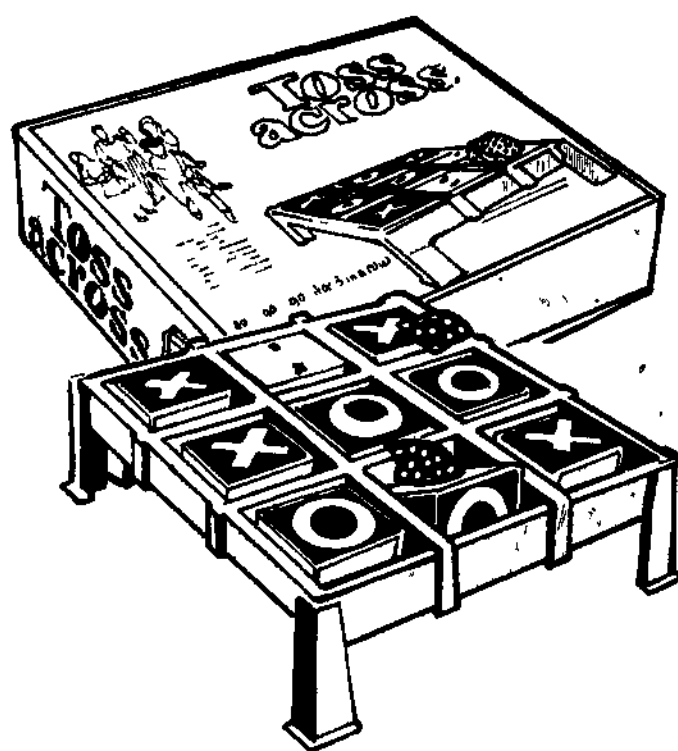

FOR MANY YEARS, American machine tools sold on quality and function and the manufacturers made little or no effort to compete on price with foreign cutting, grinding and milling machines. But the West Germans, other Europeans and Japanese gradually narrowed the technological gap.

Seymour Melman, professor of industrial engineering at Columbia University, warned about a decade back that this would happen. He said the U.S. machine builders were not putting enough money and effort into research and development.

Corporation declares quarterly dividend

General Employment Enterprises, Inc., declared a regular quarterly dividend of 4 cents a share payable Dec. 20 to shareholders of record Dec. 5.

Herbert Imhoff, chairman and president of the Chicago firm, announced a profit for the third final quarter of the fiscal year, but noted a loss for the entire year.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, net revenues declined 34 per cent to $2.17 million compared to the same period a year earlier. Net income per share was 3 cents compared to the previous 18 cent figure.

For the full year ended Sept. 30, net revenues dropped 25 per cent to $8.74 million compared to $11.66 million a year earlier. The net loss was $143,866, or 15 cents per average common share in contrast to the year-earlier profit of $611,225 or 63 cents a share, including an extraordinary credit of $101,000 or 11 cents a share.

The firm's area offices include the Business Men's Clearing House and Computer Centre, Palatine.

American Hospital Supply reaches $1 billion mark

American Hospital Supply Corp., Evanston, recently reached the $1 billion annual sales mark.

Founded in 1922, the firm achieved sales of $77,800 during its first year of operation as a distributor of hospital supplies and equipment in the Midwest. The multinational company has facilities in Mount Prospect

Last call to purchase 'rag top'

by EDWARD S. LECHTZN
DETROIT (UPI) — About 14,000 people with $11,000 in their pockets are going to get the chance to share in a bit of automotive history — buying one of the final U.S.-built convertibles.

The Cadillac Division of General Motors plans to build just 14,000 "rag-tops" before the convertible joins the running board, hand crank and rumble seat as a part of the auto industry's past.

Ed Kennard, Cadillac's general manager, predicts the last of the Eldorado convertibles will become a collector's item. He's already had several letters from people who want the last one off the line.

"Maybe we should make the last 2,000 exactly the same, call it something like the 'Finale' and get an extra $200 or $300 for it," Kennard jokes.

But his humor might not be too far from the mark.

Through October, Cadillac sold 3,409 of the 1976-model Eldorado convertibles — 6.9 per cent of its total sales. That compares with 3.4 per cent convertibles in the 1975-model year and just 3.1 per cent the year before.

"And it's not even convertible season," commented one Cadillac spokesman. He didn't want to predict how long it would take before the last convertible is built in Detroit.

GM's other divisions ended convertible production with the final 1975 models this past summer. Ford Motor Co. got out of the business in 1973 when a Mercury Cougar rolled off the line and Chrysler and American Motors have been out of the soft-top business for years.

"The only reason we can continue to offer a convertible is because we bought 14,000 tops last year and stored them," Kennard says. "All of the top makers have gone out of the business."

The last was the Ashtabula Bow Socket Co. in Ohio which had originally built the folding tops for buggies.

Cadillac built 9,000 of the 36,964 convertibles GM sold in 1975. That's a far cry from 1965 when a record 510,693 soft-topped cars were sold.

While U.S. firms are out of the convertible business, several foreign automakers have no intention of getting out.

British Leyland offers four sporty models — two MGs and two Triumphs — which account for one-third of those cars' sales. Fiat and Porsche also offer convertibles or models with removable tops.

"Convertibles are a big part of our business and we don't intend to lose it," says a British Leyland spokesman.

The convertibles from British Leyland and Cadillac indicate where the market has been heading for years — to the sports or luxury models.

When Buick began 1976-model production it marked the first time in its 73-year history that there was no "open" car in its lineup. The news that 1975 was the last year brought a rush of orders and spokesmen say they had to turn away about 200 customers who wanted one of the last Buick convertibles.

Buick didn't officially list a "convertible" until 1931, but it actually started building a car with a folding top back as far as 1909. One of the drawbacks of the early "roadsters," as it was called, was the difficulty in putting up the top.

One ad pulled from Buick's files shows a man putting up the top alone and the caption read: "A One Man Top." In the same file is a newspaper cartoon showing a man and two women struggling with a top during a shower and the man saying: "Yeah, One Man and Two Women."

The electrically operated top in the late '30s eliminated that and gave the convertible the popularity boost that carried it into the mid-'60s when air conditioning, hardtops and vinyl tops cut deeply into sales, finally pushing it into museums.

The sunroof was the first alternative to the convertible. It's constructed of either steel or tinted and slides open manually or electrically to let in the light and fresh air. The latest innovation in "open air" motoring has been introduced by the Hurst Performance Co. of Warminster, Pa. The Hurst Hatch kits consist of smoke-tinted safety glass roof panels that lift out and stow away.

Available as options on four GM models, the panels lift out and leave the front-seat occupants with a near-convertible feeling. But there's still that old-fashioned problem of any convertible — putting them back in if a shower dampens the sunny Sunday drive.

10,000th student gets degree in 'hamburgerology'

The recent graduation of Hamburger University's 10,000th student marks a major milestone in the science of "hamburgerology," said the McDonald's Corp.

In special ceremonies held at the Hamburger U. campus in Elk Grove Village, McDonald's founder and chairman Ray Kroc presented a plaque to Douglas Nault, the 10,000th graduate. Nault is an assistant restaurant manager from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

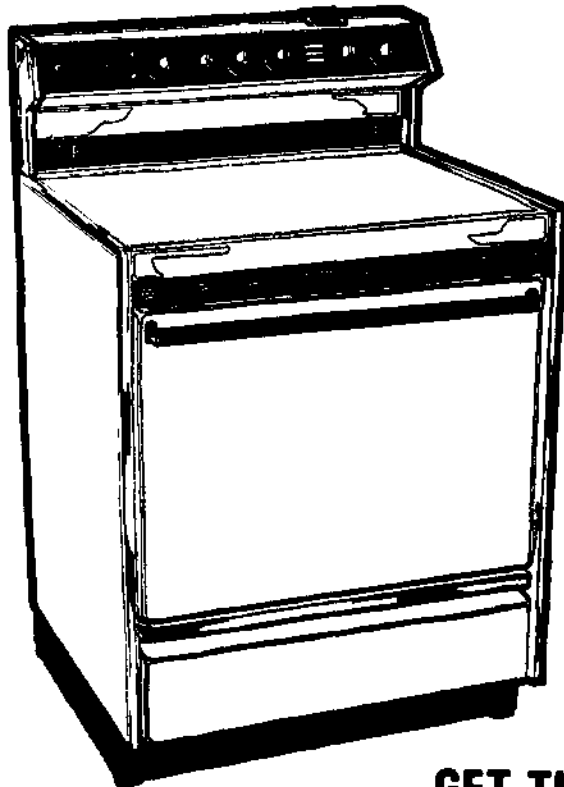

A new sign at the management training center, indicating "over 10,000 graduates" was unveiled during the ceremonies. Hamburger U. was opened in 1961. Licensees and managers for the McDonald's operation, based in Oak Brook, study marketing, accounting and other subjects.

From pre-holiday parties to the Christmas feast, and on through the start of the new year, there are numerous occasions when family and friends are invited to share the warmth of our homes with tables laden with tempting foods.

Here are recipes to fit into the less formal holiday occasions like ice skating, caroling, or trimming the tree.

Holiday Hospitality at Home

Pork Steak and Bean Bake

- 3 pork blade steaks (2 to 2½ pounds), cut ½ to ¾-inch thick
- 1 pound red beans (approximately 2 cups)
- 4 cups water
- ¼ pound salt pork, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon lard or drippings
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 4 cups coarsely shredded red cabbage
- 1 large onion, chopped
- ½ cup catsup
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Wash beans and place in Dutch oven or large pot. Add water, bring to boil, cover tightly and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat (do not remove cover). Let stand for 1 hour. Add salt pork and cook, covered, 2 hours or until beans are tender. Cut each pork steak in half (diagonally along bone) and brown in lard or drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add red cabbage and onion to beans and cook slowly, uncovered, 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Combine catsup, brown sugar and mustard and stir into beans and vegetables. Place mixture in a roasting pan or flat, rectangular 3-quart utility dish or casserole. Place meat on top of bean mixture, cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour or until meat is done. Serves 6.

Crowned Pork Patties

- 2 pounds ground pork
- 6 slices bacon
- 1 small avocado
- 1½ teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 6 thin slices sweet Spanish onion
- 6 slices tomato, peeled

Separate bacon slices and panfry until almost crisp. Immediately twist slices around fork to make curls. (Reserve drippings for Refried Beans.) Mash avocado until smooth and stir in lemon juice and ½ teaspoon salt. Divide ground pork into 6 equal portions and shape into flat patties ½ inch thick. Panfry patties, turning occasionally, 16 to 20 minutes, until well done. Season pork patties with 1½ teaspoons salt and the pepper on both sides and top each with an onion slice, a tomato slice, 1/6th avocado mixture and a bacon curl. Serves 6.

Fiesta Refried Pinto Beans

- 1 pound pinto beans (approximately 2 cups)
- 6 cups water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup bacon drippings
- ¼ cup chopped green onions
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
- ½ to 1 teaspoon crushed dried red chilies
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

Wash beans and place in saucepan. Add water, bring to boil, cover tightly and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat; do not remove cover. Let stand 1 hour. Add 2 teaspoons salt, cover and bring to boil. Reduce heat and boil gently until tender, 1½ to 2 hours, adding more water if necessary. Drain, reserving ½ cup liquid. Add 2 cups of beans to liquid and mash until smooth. Saute onions and green pepper in bacon drippings. Stir in mashed beans and cook, stirring, until drippings are absorbed. Stir in pimiento, chilies and salt. Cook over low heat 2 minutes. Stir in cheese and remaining beans and cook until cheese melts. Taste and adjust seasonings. To serve, sprinkle with additional shredded cheese and chopped green onions, if desired. Serves 6.

Ham and Bean Soup

- 1 ham shank (1 to 1½ pounds)
- 1 pound Great Northern beans (approximately 2 cups)
- 7 to 8 cups cold water
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon basil
- ½ teaspoon marjoram
- ¼ teaspoon red pepper
- 1½ cups carrots strips (1½ inches)
- 1½ cups sliced celery
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli spears, defrosted and cut in 1-inch pieces if desired

Wash beans and place in Dutch oven or large pot. Add water, bring to boil, cover tightly and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat; do not remove cover. Let stand 1 hour. Add ham shank, salt, basil, marjoram and red pepper to beans and liquid; cover tightly and simmer 45 minutes. Add carrots, celery and onion and continue cooking, covered, 1 hour. Remove ham shank; cut meat from bone, cut in small pieces and add to soup. Cut rind in pieces and add to soup, if desired. Heat to boiling, add broccoli, reduce heat and cook 10 minutes. Makes approximately 12 cups.

Need more finances for food program

by BERNARD BRENNER

American officials at the Rome meeting of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) pressed the FAO to restore emphasis on helping hungry nations feed their growing populations.

United States policymakers think the FAO, in recent years, has been putting too much emphasis on economic policy planning, including attempts to set up international commodity trade agreements.

Top administration farm officials led by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz are cool to the idea of agreements which seek to fix international commodity prices within narrow ranges and to allocate supplies. Government sources in Washington say the administration feels the FAO has been putting too much of its manpower and budget into "economic policy" activities at the expense of more vital work.

Butz, in a speech delivered early Nov. to the FAO conference in Rome, laid the U.S. stand out diplomatically but bluntly: "If we have strayed from the goal of producing more to feed more, and I think we have strayed, then it is time to get back on track. . . It is time to be more realistic and to do a better job of meeting our first priorities."

"FAO has the organization and the experience to provide world leadership in agricultural improvement. I think FAO should assert this leadership fully and not be diverted into sideline activities that drain away manpower and resources, returning too little for the investment expended," Butz added.

He did not, in his formal text, identify the specific FAO activities which should be cut back. But he said the U.S. delegation is discussing the specifics in committee meetings on the FAO budget for the two years beginning Jan. 1.

The pending FAO budget proposal for the 1976-77 period calls for $167 million compared with the $106 million budget for the two year fiscal period now coming to an end. The United States pays 25 per cent of the total budget, which means its share would go from the current $26.5 million to $41.8 million if the $167 million figure is adopted.

Officials in Washington said part of the proposed increase has a catch-up to cover the impact of inflation during the past two years, while part represents new steps recommended by a World Food Congress in 1974.

Butz, in his speech Thursday, said the FAO should put heavy emphasis on helping developing countries build strong national agricultural research agencies to find localized solutions to problems of booming food production. Also, he said, there should be heavy stress on improving local extension services and increased emphasis on promoting "policies under which farmers have incentives to produce and guidance in getting resources for investment."

U.S. cites canned precautions

Consumers are urged to carefully check home canned foods before using them, said Nancy Harvey Steertz, special assistant for consumer affairs in the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Although all home canners should ordinarily check the jars for spoilage, Mrs. Steertz said the increase in home canning this past summer and fall makes examination especially important.

A bulge or leak in home-canned items means the seal is broken and the food is spoiled.

In the opening of a jar, spoilage signs include spurting liquid and an off-odor. Also, mold or soft and mushy texture are indicators of spoiled food.

DO NOT USE such foods, said Mrs. Steertz, and be sure to destroy it so animals, children or adults do not inadvertently eat some of it.

Even if the contents appear edible, never taste home canned foods directly out of the jar, she said. Bring vegetables to a rolling boil, then cover and boil for another 10 minutes. Cover and boil meats and poultry for 20 minutes, she said. Heating usually makes any off-odor more evident.

If proper canning directions are followed closely by the home canners, Mrs. Steertz said there should be little spoilage from their products.

Heinz revolutionizes the frozen french fry.

It tastes like a real french fry because it fries like a real french fry. Maybe you've never thought about it, but frozen french fries don't really fry. They go on a cookie sheet, into your oven, and just warm up. That's why they taste less than terrific. To get good and crispy on the outside, stay nice and meaty inside, turn golden brown and all those good things—french fries oughta fry.

Well, we've come up with a fry that does fry. Right in your oven.

Our secret: a little vegetable oil. Heinz Frozen French Fries are sprayed with a misty, light coating of vegetable oil after they're frozen. So when you put them in the oven, they actually sizzle up and fry. It's an idea so simple, you wonder why no one's thought of it before. (We wonder why we never thought of it before.)

You can even hear them sizzle. Yes, you can. As soon as they start to get hot you can hear the frying noises start to happen. They sizzle and bubble and pop and fry. Instead of just lying there and quietly baking, like other frozen fries.

Compare with your favorite brand. You can hear the difference happening right in your oven. You can also see the difference. Heinz French Fries are more of a rich golden brown. They're also a better texture. Crisper on the outside. Tender and meaty inside.

Bite into one, you'll even get a crunch. And that leads us to the really important difference

Heinz French Fries taste better. They taste more like the real french fries that have been fried in a deep fryer. They taste like the ones you get from your favorite hamburger place. Or in a restaurant. Or if you've been lucky, like home-made ones made from scratch by some good old-fashioned cook.

So what you should do is buy some. You already know how convenient fries can be. They turn a sandwich, a hamburger, scrambled eggs, hot dogs, soup into a meal. Now you know there's a frozen brand that tastes like a fry ought to taste. So use the coupon. And fry some today. In your oven.

ITEMS AND PRICES IN THIS AD EFFECTIVE TUES., DEC. 2 THROUGH SUN., DEC. 7, 1975, AT YOUR SCHAUMBURG BUDGET FOOD STORE.

GOLF AND MEACHAM RDS, SCHAUMBURG (NEXT TO TURN*STYLE)

If you're looking for a food store that offers low prices on all your food needs — no matter which day you shop — you should visit your nearby Budget Food Store. Here, every day, whenever you shop, you'll find unusually low prices on all your basic food needs... groceries, produce, meats, dairy and bakery foods. It's true, as just one visit will prove. And, it's possible because at our store, you're helping to control food prices by doing things for yourself. (Like pricing and parceling your purchases yourself.)

And here's more good news! We also offer exceptional special values each week called "Green Tag Specials". They're not always advertised, so you'll want to watch for them as you shop. But, the important thing is that our lower everyday prices add up to bigger savings for you at the checkout! That's what you're looking for... and that's what the Budget Food Store is all about!

Herald food price survey

The news was not good for price-conscious food shoppers, according to a Monday morning survey of five chain food stores. Meat, dairy and egg and fresh produce sections showed substantial overall price increases compared to last month.

Prices in the dairy and egg sections took an especially hard beating in all five stores. No items in these sections showed decreases and only a few remained at last month's level. In many cases, a dozen eggs, a gallon of milk and a pound of butter were up at least 11 cents each.

These increases are due to higher production costs and a lower market supply compared to one year ago, according to the Food Marketing Alert of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

However, cranberries were up 10 cents a pound in some stores despite U.S.D.A. reports of a plentiful supply.

At Jewel cranberries jumped to 59 cents per pound package, up 10 cents from last month's survey. With the exception of yogurt and Jewel brand margarine, all items in the dairy and egg section were up 7 to 25 cents each. The meat section was more stable with lean ground beef down 30 cents from last month's reading.

Beef and pork items were up 20 to 40 cents from November at National. And only milk remained stable in the dairy and egg section. However, the fresh produce section had generally good buys with iceberg lettuce down 20 cents a head and Delicious apples down 12 cents a pound.

At Butera chicken dropped in price while the other meat cuts surveyed increased 10 to 30 cents a pound. Prices were also higher for all the foods listed in the dairy and egg section, but one gallon of milk was only $1.29 despite a 10-cent price hike and was the lowest of the stores surveyed.

Again, dairy and eggs were up at the A&P with only milk and ice cream priced at November's level. But of the five stores surveyed, the meat prices were most stable at the A&P with only pork chops increasing in price. Cranberries were also a good buy at 29 cents a pound package.

Meat prices were generally lower with particularly good buys in beef at Treasure Island. But, as with the other stores, dairy and eggs items were higher than last month. Small Delicious apples were only 18 cents a pound which offset a 20-cent-per head jump in lettuce prices.

Beef outlook brighter

A meat expert recently predicted more stable beef prices at retail meat counters because of the increase of cattle on feed and the placement of cattle in feedlots.

John L. Huston, vice president of the Chicago-based National Live Stock and Meat Board, based his belief on U.S. Department of Agriculture figures showing sharp increases in the number of cattle going into feedlots in seven leading cattle feeding states.

The USDA figures show an upsurge in placements in seven of the last eight months or 24 per cent higher than in 1974 for the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

"As more cattle go on feed, consumers will discover a continuing, steady supply of fed beef," Huston said.

"One of the major advantages to grain-feeding has always been the elimination of seasonal swings in beef supplies. The combination of stable quantities and stable prices will improve the picture for America's beef eaters." (UPI)

Points for buying citrus

Look for a plentiful supply of grapefruit on your grocer's produce shelves now, advises the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service.

To make sure you take home only the finest grapefruit, select firm fruit, springy to the touch. They should be well shaped, round or slightly flattened and heavy for their size. The skin should be thin and fairly smooth textured. Grapefruit may have a reddish brown or reddish yellow color over its normal color, but this russeting does not affect flavor, according to USDA.

Any kind of decay, which usually appears as a soft discolored area on the peel at either end, may affect flavor, making the fruit taste flat and somewhat bitter.

Fresh grapefruit will be best if stored in the refrigerator. Chilling enhances and brings out that nippy flavor.

From a nutritive standpoint, a half grapefruit can supply most of a day's Vitamin C requirements. And diet-conscious consumers will be glad to know half a medium sized grapefruit contains only 75 calories.

There's a variety of uses for these flavor favorites. Served raw or broiled, in sections or as juice, grapefruit can be used as an appetizer, salad, dessert, or as a meat or fish garnish.

Christmas without Jule Kaga?

Not for this cook's family

by LOIS SEILER

Jule Kaga, a traditional Scandinavian Christmas bread, is always prepared by Barbara Bresemann of Mount Prospect. She combined two recipes to achieve the desired results.

There is no guesswork in this recipe; exactly seven cups of flour are used. It makes three round loaves that are well-flavored with cardamom and generously dotted with candied fruit and currants.

Barbara often makes Jule Kaga four to six weeks before the holidays, and it freezes.

Being of both Norwegian and Swedish descent, Barbara incorporates ethnic customs from both nationalities into her Christmas preparations. Although she doesn't serve a traditional Scandinavian smorgasbord, she often makes Norwegian meat balls, which she serves either for hors d'oeuvres or dinner. Made from both pork and beef, the meat mixture is spiced with ginger, nutmeg and allspice. The meat balls are tender and juicy, and a gravy can be made with the pan drippings, if desired.

THOUGH BARBARA bakes a variety of cookies at Christmas, including some Norwegian specialties, her favorite is Scotch Scones. These, too, freeze successfully, which is a help to Barbara, whose hobby of grooming poodles keeps her quite busy. She and husband Bob train show dogs, too. They are members of both local and national Shetland Sheepdog clubs and Rand Park Dog Training Club.

The Bresemanns have two sons: Paul, who lives at home, and Bob Jr., who lives with his wife, Kay, in Blair, Neb.

JULE KAGA

- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening
- 2 cups milk
- 2 teaspoons cardamom
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 2 envelopes dry yeast

- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 7 cups sifted flour
- 1 cup mixed candied fruit
- 1/2 cup currants

Scald milk; add shortening, cardamom and salt. Allow to cool.

Beat eggs; add sugar. Add to cooled milk and shortening mixture.

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Add to above mixture.

Add four cups flour, one cup at a time, and mix well with a wooden spoon. Add candied fruit and currants. Gradually add remaining flour and mix well.

Turn out on lightly-floured surface and knead until dough is smooth and satiny and not sticky. Place in greased bowl, cover with tea towel, and let rise until double in bulk. When light, punch down and divide into three equal portions.

Place dough in three greased round 8 or 9-inch layer cake pans. Let rise, covered with towel. Brush gently with milk and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Bread should be nicely browned. Remove from pans immediately and cool on racks. Yield: three loaves.

NORWEGIAN MEAT BALLS

- 1 pound ground round steak
- 1/4 pound ground pork
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1/2 cup scalded milk
- 1/8 teaspoon ginger
- 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/8 teaspoon allspice
- Salt and pepper to taste

Have meat ground together three times. Beat egg and add to meat.

Slowly add milk and cornstarch to meat mixture, mixing well. Add remaining ingredients and mix well.

Form into small balls and brown in butter or margarine. Simmer slightly until done; add water, if necessary. Remove meat balls; add more butter to pan, if needed. To about 2 tablespoons pan drippings, add 2 tablespoons flour and brown slightly. Slowly add enough water, about 2 cups, to make a gravy of medium consistency. Season with salt. Return meat balls to pan. Serve hot. Serves 4 to 6 for dinner.

SCOTCH SCONES

- 3 tablespoons light brown sugar
- confectioners' sugar
- 1 cup butter
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Place brown sugar in a one-cup measure. Press down. Fill cup with confectioners' sugar.

Cream butter; add sugars gradually and cream well. Add flour gradually and beat in thoroughly. Form into two rolls, about two inches in diameter. Roll in waxed paper. Refrigerate overnight.

The next day, cut in thin slices about 1/8-inch thick. Bake on greased cookie sheets at 375 degrees about 4 to 6 minutes. Watch carefully; cookies should be white and not even brown around edges. Let cool and store in covered tin.

Milk, cheese expense evaluated by the Editors of Consumer Reports

(Fifth in a Series)

Did you know that one of the most expensive milk products is whole milk? Skim milk is usually more economical; cheaper still is instant nonfat dry milk that you reconstitute with water. And they're both better for you than whole milk, because most of the fat content is removed. Few of milk's valuable nutrients are lost in the fat-removal process. Though most of the vitamin A and Vitamin D content are lost, many brands of skim milk and instant nonfat dry milk are fortified with these vitamins.

While prices do change, nonfat dry milk will probably continue to be the least expensive milk available. A box of instant nonfat dry milk powder often sells for about 35 per cent less than the equivalent liquid skim milk. And liquid skim milk usually costs about 5 to 10 per cent less than whole milk.

Remember, make sure that nonfat dry milk you buy is labeled "Instant Nonfat Dry Milk." There are dry milks on the market labeled as instant dry milk products. These milk products contain more fat than nonfat dry milk.

PEOPLE WHO need a cheese that is easy to eat frequently choose cottage cheese. And people on weight-control or low-saturated-fat diets can benefit from cottage cheese's lower fat content.

But cottage cheese is not as nutritious as natural cheese or even pasteurized process cheese. While it does contain fewer calories and less fat than natural cheddar, it also contains less protein, calcium and vitamin A. If you always eat cottage cheese instead of natural or pasteurized process cheese, it is wise to increase your daily servings of fortified skim milk, leafy vegetables, and foods from the meat group.

"Diet" cottage cheese contains half the fat of even standard cottage cheese. But, in this case low-fat does not necessarily mean a significantly reduced calorie count. In the April 1974 issue of Consumer Reports, Consumers Union compared seven diet brands with regular cottage cheese. We found that while the diet brands did have less fat than regular cottage cheese, none scored much lower in calories than standard cottage cheese.

COTTAGE CHEESE spoils more quickly than other varieties of cheese, so don't buy the larger-size cottage cheese container unless you're sure you can use it all within a few days after purchase.

Cream cheese is not an adequate substitute for regular cheese or cottage cheese. For anyone on a limited budget, cream cheese is a luxury, not a nutritional necessity.

Book for child cooks

by BARBARA LADD
(a book review)

Two famous rag dolls have finally stepped into the kitchen scene. And with a somewhat dubious amount of culinary skill they lead young readers through a book of recipes.

The book, "Raggedy Ann and Andy's Cookbook," by Nika Hazelton (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc., $6.95) appears to be aimed at the 8-year-old age bracket. Definitely it is not adult material.

In all fairness, the recipes are clear-cut and extremely step-by-step. Nothing is taken for granted.

FOR EXAMPLE, in the directions for cleaning a fish, the first thing to do is catch one. Fish, that is. And the last step in any recipe is "eat."

In her instructions, the author has managed to develop a whole new vocabulary. "Stir like mad" substitutes for the "beat thoroughly" specified in other cookbooks. "Mash around" I think means "cream." And "soft and squishy" well . . . it might mean "soak thoroughly." But I don't really know. Maybe 8-year-olds do.

Then there is the advice. The pitch about cleaning up and washing the dishes is fine. It is probably also a good idea to not eat anything dropped on the floor. But under "Cooking Rules," is this bit of advice: "If you are cooking several things, make the ones that take the least time first. Make desserts first." (I always thought you started with the item that took longest and budgeted your time with that in mind. But maybe my mom taught me wrong.)

THROUGHOUT THE book are quotes from Raggedy Ann and Andy books: "Grampy Hoppytoad said as he climbed up onto Raggedy Ann's apron and blinked his large eyes, 'Open your mouths and shut your eyes and I'll give you something to make you wise.'"

Well, wisdom might be a bit sparse in Raggedy Ann and Andy's cookbook. But if you know a child who wants to learn to cook, this might not be a bad book with which to start. After all, the better children's cookbooks don't have the cute illustrations and quotes this one has.

Calculating cooks noted

A supermarket industry magazine that tracked shoppers' movements in stores on weekends says about five and a half per cent were using a calculator to keep running total of their purchases. "Progressive Grocer" said most calculators were plastic hand types, but a few were compact electronic models. The magazine theorized that usage of calculators reflect the shoppers' needs to watch their spending more closely.

Ornamental ideas

If you bake cookies for Christmas tree ornaments and plan to eat them later, wrap each cookie securely in transparent plastic and tie with colored yarn that can be used as a loop for hanging.

suburban living

PHOTOGRAPHY IS what Corey Plazak likes doing best, and he is studying in Chicago to become more professional at it. He shoots in the style of the late Diane Arbus. Some of his work is displayed on the walls of the Schaumburg apartment that is home to Corey and wife Barbara.

Theirs a spartan style of living

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Barbara Honorine-Agnes is not Mrs. Corey Plazak. But she and Corey Plazak are married . . . and have been four years.

Out of strong conviction and with her husband's wholehearted support, Barbara has dropped surnames and legally adopted her own full name, hyphenating the last two, names of her two grandmothers.

"Many women lose their heritage. They have no lineage except through their fathers, and because of societal pressures agree to take their husband's name when they marry. I want and need my own identity, Corey understands," said Barbara, who is 25.

Barbara Honorine-Agnes accomplished her name change with help from Center for Woman's Own Name in Barrington.

THE DECISION MAY have been influenced when her credit cards were reissued in Corey's name after they married. And though Barbara owned a car, Corey insisted on driving her in heavy traffic areas, a practice that limited her freedom, she pointed out.

"I was just trying to protect her. I was wrong," Corey acknowledged.

Such understanding and rapport developed the first time the pair met as students at Palatine High School, they recalled. "It was almost mystical. We both knew from the start there could be no one else in the whole world for either of us," Barbara said.

Both planned to attend college. Corey the University of Illinois and Barbara Harper College. But a car accident shattered Barbara's college nest-egg, and she began working at Palatine National Bank, staying five years.

COREY DECIDED he was not academically oriented, left U. of I. and began studies at Warsham College of Mortuary Sciences to learn a trade. He earned licenses in funeral directing and embalming and keeps those licenses up to date. Serving a one-year apprenticeship, he worked at Ahlgrim's Funeral Home in Palatine for three years.

"The money was good and mortuary science is a diverse and interesting field," Corey said.

However, neither Corey nor Barbara is now in their original job. "We want to be together full time, and just work to get along," they explain. After trying the steel business for a while, Corey now works for Plum Grove News Agency from 2 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., and Barbara for Wickes Furniture Stores part-time.

This decision fits their back-to-basics lifestyle. The young couple live simply in their Schaumburg studio apartment, along with two privileged cats, Cloudy and Buster. Vegetarians, they have eliminated anything that because of cost and/or time would keep them from doing what they like most. For Corey, that's photography and for Barbara, embroidery and textiles as art forms.

"ART IS PART of us, an extension of our beings, a form of communication," they explain.

Having snapped pictures since he was 10, Corey has studied and practiced photography on his own, now studies all aspects at The Dark Room in Chicago.

"I am criticized by professionals, and I improved 100 per cent the first month! I can see what other photographers are doing, and have a wide contact with a variety of people," he said.

Corey's black and white creations are displayed throughout their apartment. He emulates but does not copy the style of the late Diane Arbus whom he admires. Just last month he exhibited his work at the College of DuPage's fourth annual fair.

Corey's late grandmother, Eva Plazak of Palatine, taught Barbara basic needlework stitches and other crafts. Barbara earned a certificate for canvas embroidery from National Standards Council of American Embroiderers, studying six months with Marian Priest, a nationally recognized teacher of stitchery.

"YOU CAN WORK for a degree in needlework in the United Kingdom, but here you must study mostly on your own," said Barbara, who researches and attends workshops to learn and improve.

She hopes someday to free lance for commissions to do embroidery for display in public places. "Or a gallery for embroidery might be fun," she said. Both Barbara and Corey crochet gifts for family and friends, and Barbara also quilts.

Because to enjoy what they are doing at the time is paramount to the young couple, they live a simple life, abstaining from meat, coffee and related drinks, also alcohol and tobacco. They entertain seldom, and when they do may serve herbal tea, perhaps with a dash of honey, salads, cheese and homemade breads.

They view marriage as a partnership, follow a pay-as-you-go philosophy. They owe no debts, and won't drive their car unless they have money for gas. They share in doing the menial tasks. Corey dislikes laundry, Barbara is not turned on by cooking, so they exchange chores, for example.

THEY REFUSE to let anything "run their lives." Barbara gave up long, luxuriant hair for a super short cut, and her husband's scissoring keeps it that way. She uses no make-up and at home usually wears a long skirt converted from bellbottomed jeans. Her silver-rimmed glasses are said to have been worn by the man who embalmed Lincoln. "The rims are trimmed with mother-of-pearl and are at least 125 years old," according to Barbara and Corey.

Fond of antiques, when they moved from a larger Palatine apartment to their present smaller quarters they kept mostly antiques to furnish their new place.

"We got rid of everything our cats could spoil, or what we could not really use." That included Corey's lush collection of green plants, and the couple's four-poster cannonball bed. A mattress on the floor now suits their spartan lifestyle.

'Bottom line'? It's hard to define

(Fourth of a series)

In the household economy laborers punch no clocks. Experts do not monitor the efficiency of the housewife with stopwatch and clipboard. Mass production does not exist. And whatever the physical reality says, depreciation of capital goods does not exist.

As any social worker or lawyer knows, the average family does not even keep a record of its expenditures, let alone a rational and businesslike accounting of its activities. It does not record its profit and loss, and seldom knows (to the delight of insurance salesmen) its net worth, current debts or current assets. Indeed, a small industry of personal financial counseling has grown on the recognition that the most efficient, hard-nosed and profit-oriented business executive may have the financial affairs of his household in an absolute mess. The household economy is operated in almost perfect ignorance, a fact attested to by some 200,000 cases of personal bankruptcy every year and by estimates that millions of families are constantly insolvent but don't know it.

PERHAPS THE clearest example of this economic ignorance and myopia is our attitude, as consumers, toward household equipment. Cars are expected to last forever. So are washing machines and dishwashers and everything else used by households to provide necessary services. Alas, we are consumers in the household, not producers; what businesses call depreciation justifiably incurred in the course of daily work, we call waste.

No doubt much of what we call waste is just that — the premature loss of value due to planned obsoles-

THE CAB DRIVER who regards his taxi as a capital investment used for the production of income is likely to consider his personal automobile as an inconvenience that must be endured. Similarly, the man who operates a laundromat will likely see the regular replacement of his machines as the most efficient route to profits. But he will also resent the inevitable deterioration of the same machines used by his wife at home (even if they did, while in use, provide a return higher than that achieved by IBM). The need to replace household equipment at regular intervals prevents us from acquiring other goods and services we so urgently need.

Household investments produce returns in service rather than cash. We are trained, somewhat justifiably, to recognize only those returns that are in cash, for cash, after all, is the most flexible form of return. It facilitates exchange and trade. A cash return allows us to buy whatever we may want. Or we may just choose to accumulate the cash. A washing machine offers nothing but clean clothes in the here and now. And the ultimate service of a car, whatever its psychic satisfactions, is delivered in miles, not dollars. Household investments, by nature, are discreet and real. They lack entirely the magic of capital. Their returns are rigid, immediate and non-transferable.

Such is the present state of the household economy, which does control substantial capital, and is accumulating more, and employs more labor than any single sector of the market economy.

THE HOUSEHOLD, historically, is the smallest unit of economic organization. It is self-perpetuating and provides a social institution and structure for the redistribution of the economic product of labor. And it is responsible for nurturing and educating the young and sustaining the elderly.

But the household can exist as a major, economically productive unit only in societies where the yield on economic activity is regular enough to insure that the family can be self-sustaining most of the time. Thus, hunting societies are largely collective — a pooling of the total products and risks of a community — while the household is the dominant economic institution in societies devoted to primitive agriculture.

The word economy itself is derived from the Greek "oikonomia," which means "householding" and reflects the organization of a unit to produce for its own use. We are much attached to this idea; to some humanist writers, the agrarian household economy represents a kind of Eden and the industrial revolution is the equivalent of the Fall.

SHARING BARBARA and Corey's back-to-basics lifestyle are two cats. The young couple are vegetarians, neither drink nor smoke and entertain seldom. They have eliminated all but what they consider essentials. Home is a studio apartment with both exchanging household chores.

STITCHERY engrosses Barbara Honorine-Agnes, who though married has chosen to be known by her own name. She hopes someday to do embroidery on commission or for a gallery.

HOME, INC.

THE HIDDEN WEALTH AND POWER OF THE AMERICAN HOUSEHOLD

cence, short design lives or just plain poor construction. But that is a separate issue.

The problem of the household is that it has no easily defined bottom line. It is excluded from the ideology of the market. It does not produce to sell; it makes no attempt at a "profit." It merely acquires such goods as will provide services it deems "necessary." The idea that they might be providing a "return on investment" is unthinkable.

'Bottom line' Bulk avoided in Crohn's Disease hard to define

BUT THE IMPORTANT fact is that the household economy has been primarily an agricultural one organized around families and ties of kinship.

A colonial family of 1770 made its own shelter, provided its own fuel and light, raised its own food and slaughtered its own animals. It also made most of its own fabric and clothing.

Such a family produced about 75 per cent of its own needs within the household. Another 20 per cent were obtained in the immediate community, usually by means of barter, and money was needed only for those things that could not be produced in the area, e.g. glass, kiln-fired brick and tools.

At the household economy's pre-industrial productivity levels, its surplus was too small to support collective services beyond those assuring survival. Many services are best provided on a collective basis and, for example, fire and police protection and welfare for the indigent were first organized as volunteer actions. In colonial America, because of a high degree of volunteerism, no levies against the incomes of families were required. And the function of the collective efforts in the era of the agrarian household was largely one of distributing risk.

THE SINGLE limitation of the household economy is that it must, by definition, remain simple. It must produce small quantities of many things. We can eat only so many potatoes and carrots, wear only so many shirts, burn only so many candles, sit in only so many chairs, sleep in only so many beds. To produce for personal use is to be committed to unique, singular production.

A society that is starved for goods is likely to concentrate its best efforts on overcoming that scarcity of goods. Hence the rapid rise of the market economy when technological developments offered the means for overcoming scarcity.

The growth of the market was accompanied by an equally rapid attrition of the household economy. In 19th century America the movement of one man from the household to the market economy meant an enormous increase in output: between 1860 and 1900, industrial employment tripled but industrial output increased 15-fold.

NOW, AFTER nearly two centuries of violent growth, the market economy is reaching maturity. The next stage of development will be the re-emergence of the household economy. One of the benefits of this change will be the re-equalization of the sexes.

The industrial revolution left women in charge of an institution that no longer served a clear and overtly valued economic purpose. In terms of "bottom-line" thinking, the household became a "cost center" rather than a "profit center," and all those associated with it, mainly women, lost status, power and self-esteem. This is not a small, side effect. It has brought with it, over nearly a century, an ever-mounting conflict between the sexes that is now seen as direct competition for jobs, salaries and the power and self-esteem attached to "productive" work. Fortunately, the re-emergence of the household as an economic institution may end the competition engendered by the dominance of the marketplace.

TOMORROW: The return of the producing household

After a thorough physical in the doctor's office and being hospitalized for five days for X rays and tests, I was told I had Crohn's Disease and anemia. I was told to eat raw foods (bran, etc.) the same as your booklet on constipation. I get cramp attacks off and on.

I take Bentyl three times a day, Konyl twice a day — tried Trimsicon for a while but suffered severely with the worst constipation I ever had. I'm now on ferrous gluconate two to three times a day and feel much better. I also took high blood pressure medicine for years, but since my hospitalization, the doctor said I have normal pressure and stopped the medication. Why did it come down?

Is there a special diet for Crohn's Disease?

Crohn's Disease, also called regional enteritis, is an area of inflammation of the end of the small intestine, where it joins the colon. This is in the lower right side and that is why it is often confused with appendicitis. The inflammation causes a thick granular swelling which can lead to obstruction. The disease itself is fairly complicated. It tends to come and go in attacks; hence it is often hard to diagnose. An anemia frequently accompanies the disease, often because of problems in absorbing important vitamins and nutrients.

Constipation is caused by many factors and yours may not be related to your Crohn's Disease. The use of bulk foods for constipation is usually the best approach. However, because of the Crohn's Disease you may not tolerate some of these foods. Diarrhea is a more usual feature of Crohn's Disease.

USUALLY THE diet in regional enteritis avoids bulk, and emphasizes high protein, high calorie foods because of the absorption difficulties. Vitamin supplements are often helpful as is iron. I am not surprised that you feel better after taking ferrous gluconate (iron).

Your doctor may well need to try several different approaches to your diet before he can find out which works best for you with the combination of constipation and Crohn's Disease. I would suggest, though, that you avoid milk and all milk products. Why? Because patients with Crohn's Disease usually do not tolerate the lactose double sugar in milk.

Consuming milk may precipitate an acute attack of regional enteritis. There is usually too much lactose in buttermilk and cottage cheese for them to be a suitable substitute either. Because you need calcium and milk is the main source of it, you may need to take some calcium supplements.

ABOUT YOUR blood pressure, there is a tendency for pressure to vary. Some people have a rise in pressure in the office, but when the pressure is taken enough times, the mechanism calms down, and the blood pressure falls. Bed rest also will lower blood pressure, usually because the person loses about five pounds of fluid. You should have your pressure checked again in the office now that you have returned to your usual life pattern.

Readers who want information on constipation can send in 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb, in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Readers rap 'sexist' tag

Those leading the ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) drive undoubtedly have been studying the recent election setbacks in New York and New Jersey to determine reasons for the ballot box failures. If nothing else, my mail run is a fair sampling of attitudes.

What it indicates is that too many people have been turned off by the overaggressiveness apparent in the movement. A small for-instance: One activist wrote not long ago charging this column perpetuates sexism. My response was mild, pointed out that men participate to a substantial extent. That should have ended it, but letters continue to come, denouncing NOW.

"They say they are trying to liberate us," wrote Elaine Smith, "but actually they are trying to place us all into the same mold." Tandy Allen expressed the view of several in saying she was "sick of hearing the home torn down." A significant (to me) comment came from Mrs. George Marsh Jr.: "If you don't like the column, pass it — as I do articles on Women's Lib." My point to ERA leaders is simply that ardent militancy is counterproductive.

Dear Dorothy: Pewter mugs can be used for beer, but they need preparation — and must be used thereafter only for beer and ale. The pewter needs to be washed in hot sudsy water, rinsed several times and not dried. Fill with beer and let stand overnight. Next day rinse well and allow to air dry (never use a towel). Best way to use a pewter mug is to fill with ice and count 15 seconds. Then dump the ice and fill with beer or ale.—Dorothy Leach

Dear Dorothy: I had some screen-stained windows that defied every kind of cleaner. Found an aluminum cleaner on the shelf (one that had never worked on any of my aluminum pans) and it did a fantastic job on the windows. All I had to do was put a little on a damp sponge and go ahead with the washing.—Travers Williams

TV fires: case of misrepresentation

This is a story about how 89 smoking television sets became 196,000 television fires.

In 1974 the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the National Bureau of Standards conducted a survey of some 33,000 households, asking the people to "recall fire experience" occurring between April 1, 1973, and April 15, 1974.

The Commission received 89 responses involving television sets. In all but about a dozen cases, the consumers reported that their TV "smoked." (Eg.: "Smelled smoke from TV and pulled plug out. TV works OK since then.")

The other incidents involved sparks or flames contained within the TV. There were no reported injuries nor any property damage other than to the TV itself.

THE COMMISSION performed some mathematical acrobatics with the figure 89 and produced a report on the survey saying that televisions were the "leading source of ignition" in an estimated 196,000 "fire incidents" nationwide.

This figure was reported on page 18 of the survey analysis, which began with an estimate of 5.5 million household fire incidents nationwide, based on 2,463 actual fire incidents.

The analysis then discussed the limitations of the data, pointing out that such estimates are subject to sampling error, especially estimates based on small sub-categories. The TV fire incidents represented 4 per cent of the total survey.

Although this analysis was not completed until June, 1975, the Commission on Dec. 9, 1974, issued a press

by Monica Wilch Perin

release stating that there were "an estimated 5,575,000 household nad personal property fires in the United States in the year ending April 1974." The phrase "fire incidents" had been shortened to "fires," and in subsequent paragraphs the word "estimated" was dropped from all figures.

THE ACTUAL NUMBER of incidents reported in the survey was not given with press release, nor was any description of the incidents given. The 196,000 television "fires" were reported on page 2.

The same day, a nationally syndicated story was sent out by Associated Press with this lead: "Defective television sets ignited 196,000 residential fires during the 12-month period ending in April. . ."

The only reference to the fact that all figures given were estimates came in paragraph 12 of the AP story, which was basically a rewrite of the Commission's press release.

In the Dec. 16, 1974, issue of Television Digest, the NBS statistician who directed the survey was quoted as saying it in no way indicated actual TV-related fires exceed 10,000 annually, a previously accepted estimate.

The affair raises several questions:

HOW VALID ARE the rest of the estimated figures the Commission bandies about in regard to other products and hazards?

Why is it necessary to extrapolate nationwide estimates? Why doesn't the agency simply report actual survey data, which surely would serve as an indicator of problems without the sensationalism of astronomical estimates?

Why didn't the Commission survey fire departments instead of household members, some of whom were children? (The agency conceded in its analysis that serious fires were "unavoidably excluded" from the survey because household members in such incidents "were killed or hospitalized at the time of the survey.")

To be sure, real television fires do happen. One occurred in Hoffman Estates recently, and the Commission itself has data on television accidents compiled from police and fire departments and from its hospital reporting system. The Commission received received reports of 710 actual injuries from TV accidents during 1974.

But the commission's obsession with estimates — and its readiness in this case to allow gross misrepresentation of the facts — is a disservice to consumers as well as to the industry involved.

Talk on economy

Haskel Benishey, professor of managerial economics at Northwestern University, will discuss "Recession and Recovery" with members of West Valley Section, National Council of Jewish Women and their husbands at Mansfield Park Fieldhouse, 5830 W. Church, Morton Grove, Saturday at 8 p.m.

The public is welcome; admission is free. Information 676-3299.

Christmas brunch

An old-fashioned Christmas brunch will be served to members and guests of the Women's Fellowship of Southminster Presbyterian Church next Wednesday morning. The annual event begins at 9:15 in the church, 916 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights.

Besides the brunch prepared by women in Ruth Circle, there will be a program of Christmas music by the AAUW Alumnae Chorale and group carol singing. Cookbooks featuring over 200 recipes from Southminster members will be on sale during the morning.

Reservations should be made with Mrs. Fred Chute, 253-0711. Babysitting will be available at the church.

Got a gardener on your gift list?

Gardeners are an easy lot to please, and this year there is no shortage of unusual Christmas gifts for gardeners.

New holiday idea is 'The Sprout,' a round plastic gadget with several holes that can be filled with water, suspended by the plastic filament included and used to start leaf cuttings of pet plants. 'The Sprout' looks like a Christmas tree ornament, and can grace your gardeners tree for under $4. (Available at Kiehm's or at any good garden center or direct from Opus, Inc., 437 Boyiston St. Boston, Mass. 02116.)

Another interesting hang-up is the Mobile Triangle, a hanging planter equipped with a tiny miniature cactus imbedded in perlite. (Solar Disc, Bldg. B, Suite 101, 17220 W. Eight Mile Rd., Southfield, Mich. 48075 $3.50)

HOW ABOUT a potting apron for your plant-nut that is emblazoned with the message "I love plants"? (Available from the New Humor Co. Box 29033, Dallas, Tex. 75229, for $3.95.)

I've got the Burpee Planting Clock on my Christmas list. Before Jan. 1 the price is $39.95 for this authentic antique design electric commemorative timepiece; then the price goes up to $49.95. The Burpee clock tells when to plant vegetables, the phases of the moon, dates of first and last frost and comes in a wooden hand-rubbed case, measuring 13-1/4 inches tall. A gardener's collector item. (Order direct from Burpee, Warminster, Pa. 18975.)

Waterproof jackets for plants that drip are novel and new. Sizes to fit various pots can be had also from the New Humor Co. (Eight-inch pot size costs $3.95 per jacket.)

INSTEAD OF mere end tables, the H. L. Hubell Co., 101 N. State St. Zeeland, Mich. 49464, makes any number of models of butcher block grout furniture. A fabulous gift.

Send a bouquet from the garden in a window card with room for inserting miniature flower designs.

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments. Should a strike occur, commuters will have to

by BARBARA LADD

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week. Food prices are up again.

While increases amount to only a few pennies for such items as fresh produce, beef and pork, the dairy case provides some shocks.

SHOPPERS WILL FIND prices raised a nickel, dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

Few using city's new bus service

by JOE FRANZ

Ridership on the expanded intracity bus system in Des Plaines appeared sparse Wednesday, but most riders spoke highly of the service.

The expanded service, provided by the Regional Transportation Authority through the North Suburban Mass Transit District, started this week and consists of north, south, west and southwest routes.

Dee Cheopelas, of 764 Timothy Ln., said she was riding the bus for the first time and anticipated using the service two to three times a week.

"I'M SO HAPPY. I have been praying that they were going to start some kind of service to my house," Mrs. Cheopelas said. "I expect to be riding it a lot because I have no other way of getting anywhere."

She said she liked the free rides provided the first week, but said she intended to continue using the service after the regular 45 cent charge started.

"As long as I have transportation, I don't care how much I pay," Mrs. Cheopelas said.

Lois Jack, 1211 Brown St., said she intended to use the bus service every day. "This is great because it practically takes me to my front door," she said.

ANDRE KRISTOPANS, 3927 W. Palmer Ave., Chicago, said he was "checking out" the new bus service and was not headed toward a particular destination.

"I'm just an explorer from the northwest side of Chicago," he said. "I don't have a car and have to keep up on the service in case I need it."

Louise Weber, 918 Tower Dr., said she liked the idea of the intracity bus system, but thought some changes should be made.

"It's very confusing," she said. "I thought they were going to improve the service locally for the suburbs, but I don't know if they have."

RICKY KROWZACK, a bus driver for NORTAN, said he believed some minor changes in routes needed to make the service available to more people, but believed the expanded service was "the best move made out here in 50 years."

"Instead of cutting back service they've added it," he said. "They're giving service to the people who really need it."

Although riders have been sparse, Krowzack and Robert Fredro, another driver, said the number of passengers has increased every day.

"I hauled twice as many people yesterday (Tuesday) as Monday and 15 or 16 more today (Wednesday) than yesterday," Krowzack said.

"I BELIEVE THE service will go because people want it," he said. "The drivers are going to have to take time to explain schedules and help sell people on the service."

Fredro said that it still was too soon to tell whether ridership would increase enough to justify the expanded service.

"It seems to be picking up, but I'm not sure yet," he said. "I do know though that the people who ride are crazy about the buses."

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee, said recently that the new service was a "use it or lose it proposition" for the city.

THE NEW BUS system will be reviewed by the RTA and NORTAN in six to eight months to determine whether they should be continued or modified.

The bus routes, which begin and end at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Downtown Des Plaines, run from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week. The routes are designed to bring bus service to within six blocks of most homes in the city.

The buses run at 30-minute intervals during rush periods and one-hour intervals at other times. They can be used to make connections with regional NORTAN routes operating throughout the North and Northwest suburbs.

FOUR NEW city bus routes began operation this week as part of the North Suburban Mass Transit District system. Routes originate at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station and travel to the north, west, south and southwest parts of the city.

End draws near for old city hall

by JOE FRANZ

A news analysis

Des Plaines aldermen have taken two steps that may hasten the demolition of the old city hall.

Officials this week decided to seek a location other than the old building as the future home of the Des Plaines Historical Society. They also decided to allow the Circuit Court to move the branches of traffic and misdemeanor court from the old structure into the new Civic Center next door.

Although the fate of the old building has not been decided, there no longer seem to be any strong reasons to motivate city officials to preserve the structure.

THE BUILDING, constructed in 1937, has been the center of controversy among city officials, community leaders and residents for several months. Some favor tearing it down to provide additional parking for the new Civic Center and police department complex, while others want it preserved.

Many of those who want the building saved have argued that it is needed by the historical society and courts.

The city council's decision to relocate the courts in the Civic Center, and seek another location for the historical society, however, indicates that officials have rejected those arguments.

Many of those who oppose saving the old building for use by the historical society feel it would be too expensive to renovate the structure to bring it into compliance with city building codes. Building Comm. William Baldaccini said recently renovation would cost a minimum of $217,000.

THOSE WHO FAVOR preserving the old building, however, argue that extensive renovation is not needed. Another factor which may contribute to the demolition of the old structure is that historical society officials endorse the city council's decision to seek another location.

The council, in an unanimous decision, has authorized Mayor Herbert H. Behrel to seek appraisals on a tract at 791 Graceland Ave., with the intention of acquiring it for use by the historical society.

"What we have been looking for all along is a permanent home," said Richard Welch, historical society museum director. "We would have preferred the old municipal building, but this is an acceptable alternative."

THE SOCIETY now is located in the old Kinder House, 777 Lee St., but has been notified that it must vacate the property in the near future to make way for a drive-in banking facility for First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Des Plaines.

Welch said the historical society hopes to move the Kinder House to the new location. He said moving the structure is feasible and that preliminary estimates indicate it will cost about $48,000.

The city plans to pay the cost of acquiring the new site, and the historical society will raise funds to pay for the moving, Welch said.

The property is owned by William L. Kunkel and Co., 734 Lee St., and is up for sale, Welch said.

Maine Township man outsmarts terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Sidon, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Alcoholism topic of radio broadcast

Behavior modification as a solution to alcoholism will be discussed in "The Search for Mental Health," a Sunday radio broadcast.

The program, sponsored by Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Ln., Des Plaines, will feature Dr. John Brady, chairman of the Dept. of Psychiatry of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Dover Roth, of Forest Hospital. The program will be aired at 8 a.m. on WJJD-FM radio (104.3).

Brady will discuss the special treatment used to encourage alcoholics and problem drinkers to drink less or not at all.

"Cuckoo's Nest"

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" has been chosen for discussion at the Wednesday, Dec. 17, meeting of the Adult Book Discussion Group of the library. The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. Paperback copies may be obtained at the main desk of the library.

City Council wrapup

Signs to prohibit through traffic

The Des Plaines City Council has voted to install signs prohibiting through traffic at four locations on the south side of the city.

The signs are to be installed at the intersections of Pratt Avenue and Mannheim Road, Maple Street and Touhy Avenue, Patton Drive and Devon Avenue and Stillwell Drive and Devon Avenue.

Residents in the area requested the signs because nonlocal traffic has been using streets in the area to avoid traffic signals on main streets. The request was reviewed and recommended by the city council streets and traffic committee.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the committee, said the signs will not be a complete solution to the problem, but should help reduce traffic on the side streets.

"There is an argument over whether traffic will be reduced 5 per cent or 45 per cent, but I think there is no question that there will be less traffic," he said.

Four named to panels

The city council has appointed one person and reassigned three other officials to new positions in city government.

The appointments are: Ian Clark, 853 Prairie Ave., to the traffic commission; Paul Marquette, 1039 Jeannette Ave., from the plan commission to the zoning board of appeals; G. Walter Johnson, 2019 Fargo Ave., from the civil service commission to the traffic commission; and Wallace Lonsinger, 2094 Birch St., from commissioner to chairman of the traffic commission.

The city council also accepted the resignation from the environmental control commission of Norman Parchim, 150 Kathleen Dr.

Food handlers tests

Des Plaines officials have passed an ordinance requiring all food service workers in the city to submit to an annual tuberculosis examination as a condition for employment.

The ordinance requires food service workers to supply their employers with a certificate from a doctor, clinic or laboratory stating they are free of disease. Employers also are prohibited from hiring persons who have not been tested.

C&NW rate hike protested

The city council has voted to file a protest with the Illinois Commerce Commission over the Chicago and North Western Ry. request for a 37.5 per cent fare increase.

Dist. 26, custodians agree on pact; drop union plans

Custodians and administrators in River Trails Dist. 26 have reached agreement on salary and fringe benefits, board members learned this week.

The district's 14 full-time custodians now say they will not affiliate with the Illinois Education Assn. teachers' union as previously planned, said James Burke, a spokesman for the custodians.

Custodians had organized the River Trails Custodial and Maintenance Assn., an affiliate of the IEA, in May to seek salary, fringe benefits, seniority rights and increased holiday time. They sought recognition from the board this fall, but were turned down.

BOARD MEMBERS asked them to try working with the administration on their requests before seeking union recognition.

Agreement apparently was reached after two negotiation sessions. The board is scheduled to act on the tentative settlement at its Dec. 16 meeting, said Supt. John Fridlund.

Burke said terms of the settlement include:

- A base pay of $4.19 per hour. Starting pay previously was "about $3.75 an hour," Burke said.

- An additional day of paid vacation the day after Thanksgiving. Custodians previously received 10 paid holidays plus a half day on Christmas and New Year's eves.

- Four weeks of vacation after 11 years of service. Previously, custodians received a maximum of three weeks' vacation after six years of employment.

- A grievance procedure, something custodians did not have in the past.

First National Bank sells license plates

The 1976 Bicentennial Illinois license plates will be available from the First National Bank of Des Plaines through Feb. 14.

The license plates will be offered at the standard rate plus a service charge of $1.

Those intending to pay for plates by check must pay the service charge separately. The check for license plates should be made payable to the Secretary of State, while the service charge is payable to the First National Bank of Des Plaines, 733 Lee St.

Church anniversary plans

The 50th Anniversary Committee of Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, has planned a number of activities to celebrate the church's anniversary in 1976.

Trinity was organized with 19 members on May 26, 1926, and today the congregation is approaching 3,000 members.

Plans call for a banquet and anniversary services in May. Visits by former pastors and assistant pastors are expected throughout the year, and the church's new Schantz pipe organ will be installed and dedicated at special services.

Schools

St. Raymond's School

The eighth-grade cooking class at St. Raymond School, Mount Prospect is planning a field trip to the Sara Lee Kitchens Friday.

A trip to the Federal Building, Chicago, is also scheduled for the eighth-grade class during December.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

The London Junior High School versus Holmes Junior High School girls' basketball game scheduled Friday at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will be played at 4 p.m.

Two students from Cooper Junior High School, Kathy Dulski and Dawn Lengl, attended the Buffalo Grove Board of Trustees meeting last month as representatives of the student council. The students reported their reaction to seeing the village government in action to the constitution classes at Cooper.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The corridor walls at Orchard Place School are telling the story of America's history in pictures, cutouts and 3-D reliefs. The students call the project "Bicentennial Time Line" and invite the community to view their project. The school is at 2727 Maple Ave., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 211

The Bicentennial Committee of Conant High School will sponsor a freedom fair, "Reflections of the Past: Images of the Future," in March.

It is intended that the fair be a community project. Any group or individual desiring to exhibit crafts, hobbies, homemaking skills, antiques or collections that relate to American history are invited to participate.

Information may be obtained by writing to: Conant High School, Bicentennial Committee, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172. Phone calls should be directed to Ron Szymanski, 885-4366 ext 75.

CHRISTMAS IS seen best through the eyes of children — those who believe in Santa.

Jack Krisor, Mount Prospect, is spending his sixth season as Randhurst's Santa.

The beard and stomach are all real

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Is Jack Krisor really Santa Claus? Hundreds of children and even some grown-ups would swear to it.

His fluffy-white beard and thick, white hair are real. His belly, buckled under a red suit of velvet, is no pillow. He's 240 pounds of Kris Kringle. Even his jolly, deep "ho, ho, ho's" that echo throughout the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are the real thing.

There's no doubt about it. Children and adults alike waiting in line to see Santa agree that this one must be authentic.

"YOU KNOW," he says, pulling the red cap off his head and leaning over to one side, "I wouldn't think of giving the children anything but the real thing."

Krisor, a 63-year-old Mount Prospect resident, is celebrating his sixth season at Randhurst as you-know-who from the North Pole.

The jolly gentleman thought earlier this year that he might not make it through many more Christmas seasons. His battle with cancer took more than 140 pounds from his 380-pound Kris Kringle figure. But he's cured now and all that unpleasantness is behind him. Now he can concentrate on the thing he loves most — playing Santa and delighting children of all ages.

Each year from the day after Thanksgiving until the big day, he leaves his job as a Buffalo Grove real estate broker to begin his holiday duties. He doesn't return to his "second occupation" until after Christmas.

HE ENJOYS HIS role so much that he even makes house calls on Christmas Eve.

"This is what I wait for all year. This is really my work," he says with a sparkle in his blue eyes, "and it's not just during the Christmas season either."

Krisor is "constantly" being stopped in public places and on the street by adults and children who ask him if he is really Santa Claus — even when he's out of his red suit and boots.

"Everyone tells me I look like him. You start to think that you are Santa Claus after a while," he said. "Totally stumped up to the white gazebo and the green throne where Santa sits they gave up in awe at the kind face of whiskers and smiles."

"They look up to me and they think I'm the King," Santa says. "They are just beautiful."

Some of the children are shy and look back and forth in an uneasy effort to tell Santa what they want for Christmas. Others, more daring, excitedly rattle off their order for toys, plant themselves on Santa's knee and tug at his beard. Much to their surprise, it's real.

His Santa role started nearly ten years ago when a friend, noting Krisor's resemblance to that jolly, old figure, suggested that he don the red and white outfit and bring the holiday spirit into the Palatine bank.

"I just love kids and I'm just so happy to be able to do this. I read the letters kids send to Santa and place in the mailbox here. It's my therapy," Krisor said. "It's good for me, it's good for the parents who come up to me here and almost anywhere, stare me in the eyes and tell me they believe," he said.

"But, most of all, it's good for the children. They do believe, and it's a wonderful thing."

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week. Food prices are up again.

While increases amount to only a few pennies for such items as fresh produce, beef and pork, the dairy case provides some shocks.

dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

Fire limits law obsolete, chief says

The Wheeling fire limits ordinance prohibiting the construction of frame buildings in commercially-zoned areas are outdated and could hurt the village's fire rating, Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said Wednesday.

Koeppen told trustees attending a police and fire committee meeting that the village building code requirements have made the limits obsolete.

"We've stiffened our codes to override the fire limits. The new building code is designed to eliminate the fire limits and still give protection," he said.

THE VILLAGE adopted the fire limits in the 1940s when few building materials were fire resistant and when big cities "lost blocks and blocks of buildings" because there were no controls, Koeppen said.

"Now we have new techniques. Things are so advanced we're finding we have to review the fire limits," he said.

Koeppen said fire ratings are based on the water-supply system, fire department, fire service communications and fire prevention codes. "We're going to have to beef up our water flow whether we stay in the fire limits or not," he said.

The fire limits also could be a detriment to the village since it is not being enforced in many areas, Koeppen said.

"THEY'LL SAY we're not building according to what we say and we'll receive deficiency points," he said.

The village would still have control over the construction of wooden buildings even if the fire limits were eliminated, Koeppen added.

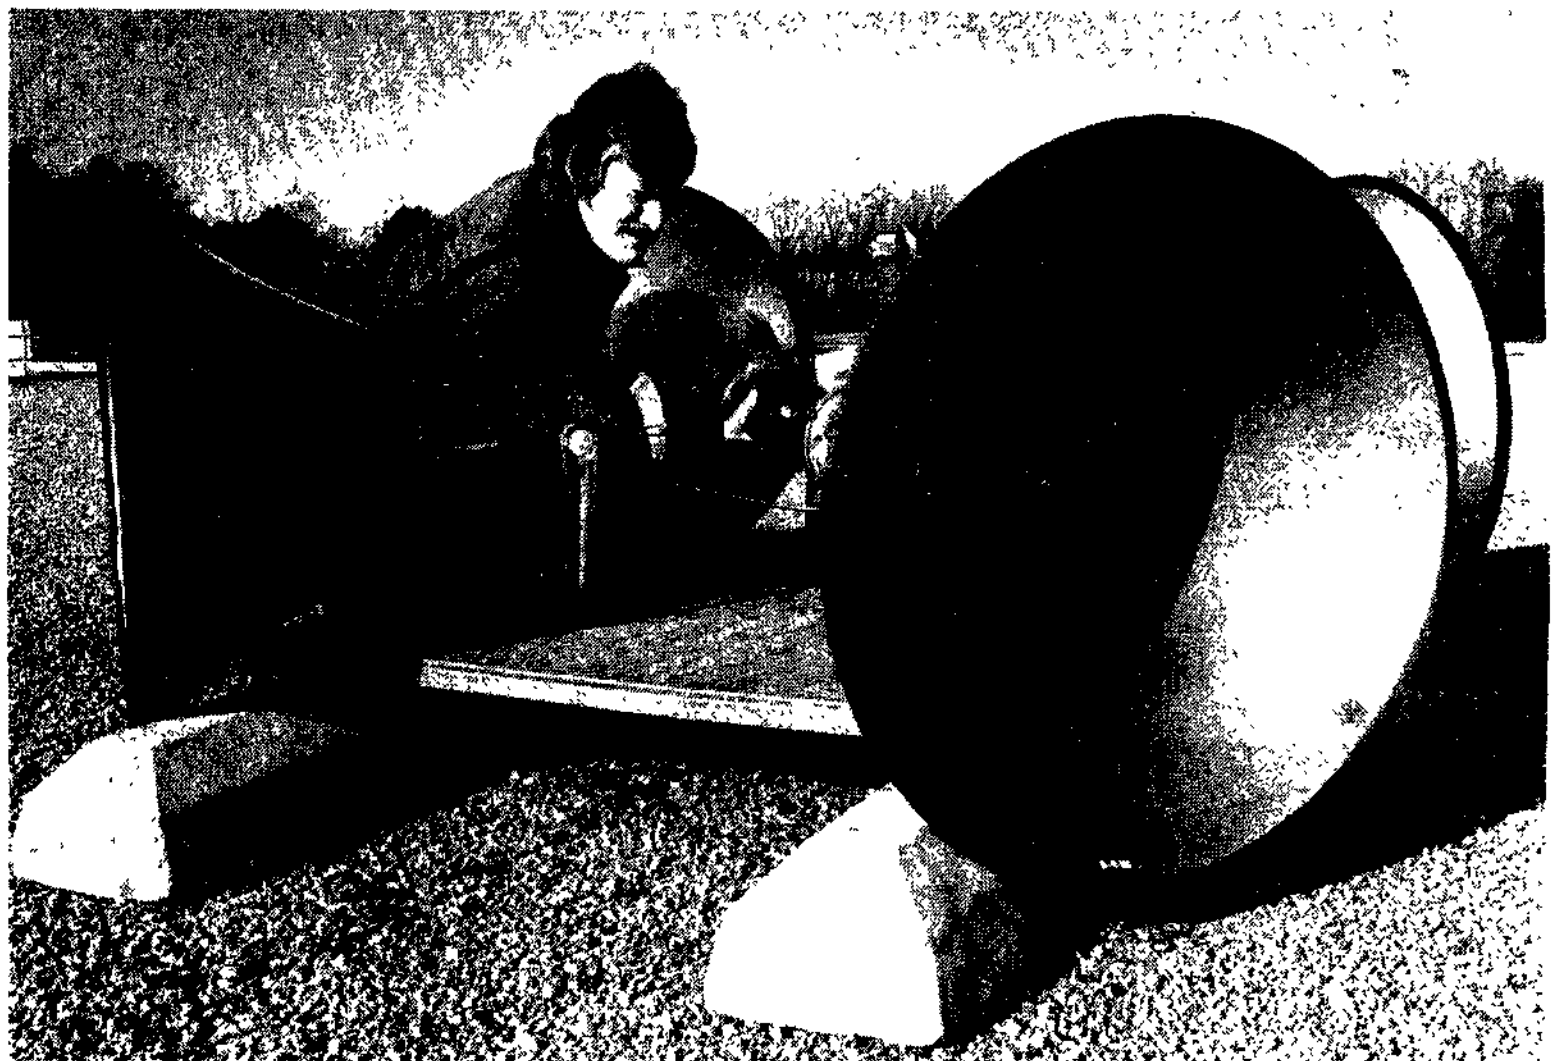

"The building code controls the size of wooden buildings and our ordinances say you have to install a sprinkler system if the building is larger than 8,000 square feet. The sprinkling will cover for the fire limits," he said.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the village has lost industry and business because of the fire limits. He said developers have presented building plans which meet all requirements but "according to our codes they couldn't be built that way."

"IT'S A LITTLE unfair that people should have to build according to the fire limits if they have a reasonable setback and are no apparent danger to the buildings near them," he said.

Trustees attending the meeting said they were in favor of eliminating the fire limits. Trustee Otis L. Hedlund said "if we're protected by other ordinances, I see no reason for keeping them (the fire limits)."

The fire limits ordinance will be discussed at the village board meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

CARILLON MUSIC is broadcast to all sections of the village with the help of loudspeakers installed atop the village hall. Village employee Dennis Mikosz makes adjustments to the speakers, which also will be used as an emergency warning system.

Chimes fill air with holiday tunes

by LINDA PUNCH

The sound of holiday music fills the air daily in Wheeling with the arrival of the Bicentennial carillon.

The carillon, an electric chime which plays prerecorded tapes, began operating Thanksgiving Day. Its repertoire includes Hanukkah, Christmas and a variety of popular and semiclassical music.

Esther Davis, chairman of the village beautification committee, said the carillon plays the Westminster chimes also play a series of four selections from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. The chimes also play a series of four selections at noon and 6 p.m. daily. The holiday schedule includes two additional programs at 6:45 and 7:45 p.m.

THE RESPONSE FROM people who have heard it has been positive except for one person, who complained about the noise. "The overall reaction has been excellent," she said.

The carillon was purchased with $5,000 raised by the committee, and Mrs. Davis said contributions are still being accepted. The chimes are located in the village hall and include four speakers placed on the roof.

"Even though we have the basic unit, we're still trying to raise funds to increase the tape library. There's also a possibility of purchasing a bell tower," she said.

Mrs. Davis said it is "extremely appropriate" that the carillon was installed during Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon's term of office.

"He has worked so hard to keep peace and harmony between the different political factions in the village. That was my impetus for putting forth so much effort on the project," she said.

CONTRIBUTIONS to the beautification committee will also be used toward payment of a special Bicentennial plaque which will be placed in the village hall next year. The plaque will bear the names of contributors of $100 or more.

Mrs. Davis said the plaque will be precast early next year, and it will "not be one where names are nailed on with a metal square."

"We have to know early if people are interested in a memorial for the plaque," she said.

Bicentennial projects are being funded from the sale of Bicentennial flag pins. Pins are available at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., and sell for $1 each.

Mrs. Davis said several other Bicentennial projects are in progress throughout the village including flower plantings by residents near Cedar and Dundee roads, and Valley Stream and Ill. Rte. 63.

The beautification committee also has planted a Memorial Garden of Day Lilies, the Wheeling village flower, on Dundee Road near Wheeling Road. Other members of the committee include Dagnija Weiner, John Muno and Walter Stryszyk.

'76 start for hospital in Hoffman?

An American Medicorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Medicorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta,

Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Medicorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

Bowling alley proposed on Arlington Hts. Road

A 40-lane bowling alley with a restaurant and lounge has been proposed along relocated Arlington Heights Road south of Dundee Road.

Arthur Schmidt presented the preliminary plans for the bowling facility to the plat and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday.

Schmidt, who has a similar operation in Streamwood, plans to build on 5.5 acres near the northern industrial park. He is seeking rezoning for the property which is now classified for single-family houses.

While village officials were generally receptive to the idea of a bowling alley in the area, they raised questions about sewer and water service to the site. The area is not now connected to either sewer or water lines, and the nearest ones are along University Drive about 2,000 feet away.

Schmidt said he wanted to open the facility by next fall in time for the formation of new bowling teams and leagues.

The building would be one-story Mediterranean style with face brick construction. It would have meeting rooms and nursery facilities, he said.

Schmidt will meet again with the subcommittee before his plans are reviewed by village department heads. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Gunman robs store; $100-$200 taken

A gunman robbed a Wheeling grocery store Wednesday afternoon and forced the storekeeper to lie on the floor while he fled with between $100 and $200 in cash.

The robbery occurred about 2:30 p.m. at the White Hen Pantry, 402 Elmhurst Rd. Wheeling police said the robber entered the store minutes before the robbery but left after browsing shortly at the magazine rack.

When he returned, he again went to the magazine rack, and then came to the front of the store, pointed a pistol at storekeeper James Armstrong and demanded money.

Armstrong emptied the cash register, and the gunman forced him to lie on the floor behind a counter while the thief fled on foot into a nearby subdivision.

The gunman was described as 20 to 25 years old, six feet tall, 165 pounds with dark medium-length hair and wearing a blue suede jacket.

School notes

Wheeling - Buffalo Grove

Wheeling-Buffero Grove Dist. 21

Students at Twain School, Wheeling, can shop at Santa's secret shop next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for family and friends. The shop, set up in the school, is sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Assn.

Tim Weirville will present a pottery demonstration Tuesday at Twain School, Wheeling. After telling the students a brief history of the craft, he will have them knead clay and run a pottery wheel. Pots in various stages of completion will be displayed, as well as a collection of Weirville's finished works.

The London Junior High School versus Holmes Junior High School girls' basketball game scheduled Friday at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will be played at 4 p.m.

The Stevenson School, Wheeling, parent-teacher group voted at their November meeting to change their present organization structure from its present PTA to PTO, effective immediately.

Contests

"The American Dream: Full Economic Security" is the theme of this year's Martin Luther King Jr. essay contest. The essays, written in 500 words or less must be turned in to school representatives or sent to 694 Lee St., Des Plaines 60016, on or before Dec. 15. A copy of the rules may be obtained by calling 297-4705.

High school and junior high school students are eligible to enter the contest. The two $50 savings bonds for first place, high school and junior high school and the two $25 bonds for second place, high school and junior high school, have been donated by Motorola Inc. The awards will be presented to the winning students at the fourth annual Martin Luther King Jr. dinner which will be held Jan. 17 at the Holiday Inn O'Hare Kennedy, Rosemont.

One essay will be chosen from each school. These essays will compete with each other for the savings bonds. Area journalists will provide the final judging, headed by Dan Baumann, executive editor of Paddock Publications.

Some swear this Santa is real

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Is Jack Krisor really Santa Claus? Hundreds of children and even some grown-ups would swear to it.

His fluffy-white beard and thick, white hair are real. His belly, buckled under a red suit of velvet, is no pillow. He's 240 pounds of Kris Kringle. Even his jolly, deep "ho, ho, ho's" that echo throughout the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are the real thing.

There's no doubt about it. Children and adults alike waiting in line to see Santa agree that this one must be authentic.

"YOU KNOW," he says, pulling the red cap off his head and leaning over to one side. "I wouldn't think of giving the children anything but the real thing."

Krisor, a 65-year-old Mount Prospect resident, is celebrating his sixth season at Randhurst as you-know-who from the North Pole.

The jolly gentleman thought earlier this year that he might not make it through many more Christmas seasons. His battle with cancer took more than 140 pounds from his 380-pound Kris Kringle figure. But he's cured now and all that unpleasantness is behind him. Now he can concentrate on the thing he loves most — playing Santa and delighting children of all ages.

Each year from the day after Thanksgiving until the big day, he leaves his job as a Buffalo Grove real estate broker to begin his holiday duties. He doesn't return to his "second occupation" until after Christmas.

HE ENJOYS HIS role so much that he even makes house calls on Christmas Eve.

"This is what I wait for all year. This is really my work," he says with a sparkle in his blue eyes, "and it's not just during the Christmas season either."

Krisor is "constantly" being stopped in public places and on the street by adults and children who ask him if he is really Santa Claus — even when he's out of his red suit and boots.

"Everyone tells me I look like him. You start to think that you are Santa Claus after a while," he said. Tots stumble up to the white gazebo and the green throne where Santa sits. They gaze up in awe at the kind face of whiskers and smiles.

"They look up to me and they think I'm the King," Santa says. "They are just beautiful."

Some of the children are shy and rock back and forth in an uneasy effort to tell Santa what they want for Christmas. Others, more daring, excitedly rattle off their order for toys, plant themselves on Santa's knee and tug at his beard. Much to their surprise, it's real.

His Santa role started nearly ten years ago when a friend, noting Krisor's resemblance to that jolly, old figure, suggested that he don the red and white outfit and bring the holiday spirit into the Palatine bank.

"I just love kids and I'm just so happy to be able to do this. I read the letters kids send to Santa and place in the mailbox here. It's my therapy," Krisor said. "It's good for me, it's good for the parents who come up to me here and almost anywhere, stare me in the eyes and tell me they believe," he said.

"But, most of all, it's good for the children. They do believe, and it's a wonderful thing."

Arlington in new effort to end boundary dispute

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan again will meet with leaders of the Prospect Heights incorporation movement in an attempt to resolve disagreement on the common boundary between the two towns.

Arlington Heights is appealing a Circuit Court ruling clearing the way for a referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation tentatively set for Jan. 31.

Trustee David Griffin tried unsuccessfully Monday night to get the Arlington Heights Village Board to drop its appeal which village officials admit is an 11th hour attempt to forestall the referendum.

"There is nothing to be gained in filing this appeal other than to create hard feelings in the long run," Griffin said.

Arlington Heights officials have never accepted Waterman Avenue as the proposed boundary with Prospect Heights. Instead they have proposed Dale Avenue, east of the Brandenberry Park Apartments as a boundary.

THE VILLAGE BOARD rejected Griffin's move to drop the court appeal but adopted Ryan's suggestion that a new effort be made to reach agreement.

"If we drop this, Prospect Heights will go on its merry way," said Trustee Frank Palmatier. "I have always felt this (boundary) was meant to be an imposition on Arlington Heights."

Village officials contend that they are required to provide municipal services to Arlington Heights residents in the vicinity of Waterman Avenue and cannot give up water and sewer mains in the area to Prospect Heights.

They also fear that Prospect Heights will encroach on valuable unincorporated land along Rand Road which logically will become part of Arlington Heights.

No date for the meeting between Ryan and Prospect Heights leaders has been set.

Burbank happy with results of incorporation

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of south suburban Burbank say they are glad they voted to incorporate five years ago because it has allowed them to preserve and develop their community.

The 32,000 residents of the city just south of Chicago experienced the same problems that Prospect Heights residents have today as an unprotected, unincorporated area.

Outlying parcels of the community were continually being annexed by neighboring suburbs, depleting the tax base of the area's rural park, fire and library districts.

THE PEOPLE OF Burbank weighed the alternatives and voted to incorporate in 1970.

Burbank officials now have encouraged Prospect Heights residents to do the same when they go to the polls to decide the issue Jan. 31. If the 13,000 Prospect Heights residents vote to incorporate, an area bounded by Sanders Road on the east, Windsor Drive on the west, Hintz Road on the north and Euclid Ave. on the south will become the newest Northwest suburb.

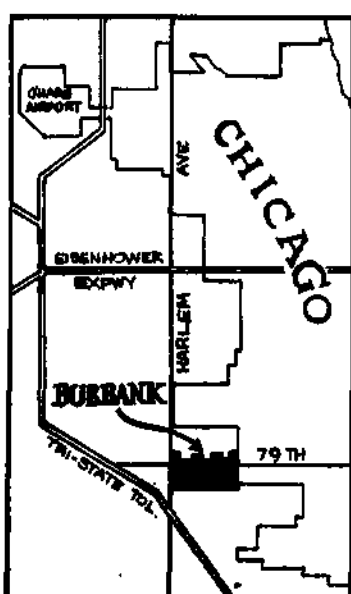

Burbank Mayor John Fitzgerald said the main advantages to incorporation have been the ability to independently coordinate the growth of the area, hold the line on taxes and services and oversee improvements.

There have been "no real problems" in the formation of the new city during the past five years.

"OUR SITUATION was very much like the one that Prospect Heights is in now. We saw that piecemeal annexation to nearby suburbs or incorporation were our only alternatives. We never could have remained a viable unincorporated area," Fitzgerald said.

Burbank residents were undecided on the incorporation for nearly 10 years until 5,000 of the community's 17,000 eligible voters turned out in the 1970 referendum to put the issue to rest.

Today, Burbank operates on a $2.1 million budget that is supported by revenues from motor fuel tax funds, sales tax, state income tax, business and liquor license fees, vehicle stickers and traffic fines, Fitzgerald said.

Burbank's income has increased yearly with only a slight rise in real estate taxes, he said, "and we are still in the black, five years into incorporation, and we expect to remain that way."

BURBANK HAS encouraged commercial development which has boosted municipal sales tax receipts and has prohibited industrial development to protect the "residential character of the area," Fitzgerald said.

"If we hadn't incorporated, by now we would have been partially industrial and annexed into Oak Lawn, Chicago and other nearby cities. We just wouldn't be here," he said.

The advantages speak for themselves, Fitzgerald said: real estate value has more than doubled in the last five years; several unincorporated areas on the city's west boundary were recently annexed, adding 2,000 more residents; overall population has increased by 4,000 since 1970 and assessed valuation has increased from $59 million to $96 million.

Local taxes increased slightly during the first years of incorporation to cover administrative operating costs and improvements requested by the residents, he said. Fire insurance rates simultaneously decreased because the area's rural fire district was absorbed by the city and improved to a full-time force.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS' 13,000 residents may face annexation to surrounding communities if an incorporation vote fails Jan. 31. Residents in New Town, an area annexed to Mount Prospect in 1971, are pleased with the results. But officials in south suburban Burbank, which voted to become a city in 1970, say incorporation was the answer to upgraded services and stable property taxes.

'Annex good move for New Town'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of the New Town area of Mount Prospect cite upgraded services as one of the primary advantages of annexation into the village in 1971.

Previously an unincorporated part of Cook County, the area, a 1.5-square mile parcel bounded by Kensington, Willow, River and Camp McDonald roads chose the annexation route while Prospect Heights did not.

It has been a slow adjustment for the estimated 10,000 residents of New Town. Some residents have protested the changing of street names and the failure of the village to take control of a private utility company serving the area with water which they say is of "low quality."

BUT MOST RESIDENTS polled earlier this year expressed satisfaction with the results of annexation which has provided them with full-time police and fire protection and garbage pickup. Previously, residents had to contract for those services.

Should the Jan. 31 referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation fail, annexation to Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights or Wheeling may be the only way the community's 13,000 residents can obtain satisfactory services.

"The services have improved 100 per cent since we've annexed to Mount Prospect. I don't think anyone will argue with that," said Marie Caylor, a New Town resident and one-time Mount Prospect trustee who was one of the forces behind the 1971 annexation.

Mrs. Caylor said there has been only a slight increase in taxes for most New Town residents during the last four years.

RESIDENTS' FIRE insurance rates drastically decreased when Mount Prospect offered full-time service which took the place of a rural fire district volunteer force.

The taxes needed to support fire, police and garbage service are now included in the village tax rate.

"So, it seemed that the new taxes we inherited by becoming part of the village were offset by our not having to pay more for the services. My tax bill balanced off and I think most residents' bills did," she said.

"ANNEXATION HAS worked out well for New Town. At this point, the people of Prospect Heights have fought long and hard for the chance to hold a referendum on incorporation. Now they can, and I wish them well," Mrs. Caylor said.

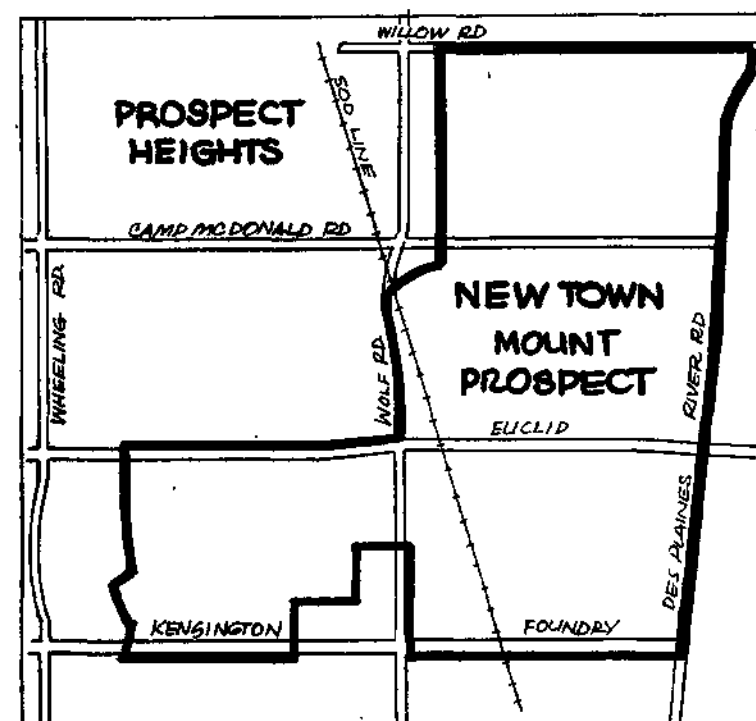

In 1971, the residents of New Town hoped that Prospect Heights would annex along with them, Mrs. Caylor said. "Now things have changed, and it's up to Prospect Heights residents to decide on their own future," she said.

Many of the residents have offered their services in the village's municipi-pal boards and committees. They are striving to feel more a part of the village.

"As long as the village backs the residents and helps them with their problems — that's the main thing. We have that going for us and the rest will follow," Mrs. Caylor said.

RESIDENTS OF the New Town area in Mount Prospect say increased services made annexation to the village in 1971 worthwhile.

Prospect Heights residents could be faced with annexation should their Jan. 31 incorporation referendum fail to pass.

Escapes with unedited film of raids

Maine Township man outsmarts Moslem terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the

30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

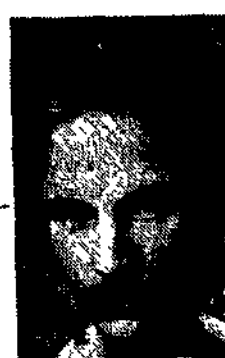

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said.

In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction mem-

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Saida, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week. Food prices are up again.

dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

Mailman saves two from lake

by JOHN MAES

The mail delivery in Buffalo Grove's Crossings subdivision was a bit late Wednesday afternoon but residents probably wouldn't mind at all if they knew the reason.

Donald Hall, the 21-year-old mail carrier, had to take an impromptu break from his work about 1 p.m. to save the lives of two small children who had fallen through the ice in a nearby lake.

Hall waded into chest-high water and pulled Jacob Aidlin, 4, and Lisa Aidlin, 6, to safety. The children were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment and later were released.

JACOB AND LISA are the children of Emma Aidlin, 1279 Farnsworth Rd. Hall was on his mail route on Farnsworth Road in the subdivision when a boy, apparently playing with the Aidlin children when the mishap occurred, alerted him to the trouble.

"I was coming down Farnsworth Road delivering mail and I heard a cry for help. It was very faint," he said. "I started looking around to see where it was coming from and a boy came over the hill and I asked, 'Is someone in trouble?' He said someone fell in the lake."

Dropping his mail sack, Hall ran toward the lake.

"I saw a kid bobbing in the water," he said.

He went out into the frozen pond and pulled Jacob to safety.

"I DIDN'T KNOW another kid was out there but the other boy kept saying, 'There's another one out there. There's another one out there,'" he said.

Hall said the girl had already gone under but he waded back in and pulled her out.

"She was very close to drowning," he said.

"I just kept thinking of my sister's two little kids, they're just about the same age — it's just the fact that I could see these kids being my nieces and how their parents must feel."

By this time the incident had attracted the attention of several neighbors who began coming outside with blankets to warm Hall and the two children before an ambulance came to take the children to the hospital.

But Hall, who is engaged to be married next June, was beset by an injury no worse than a cold chill and wet uniform.

"The uniform is completely soaked and I don't know how that wool is going to turn out," he said.

2 road jobs added to 5-year plan

by BETTY LEE

Buffalo Grove's five-year capital improvement program has been updated to include two road-improvement projects that are expected to cost $1.8 million.

Arlington Heights Road, from Dundee to Lake-Cook roads, will be widened to four lanes in the 1977-78 fiscal year. The improvement project will cost an estimated $1.7 million and will be funded by the county.

Also, the intersection at Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83 will be widened and left-turn lanes will be built beginning in 1978. The village will pay $25,000 of the $95,000 cost. The rest will be paid with state and Lake County funds.

PUBLIC WORKS Director Charles McCoy, whose department administers most of the projects, said the capital improvement program remains basically the same. The added work does include a delay in Slurry seal treatment of streets in the 1976-77 fiscal year, but the repaving of Checker Drive, from Arlington Heights Road to Ill. Rte. 83, has been rescheduled for next year instead of 1977.

All improvements are funded by the village, developers, state and federal governments, Cook and Lake counties.

The five-year report was released last year by Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson. It is basically a planning guide and schedule for the improvement of village streets, sidewalks, lighting, sewers, building and water facilities.

Although the program covers a five-year period, officials update plans each year according to the priority of projects and the availability of funds. All projects must meet the approval of the board of trustees.

PROJECTS SCHEDULED for next year include:

- New street construction estimated to cost more than $6 million, most of which will be funded by the county.

- The resurfacing of various streets at a cost of $112,000.

- Street lighting at $6,000 and traffic signals at $90,000.

- Sidewalks and bike paths at various locations at $66,000.

- Water distribution system improvements at $170,000.

- Water supply system at $827,000.

Officials are planning an allocation of up to $875,000 for obtaining water from Lake Michigan, Northbrook, DEMP Commission or the Lake County Public Water District.

- Sanitary sewer system improvements at $280,000.

- Storm drainage systems improvement at $2 million.

- Building and land purchases at $1.2 million.

- Department equipment at $170,700.

- Improvements for the Buffalo Grove Golf Course at $25,000.

Schaumburg man gets parks post

Dennis DeLance of Schaumburg has been named the new recreation superintendent at the Buffalo Grove Park District.

He is a graduate of the University of Iowa and will be responsible for establishing and planning park programs and overseeing maintenance of park sites.

DeLance, 25, also will plan budgeting for recreation and maintenance with the park board of commissioners.

One of his first projects on the job

Dennis DeLance

DeLance said he will welcome ideas residents may have on parks. "We're going to clean up, paint up the parks and make everything we have look great," he said. "I'm more than willing for people to come talk to me about getting some programs going."

DeLance hopes to promote tennis, bowling and additional arts and crafts classes in the future.

He replaces Michael Ryliko who left to take a similar position with the Streamwood Park District. DeLance previously served as men's athletic coordinator at the Rolling Meadows Park District, concentrating activities at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

DeLance also works as referee for baseball, softball, basketball and hockey.

will be to promote the use of Willow Stream and the Aquadome swimming pools. DeLance is planning an exercise swim course, water polo and adult coed water volleyball to increase attendance.

Juvenile court branch discussion tonight

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep. Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 6 p.m. dutch-treat dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a salism in the village.

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

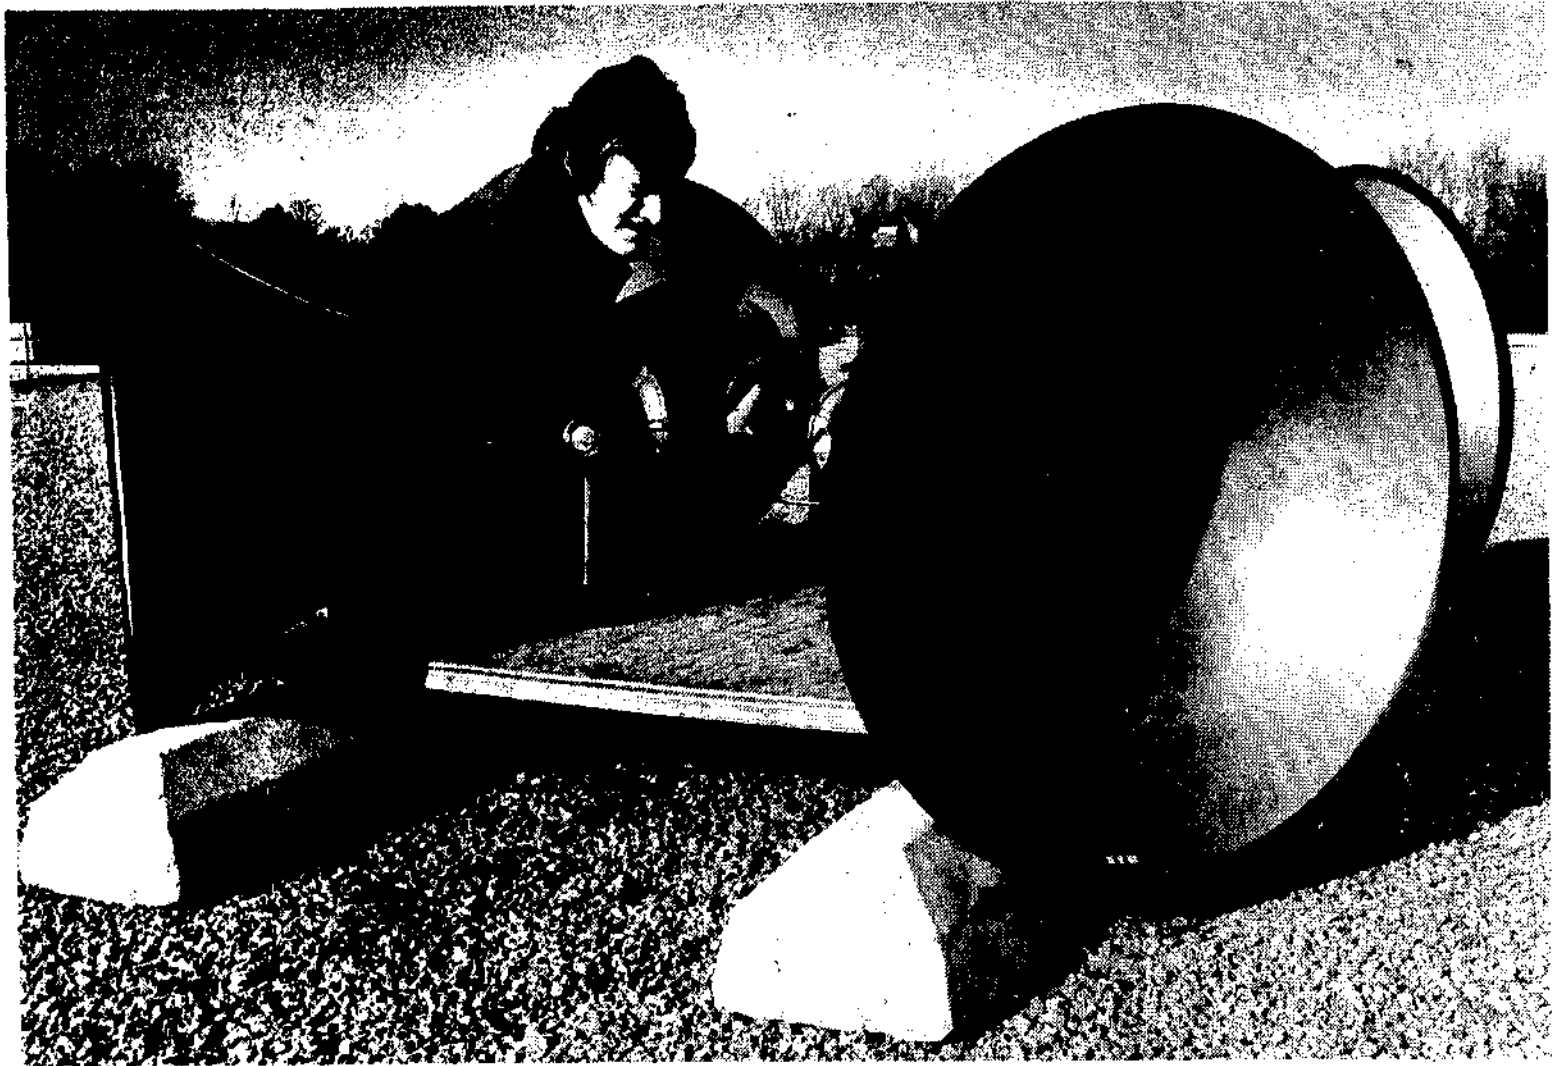

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocaris, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocaris said Wednesday he feels it "premature" to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time, but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles (Continued on Page 5)

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased van-loudspeakers installed atop the village hall. Village employee Dennis Mikosz makes adjustments to the speakers, which also will be used as an emergency warning system.

Wheeling chimes fill air with holiday, other tunes

by LINDA PUNCH

The sound of holiday music fills the air daily in Wheeling with the arrival of the Bicentennial carillon.

The carillon, an electric chime which plays prerecorded tapes, began operating Thanksgiving Day. Its repertoire includes Hanukkah, Christmas and a variety of popular and semiclassical music.

Esther Davis, chairman of the village beautification committee, said the carillon plays the Westminster chimes also play a series of four selections at noon and 6 p.m. daily. The chimes also play a series of four selections at noon and 6 p.m. daily. The holiday schedule includes two additional programs at 6:45 and 7:45 p.m.

THE RESPONSE FROM people who have heard it has been positive except for one person, who complained about the noise. "The over-all reaction has been excellent," she said.

The carillon was purchased with $5,000 raised by the committee, and Mrs. Davis said contributions are still being accepted. The chimes are located in the village hall and include four speakers placed on the roof.

"Even though we have the basic unit, we're still trying to raise funds to increase the tape library. There's also a possibility of purchasing a bell tower," she said.

Mrs. Davis said it is "extremely appropriate" that the carillon was installed during Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon's term of office.

"He has worked so hard to keep peace and harmony between the different political factions in the village. That was my impetus for putting forth so much effort on the project," she said.

CONTRIBUTIONS to the beautification committee will also be used toward payment of a special Bicentennial plaque which will be placed in the village hall next year. The plaque will bear the names of contributors of $100 or more.

Mrs. Davis said the plaque will be precast early next year, and it will "not be one where names are nailed on with a metal square."

"We have to know early if people are interested in a memorial for the plaque," she said.

Bicentennial projects are being funded from the sale of Bicentennial flag pins. Pins are available at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., and sell for $1 each.

Mrs. Davis said several other Bicentennial projects are in progress throughout the village including flower plantings by residents near Cedar and Dundee roads, and Valley Stream and Ill. Rte. 83.

The beautification committee also has planted a Memorial Garden of Day Lilies, the Wheeling village flower, on Dundee Road near Wheeling Road. Other members of the committee include Dagnia Weiner, John Muno and Walter Styszyk.

Juvenile court talks tonight

juvenile court branch," Geocaris said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington. Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep. Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 22 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

"There is talk of urgent need for this facility and I believe if these communities take the initiative and responsibility, and we can express our local need, then we can make an acceptable package to present to Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle," Rep. Macdonald said.

Bowling alley proposed on Arlington Hts. Road

A 40-lane bowling alley with a restaurant and lounge has been proposed along relocated Arlington Heights Road south of Dundee Road.

Arthur Schmidt presented the preliminary plans for the bowling facility to the plat and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday.

Schmidt, who has a similar operation in Streamwood, plans to build on 5.5 acres near the northern industrial park. He is seeking rezoning for the property which is now classified for single-family houses.

While village officials were generally receptive to the idea of a bowling alley in the area, they raised questions about sewer and water service to the site. The area is not now connected to either sewer or water lines, and the nearest ones are along University Drive about 2,000 feet away.

Schmidt said he wanted to open the facility by next fall in time for the formation of new bowling teams and leagues.

The building would be one-story Mediterranean style with face brick construction. It would have meeting rooms and nursery facilities, he said.

Schmidt will meet again with the subcommittee before his plans are reviewed by village department heads. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Students at Twain School, Wheeling, can shop at Santa's secret shop next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for family and friends. The shop, set up in the school, is sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Assn.

Tim Weirville will present a pottery demonstration Tuesday at Twain School, Wheeling. After telling the students a brief history of the craft, he will have them knead clay and run a pottery wheel. Pots in various stages of completion will be displayed, as well as a collection of Weirville's finished works.

The London Junior High School versus Holmes Junior High School girls' basketball game scheduled Friday at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will be played at 4 p.m.

The Stevenson School, Wheeling, parent-teacher group voted at their November meeting to change their present organization structure from its present PTA to PTO, effective immediately.

Contests

"The American Dream: Full Economic Security" is the theme of this year's Martin Luther King Jr. essay contest. The essays, written in 500 words or less must be turned in to school representatives or sent to 694 Lee St., Des Plaines 60016, on or before Dec. 15. A copy of the rules may be obtained by calling 297-4705.

High school and junior high school students are eligible to enter the contest. The two $50 savings bonds for first place, high school and junior high school and the two $25 bonds for second place, high school and junior high school, have been donated by Motorola Inc. The awards will be presented to the winning students at the fourth annual Martin Luther King Jr. dinner which will be held Jan. 17 at the Holiday Inn O'Hare Kennedy, Rosemont.

One essay will be chosen from each school. These essays will compete with each other for the savings bonds. Area journalists will provide the final judging, headed by Dan Baumann, executive editor of Paddock Publications.

Escapes with unedited film of raids

Maine Township man outsmarts Moslem terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Mike Schiff

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Sidon, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Hoffman hospital in '76? Firm hopes to get going

An American Medicorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Medicorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta, Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Medicorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

Aged, disabled to get discounts on RTA vehicles

Senior citizens and handicapped persons will be allowed to ride Regional Transportation Authority vehicles for half price beginning Dec. 15.

The special discount travel cards may be obtained at village halls in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling, and at the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd. Senior citizens must bring proof that they are 65 years old and a photo, 1 1/4-by-1 1/4 inches, when they appear to fill out the applications.

Handicapped persons may pick up information packets at the same locations. In the packets are forms that must be filled out by a physician before the discount card will be issued.

Patrolmen complete three-day workshop

Buffalo Grove Patrolmen Kenneth Blanche and Ronald Gozdecki recently attended a three-day workshop at DePaul University's Suburban Learning Center, Park Ridge.

The workshop is the first in admission to the university's School for New Learning, a non-traditional college for adults 24 years and older.

The program offers a bachelor's degree, certificate and continuing education programs. The workshop session is conducted to help adults define their educational goals.

Persons interested in the School for New Learning should call the suburban center at 692-3567.

Library to host program on women

The Indian Trails Public Library will host a program on the International Women's Year Dec. 10 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Speaking at the program will be Marge Markin, who served as an unofficial delegate to the International Women's Year Conference in Mexico City last summer. Born in Argentina, Mrs. Markin is now a Chicago resident and a member of both the United Nations Assn. and the Juvenile Protective Assn.

The program is sponsored by the Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Wheeling. The public is invited to attend.

Buffalo Grove High starts kids' theater

Tickets for the Children's Theater Series will be available at Buffalo Grove High School Saturday when the first production, "The Ransom of Red Chief," is performed.

There will be five productions performed by professional theater groups at the Buffalo Grove High School, 1100 W. Dundee Rd. Tickets are $6 for all five plays. All performances are Saturdays from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Other plays scheduled are "Cinderella," Jan. 31; "Hansel and Gretel" and "The Frog Prince," March 8; "The International Dancers," April 10; and "Pinocchio," April 24.

St. Mary's women to hold Yule dance

St. Mary's Women's Club will sponsor an "Olde Fashioned Christmas" dance Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the school hall, 75 N. Buffalo Grove Rd.

Featured will be "Twelve Days of Service," an auction that will offer a full-course dinner for 20, a weekend babysitter, a spaghetti dinner for eight, one-day housecleaning and other services to the highest bidder.

There will be food and music provided by the Bob Jay Family Band. Tickets are $2.50 per person and may be obtained by calling 537-4226.

CHRISTMAS IS seen best through the eyes of children — those who believe in Santa. Jack Krisor, Mount Prospect, is spending his sixth season as Randhurst's Santa.

The beard and stomach are all real

by DIANE NERMIGAS
Is Jack Krisor really Santa Claus? Hundreds of children and even some grown-ups would swear to it.

His fluffy-white beard and thick, white hair are real. His belly, buckled under a red suit of velvet, is no pillow. He's 240 pounds of Kris Kringle. Even his jolly, deep "ho, ho, ho's" that echo throughout the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are the real thing.

There's no doubt about it. Children and adults alike waiting in line to see Santa agree that this one must be authentic.

"YOU KNOW," he says, pulling the red cap off his head and leaning over to one side, "I wouldn't think of giving the children anything but the real thing."

Krisor, a 65-year-old Mount Prospect resident, is celebrating his sixth season at Randhurst as you-know-who from the North Pole.

The jolly gentleman thought earlier this year that he might not make it through many more Christmas seasons. His battle with cancer took more than 140 pounds from his 380-pound Kris Kringle figure. But he's cured now and all that unpleasantness is behind him. Now he can concentrate on the thing he loves most — playing Santa and delighting children of all ages.

Each year from the day after Thanksgiving until the big day, he leaves his job as a Buffalo Grove real estate broker to begin his holiday duties. He doesn't return to his "second occupation" until after Christmas.

HE ENJOYS HIS role so much that he even makes house calls on Christmas Eve.

"This is what I wait for all year. This is really my work," he says with a sparkle in his blue eyes. "and it's not just during the Christmas season either."

Krisor is "constantly" being stopped in public places and on the street by adults and children who ask him if he is really Santa Claus — even when he's out of his red suit and boots.

"Everyone tells me I look like him. You start to think that you are Santa Claus after a while," he said. Tots stumble up to the white gazebo and the green throne where Santa sits. They gaze up in awe at the kind face of whiskers and smiles.

"They look up to me and they think I'm the King," Santa says. "They are just beautiful."

Some of the children are shy and rock back and forth in an uneasy effort to tell Santa what they want for Christmas. Others, more daring, excitedly rattle off their order for toys, plant themselves on Santa's knee and tug at his beard. Much to their surprise, it's real.

His Santa role started nearly ten years ago when a friend, noting Krisor's resemblance to that jolly, old figure, suggested that he don the red and white outfit and bring the holiday spirit into the Palatine bank.

"I just love kids and I'm just so happy to be able to do this. I read the letters kids send to Santa and place in the mailbox here. It's my therapy," Krisor said. "It's good for me, it's good for the parents who come up to me here and almost anywhere, stare me in the eyes and tell me they believe," he said.

"But, most of all, it's good for the children. They do believe, and it's a wonderful thing."

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Should a strike occur, commuters will have to

Food costs rise again

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week.

Food prices are up again.

While increases amount to only a few pennies for such items as fresh produce, beef and pork, the dairy case provides some shocks.

dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

Fire chief seeks post in Urbana

by TOM VON MALDER

Allen W. Hulett, Elk Grove Village Fire Chief, is one of the frontrunners for fire chief of the City of Urbana, The Herald has learned. Announcement of the new Urbana fire chief could come as early as Friday.

"Chief Hulett is one of our final candidates. That is all I can say," said Richard Frenks, Urbana administrative officer, Wednesday.

Nine of the 40 candidates who applied for the Urbana job went through

Damage suit moves to county court

Gary Pettee's $12 million damage suit against Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen W. Hulett has been transferred from federal to Cook County Circuit Court.

Robert E. Gordon, Pettee's attorney, Wednesday said he expects a year-and-a-half delay before the case actually comes to trial and possibly a pretrial hearing sometime next summer. A judge would be appointed at that time.

Pettee's suit faced a delay of at least two years in the federal court because of a change in judges.

Pettee filed the suit when his pregnant wife, Jean, died after Hulett recalled an ambulance sent to the Pettee home after an emergency call. Hulett recalled the ambulance because of a village board policy to not provide such service unless it had been contracted for. The policy subsequently was changed.

Mrs. Pettee died of a blood clot. Gordon also has filed a separate $6 million damage suit in circuit court. One of the suits charges "wanton and willful" negligence and the other states the Pettees' civil rights were abused.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin last summer ruled that Village Pres. Charles J. Zetek should not be a defendant in the case and dismissed the unborn child as a plaintiff.

Illinois is located, has a population of 36,000 and a fire department of the same approximate size as Elk Grove Village. There are three fire stations and 43 firemen.

Hulett, former Oak Lawn fire chief, came to Elk Grove Village in January 1969. He helped mold the fire department from a nearly all-volunteer force to a full-time professional department.

an assessment process sponsored by the Illinois Dept. of Personnel. One source told The Herald that Hulett scored highest in the testing and is expected to be named fire chief.

FRENKS SAID THE announcement of a new chief probably would come in "a week to 10 days," although the source said the announcement was expected Friday if a salary had been agreed on.

Hulett's current salary is $21,000, village officials said. The salary offered for the Urbana position, which has been vacant since July, is slightly more than $23,000.

Hulett, through his secretary, did not deny he had applied to be Urbana's fire chief but said he does not "really know enough," when asked if he was a finalist for the job.

Hulett has been the center of controversy since the January 1974 incident in which Jean Pettee and her unborn child died after Hulett ordered a village ambulance not to respond to an emergency call at the Pettee home.

THE AMBULANCE was ordered back because of a village board policy which at that time prohibited fire and ambulance service to families in unincorporated areas who had not bought the service from the village.

County nixes village road work plan

Elk Grove Village officials were unsuccessful in attempts to get the Cook County Highway Dept. to consider upgrading and widening several streets to provide better access to the village from the west.

"We were told politely. 'We don't think so,'" Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said of the village's request that the county widen Nerge Road. "They told us maybe 1982 and perhaps by 1985 it could be put into the county plans."

Mrs. Vanderweel said emergency vehicles sometimes have difficulty traveling on Nerge Road because it is so narrow.

ANOTHER REQUEST, she said, was for the county to upgrade Old Schaumburg Road east of Meacham Road to Old Ill. Rte. 53. The village also plans to ask the state to complete Old Ill. 53 across the quarry to hookup with Rohlfing Road.

Mrs. Vanderweel said this would provide easy access to the village from Schaumburg Road to the west. "They didn't like that either and said no completely," she said.

Trustee Theodore J. Staddler, who along with Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis were the other village officials in attendance, said he learned "absolutely nothing" at the meeting.

"We were more on a hunt to see what they would do," he said of the meeting. The county would widen Biesterfeld Road to the east if the federal government builds a Biesterfeld Road interchange with Interstate 90, he said.

TWO OFFICIALS from Alexian Brothers Medical Center also attended the meeting. Brother Felix Betten-dorf said he was there because "I wanted to be aware of what is happening."

"We are very much concerned. We need both east-west and north-south access routes to the hospital," he said.

A meeting between village officials and state highway department officials has been set up for Dec. 17.

Man invades home, takes purse, cash

Elk Grove Village police are looking for a man who invaded the home of a local resident Tuesday and stole a woman's purse with $7 in cash.

Police said a man wearing a red ski mask entered the home of Margie Vanata, 1240 Dover Ln., about 5:30 p.m. after ringing the doorbell.

The woman's son, 6, opened the door. The mother, in another room at the time, heard the disturbance and took her four children into her bedroom and alerted police.

The man apparently fled, however, before police arrived, police said. He was described as about six feet tall with a slim build wearing a blue parka with fake fur around the hood. He wore dark pants and tan shoes, said police.

Parks to consider bids for bonds

The Elk Grove Park District will consider bids for a $200,000 general obligation bond sale at its 8 p.m. meeting today at the park office, 499 Biesterfeld Rd.

The money is to be used for park improvements and will be repaid within three years.

The bonds are being issued through the district's nonreferendum bonding power.

The park board also will begin discussion on a possible merger with the Elk Grove Athletic Assn., which conducts boys football and girls softball programs.

Talks tonight on juvenile branch

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep. Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 6 p.m. dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg. Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a new $1.5 million police and courts building under construction on Schaumburg Road.

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased vandalism in the village.

Virginia Macdonald

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocar, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocar said Wednesday he feels it "premature" to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time, but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles juvenile court branch," Geocar said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington. Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep. Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 22 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

"There is talk of urgent need for this facility and I believe if these communities take the initiative and responsibility, and we can express our local need, then we can make an acceptable package to present to Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle," Rep. Macdonald said.

Aged, disabled to get discounts on RTA vehicles

Senior citizens and handicapped persons will be allowed to ride Regional Transportation Authority vehicles for half price beginning Dec. 15.

The special discount travel cards may be obtained at village halls in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling, and at the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd. Senior citizens must bring proof that they are 65 years old and a photo, 1 1/4-by-1 1/4 inches, when they appear to fill out the applications.

Handicapped persons may pick up information packets at the same locations. In the packets are forms that must be filled out by a physician before the discount card will be issued.

Parks earn $55,134 from bonds

The Elk Grove Park District has earned $55,134 through investments of bond money in three suburban banks during the past two years.

The $55,134 represents just under 10 per cent of the original $560,000 of the two bond issues.

"The suburban banks usually give us one-half to one-quarter of a point more (interest) than the downtown (Chicago) banks," said Bart K. Dill, park commissioner and treasurer.

The three banks are the Bank of Elk Grove, Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove and Plum Grove Bank, Rolling Meadows.

"WE HAVE a program that anytime there is idle money, the treasurer calls up the three banks for bids on interest rates. The highest interest rate gets the money," Dill said.

The money usually is put into 30-day certificates of deposit, and the bids are checked with current market information.

With the additional interest money and by using park district employees as labor, the park district has been able to accomplish more improvements than originally planned through the bond issues, said Jack A. Claes, director of parks and recreation.

"We have put in more trees, landscaping and have bought more equipment," Claes said.

MONEY AND projects from both bond accounts are almost complete. The park board is expected to approve a new, $200,000 park improvement bond issue tonight.

Dill said the new bond money will be handled differently in hopes of increasing its interest yield. "We will invest much of it in 60-to 90-day certificates which earn you more, sometimes as much as a point more," he said.

Claes will draw up a schedule of when different amounts of the new bond money will be needed. Funds will be invested to meet that schedule, Dill said.

Postman pulls two children from Buffalo Grove Lake

by JOHN MAES

The mail delivery in Buffalo Grove's Crossings subdivision was a bit late Wednesday afternoon but residents probably wouldn't mind at all if they knew the reason.

Donald Hall, the 21-year-old mail carrier, had to take an impromptu break from his work about 1 p.m. to save the lives of two small children who had fallen through the ice in a nearby lake.

Hall waded into chest-high water and pulled Jacob Aidlin, 4, and Lisa Aidlin, 6, to safety. The children were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment and later were released.

JACOB AND LISA are the children of Emma Aidlin, 1279 Farnsworth Rd. Hall was on his mail route on Farnsworth Road in the subdivision when a boy, apparently playing with the Aidlin children when the mishap occurred, alerted him to the trouble.

"I was coming down Farnsworth Road delivering mail and I heard a cry for help. It was very faint," he said. "I started looking around to see where it was coming from and a boy came over the hill and I asked, 'Is someone in trouble?' He said someone fell in the lake."

Dropping his mail sack, Hall ran toward the lake.

"I saw a kid bobbing in the water," he said.

He went out into the frozen pond and pulled Jacob to safety.

"I DIDN'T KNOW another kid was out there but the other boy kept saying, 'There's another one out there. There's another one out there,'" he said.

Hall said the girl had already gone under but he waded back in and pulled her out.

"She was very close to drowning," he said.

"I just kept thinking of my sister's two little kids, they're just about the same age — it's just the fact that I could see these kids being my nieces and how their parents must feel."

By this time the incident had attracted the attention of several neighbors who began coming outside with blankets to warm Hall and the two children before an ambulance came to take the children to the hospital.

But Hall, who is engaged to be married next June was beset by an injury no worse than a cold chill and wet uniform.

"The uniform is completely soaked and I don't know how that wool is going to turn out," he said.

Library board wrapup

10 employees to receive salary hikes

Salary increases from 5.5 to 8 per cent for 10 library employees have been approved by the Elk Grove Village Library Board.

Janet Steiner, administrative librarian, said the salaries were those of three department heads, two full-time staff members and five part-time workers.

Under a new policy, the library staff is divided in half for salary-raise considerations. The next half will be reviewed in May. Previously, each employee's salary was reviewed on his hiring anniversary date.

Brochure mailings OK'd

Some 25,000 new library informational brochures will be mailed to village residents in January. The go-ahead on the project was given Tuesday.

November circulation up

Ms. Steiner reported library circulation was up 31 per cent for the month of November, including a 46 per cent increase in the circulation of adult materials. The over-all circulation increased from 14,336 a year ago to 18,804 this November. The adult circulation increase was from 6,885 to 10,663.

Escapes with unedited film of raids

Maine Township man outsmarts Moslem terrorists

by JOHN MAES

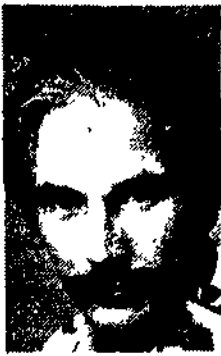

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Saida, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

'76 start for Hoffman hospital?

An American Medicorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Medicorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta, Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Medicorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

Missionary lives to new beat in Africa

by DIANE MERMIGAS

The hot, dusty jungles of Liberia, Africa, are nothing like the forest preserves near Des Plaines where Ronald Geikow grew up.

Geikow, 174 Ashland St., is a senior seminary student who recently returned from a 10-month mission in a village outside of Monrovia, the capital of Liberia and the oldest republic on the African continent. He is continuing his studies at the Lutheran School of Theology, Chicago.

Geikow lived in a mud hut with a tin roof, ate a basic diet of rice and fresh fruits and became accustomed to the throbbing tribal music in lieu of records, radio or television.

"I've always been interested in finding out what it's like to live in a third world country. I wanted to live away from the United States, where we are too caught up in materialistic things, and live somewhere where it is simple," he said.

GEIKOW'S WORK, part of his preparation to become a Lutheran pastor, consisted of teaching eighth-grade English, organizing youth groups and preaching in the village church.

The typical eighth grader was male, 22 years old, a farmer by trade with a family to support. It was common for children to continue their father's work in the fields, learn basic English and go no higher than the ninth grade, he said.

Only recently have some Liberians attended medical school in a nearby hospital or college in some of Africa's largest cities.

"It was an underdeveloped country by our standards, but I don't think that's a fair way to judge the people. They are by no means backward and are familiar with Christianity and our lifestyle here in the United States," Geikow said.

"In fact, most of the people there identify with the American black. They wear their hair in the Afro style, use what is generally black slang and know how to do the Hump dance," he said.

THE TRIBE'S own pagan religion is not widely supported, so Geikow found the villagers receptive to his Lutheran teachings.

However, there were certain elements in their culture that could not be altered by any effort. Women perform most of the work that needed to be done, although men hold the leadership positions. The local witch doctor's voodoo magic is still preferred over the modern medical technology available to them in area hospitals.

"Even with these obvious differences in our backgrounds, I was completely accepted by them and there was no problem with communication. They appreciated what I had to offer to them," Geikow said.

"The only thing that might have surprised them was to see someone as young as I am (24) visit their village with so many things to offer them," he said.

GEIKOW HOPES TO receive another grant similar to the one from the Lutheran Church of America that sponsored his work in Liberia.

"I would like to do at least the next 10 years of my work overseas, because I'm young enough now to be flexible for it. It is encouraging to be somewhere where people need your services, where they need and want to have an established Christian way of life," he said.

"It's not a matter of trying to change their culture. It's just blending Christianity with what they have. And it not only helps them, but it does something special for me too," Geikow said.

CHRISTMAS IS seen best through the eyes of children — those who believe in Santa. Jack Krisor, Mount Prospect, is spending his sixth season as Randhurst's Santa.

Some swear this Santa is real

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Is Jack Krisor really Santa Claus? Hundreds of children and even some grown-ups would swear to it.

His fluffy-white beard and thick, white hair are real. His belly, buckled under a red suit of velvet, is no pillow. He's 240 pounds of Kris Kringle. Even his jolly, deep "ho, ho, ho's" that echo throughout the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are the real thing.

There's no doubt about it. Children and adults alike waiting in line to see Santa agree that this one must be authentic.

"YOU KNOW," he says, pulling the red cap off his head and leaning over to one side, "I wouldn't think of giving the children anything but the real thing."

Krisor, a 65-year-old Mount Prospect resident, is celebrating his sixth season at Randhurst as you-know-who from the North Pole.

The jolly gentleman thought earlier this year that he might not make it through many more Christmas seasons. His battle with cancer took more than 140 pounds from his 380-pound Kris Kringle figure. But he's cured now and all that unpleasantness is behind him. Now he can concentrate on the thing he loves most — playing Santa and delighting children of all ages.

Each year from the day after Thanksgiving until the big day, he leaves his job as a Buffalo Grove real estate broker to begin his holiday duties. He doesn't return to his "second occupation" until after Christmas.

HE ENJOYS HIS role so much that he even makes house calls on Christmas Eve.

"This is what I wait for all year. This is really my work," he says with a sparkle in his blue eyes, "and it's not just during the Christmas season either."

Krisor is "constantly" being stopped in public places and on the street by adults and children who ask him if he is really Santa Claus — even when he's out of his red suit and boots.

"Everyone tells me I look like him. You start to think that you are Santa Claus after a while," he said. Tots stumble up to the white gazebo and the green throne where Santa sits. They gaze up in awe at the kind face of whiskers and smiles.

"They look up to me and they think I'm the King," Santa says. "They are just beautiful."

Some of the children are shy and rock back and forth in an uneasy effort to tell Santa what they want for Christmas. Others, more daring, excitedly rattle off their order for toys, plant themselves on Santa's knee and tug at his beard. Much to their surprise, it's real.

His Santa role started nearly ten years ago when a friend, noting Krisor's resemblance to that jolly, old figure, suggested that he don the red and white outfit and bring the holiday spirit into the Palatine bank.

"I just love kids and I'm just so happy to be able to do this. I read the letters kids send to Santa and place in the mailbox here. It's my therapy," Krisor said. "It's good for me, it's good for the parents who come up to me here and almost anywhere, stare me in the eyes and tell me they believe," he said.

"But, most of all, it's good for the children. They do believe, and it's a wonderful thing."

Police investigate shooting incident

Arlington Heights police are investigating an accidental shooting incident in which a patrolman and a male friend were wounded Tuesday night at the Robin Hood Restaurant in the Northpoint Shopping Center.

Police said Patrolman Ronald McClaskey and James Pittzaferro, 40, Des Plaines, were shot when McClaskey's gun discharged while they were examining the weapon.

McClaskey, who was off duty, was shot in the hand, and Pittzaferro wounded in the foot, police reported. They and another friend were talking about weapons, and McClaskey handed his gun to Pittzaferro for examination, police said.

After he looked at the gun, Pittza-ferro gave the gun back to McClaskey when it discharged, police said.

Only one of the two men was admitted to the hospital. Police reported the wounds were not serious.

Police are investigating the incident to see if departmental charges should be placed against McClaskey. Police would not release McClaskey's age.

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

by BARBARA LADD

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week.

Food prices are up again.

While increases amount to only a few pennies for such items as fresh produce, beef and pork, the dairy case provides some shocks.

SHOPPERS WILL FIND prices raised a nickel.

Food price survey on Page 8 of Sugar 'n' Spice.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

ALL ABOVE AVERAGE. Students in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are above national averages on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills given this year, but some areas of concern have shown up. Primary math development is slow, and seventh-grade scores have slipped in some language arts areas. District officials will study the results in the coming months.

Dist. 15 students post above-average test scores

by MARILYN Mc DONALD

Above-average scores have been posted by Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 students who took the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills.

Administrators said they will study results for each school and each child to see how the district's educational program can be improved.

The Iowa scores show that Dist. 15 pupils are an average of 4½ months ahead of their peers in the nationally-administered achievement tests. But close study of the district-wide scores reveal several trends:

- Pupils in second and third grades made no improvement from last year on tests in math concepts, math problems or total math skills. Fourth and fifth graders showed improvement during the last year in one or two of these tests, but sixth, seventh and eighth graders showed consistent improvement in all three math tests.

- Reading and vocabulary skills consistently improved over last year in grades two through seven, but remained at last year's levels in eighth grade.

- In the writing skills — spelling, capitalization, punctuation, word usage and language arts — fourth, fifth and sixth graders improved from last year on every skill, some by as much as three months. But seventh graders dropped behind last year's scores on capitalization, punctuation and word usage.

- In long-range studies of Iowa scores for seventh and eighth graders, pupils made less than three years progress in three years time on spelling, punctuation and word usage. Seventh graders also made less than (Continued on Page 5)

Macdonald, village officials

Youth court branch discussion tonight

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep. Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 6 p.m. lunch-dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a new $1.5 million police and courts building under construction on Schaumburg Road.

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased vandalism in the village.

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocaris, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocaris said Wednesday he feels it "premature" to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time, but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles juvenile court branch," Geocaris said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington.

Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep. Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 22 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

Airport feasibility study at standstill, official says

Schaumburg's airport feasibility study is at a standstill pending Federal Aviation Administration approval to proceed with Phase Two of the project, Fred Dietrich, village transportation committee chairman, said Wednesday.

Dietrich told committee members the consulting firm preparing the $56,000 study has agreed to include in its report an environmental impact study and public hearings as required by the FAA.

The study is expected to determine the advisability of purchase and improvement by the village of the 120-acre Schaumburg Airport, Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road.

AT THE CONCLUSION of phase one, Howard, Needles, Tammer and Bergendoff recommended Schaumburg purchase the airport, provided the total package is limited to $8.4 million, state and federal funding is available and the project is found environmentally acceptable.

Several weeks ago, FAA officials delayed the start of phase two to allow consultants time to complete unfinished work while the federal agency conducts an air-space analysis.

Some federal officials expressed concern about the Schaumburg project because of its proximity to O'Hare Airport. They suggested the air-space study would determine whether traffic problems could result from an improved private airfield.

Dietrich said results of the federal air-space study are expected by the end of December. Dietrich said he received a letter from the consultants saying they will submit an FAA-required forecast of the number of passengers expected to use the field during the next 20 years.

"BUT, THEY explained that as a limited visual flight rules airport with no regularly scheduled flights, the number of anticipated passengers would be small and have no significance on the feasibility on public ownership of the field," Dietrich said.

He said a final draft of the study report to be prepared at the end of Phase Two will include comments from several public agencies.

The village has been urged to complete the project by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission and Chicago-area Transportation Study.

"But basically, the consultants say they believe they satisfactorily completed phase one according to our contract with them, and they say it's more extra work as requested by the FAA and the village will be forced to give the firm additional compensation," Dietrich said.

Two-thirds of the cost of the study was paid with federal planning grants. A portion came from the project, and the remaining costs of the study were paid by the village as sponsor.

three years progress on reading, while eighth graders also fell behind on language arts and graph usage.
Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction, Tuesday said further research is needed to determine why primary grades are not progressing on math tests, why reading and vocabulary scores have stagnated in eighth grade and why seventh graders have slipped on language arts scores.

But Omiatek pointed out that seventh and eighth graders may be showing slowed progress on Iowa tests because of a negative attitude towards testing.
Representatives of Houghton Mifflin Co., publishers of the Iowa tests, say they are noticing a national trend of declining scores in junior high grades

Poor scores may be caused by the fact that junior high students have taken the Iowa tests so many times before and find them routine by seventh and eighth grade, officials say.
"MY PERSONAL opinion is that we give this test too frequently," said Supt. Frank Whiteley at Tuesday's education committee meeting. Whiteley said students fail to get "psyched up" for the test after so many times, and thus, don't perform as well as they might.

Omiatek also said that seventh and eighth graders may have reached their highest level of achievement on some tests, and then began to regress.
District officials value the Iowa tests as indicators of how the district is doing nationally, but they also use them as diagnostic tools to determine where individual children need work

Escapes with unedited film of raids

Maine Township man outsmarts Moslem terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

Mike Schiff

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return,

"and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Saida, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

'76 start for Hoffman hospital?

An American Mediacorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Mediacorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta, Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Mediacorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

GOP sets Christmas party

Members of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township will hold their annual Christmas party Friday following the 8:30 p.m. regular business meeting in party headquarters, 839 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg.

Lynnea Miller and Bill Weaver are chairmen of the holiday party.

Parks plan dance recital

Schaumburg Park District dance classes will present their annual winter dance recital Dec. 13 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at Jane Addams Junior High School, 700 S. Springguth Rd.

Tiny tot ballet, ballet, gymnastics, baton and modern jazz students will perform.

Beer-can exchange set

Boys and girls are being encouraged to participate in Schaumburg Park District's Jan. 10 beer-can exchange from noon to 3 p.m. at Schaumburg High School cafeteria, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.

Participants will be divided into three age groups — 7 to 9 year olds, 10 to 13 year olds and 14 to 16 year olds.

First and second place awards will be given for the best exhibit in each age group.

Registration is necessary to reserve a space at the exchange.

Registration forms can be obtained at Melneke Community Center, 220 W. Weathersfield Way, beginning Dec. 15.

Letter boxes for Santa

Schaumburg Park District will play Santa Claus' helper again this year by placing mail boxes for the jolly old soul at Melneke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, and Jennings Youth Center, 220 S. Civic Dr.

The mail boxes will be up and waiting for letters for Santa Monday through Dec. 19.

Park district officials suggest Schaumburg children mail their letters to Santa as early as possible to receive a prompt reply, and urge parents to make sure the full name and address of the child is included.

2 juveniles charged with 9 burglaries

Schaumburg police arrested two local youths Wednesday afternoon in connection with nine burglaries in the Weathersfield subdivision, police said.

Police recovered more than $1,000 worth of jewelry, knives, guns, coin collections and television sets from the youths' homes and from persons to whom they allegedly sold the items.

The youths, aged 15 and 16, were arrested after an investigation by detectives Dennis Hopy and Michael Egan. The home burglaries occurred between Oct. 14 and Nov. 10, police reported.

The juveniles each were charged with nine counts of burglary. They were released to the custody of their parents pending Cook County Juvenile Court action.

High School! Dist. 211

Conant High School's choir and jazz band will present a Christmas program at Tuesday's meeting of the school's booster club. The 8 p.m. meeting will be in the school cafeteria, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates.

The home economics classes at Palatine High School are in the process of collecting recipes to be used in a centennial cookbook. A search for traditional family favorites with prizes to be awarded by category is being conducted by the department. The following major categories will be considered: appetizers, beverages, breads, cakes, cookies, desserts, salads, soups, vegetables, ethnic idea and main dish entrees.

Contest rules are: Single recipe entries must be typed or written legibly in ink, must include name and address, and, if possible, a short family history of the recipe. All entries will be judged on the basis of originality and taste as well as the accurate listing of ingredients, proper measurements and the clarity of directions.

All entries will be reviewed by the home economics department under the direction of Pamela Block. To be eligible for judging, all entries must be postmarked no later than Dec. 15. None will be returned. All entries should be addressed to: Centennial Cookbook Contest, L. B. Newendorp, Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine, Ill. 60067.

The Bicentennial Committee of Conant High School will sponsor a freedom fair, "Reflections of the Past: Images of the Future," in March.

It is intended that the fair be a community project. Any group or individual desiring to exhibit crafts, hobbies, homemaking skills, antiques or collections that relate to American history are invited to participate.

Information may be obtained by writing to: Conant High School, Bicentennial Committee, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172. Phone calls should be directed to Ron Szymanski, 885-4366 ext. 75.

Strike may be averted

From Herald news services

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Should a strike occur, commuters will have to

by BARBARA LADD

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week.

Food prices are up again.

While increases amount to only a few pennies for such items as fresh produce, beef and pork, the dairy case provides some shocks.

SHOPPERS WILL FIND prices raised a nickel.

dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

ALL ABOVE AVERAGE. Students in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are above national averages on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills given this year, but some areas of concern have shown up. Primary math development is slow, and seventh-grade scores have slipped in some language arts areas. District officials will study the results in the coming months.

Policemen to attend SWAT school

Five Rolling Meadows policemen will attend the FBI Special Weapons and Tactics school in Washington, D. C. next week to learn updated techniques on how to handle major crimes.

Police Chief Lewis Case said

Wednesday his men were the first policemen in the Northwest suburbs to be invited to the free school.

When the policemen return from the week-long program they will be formed into a team which will be called in cases of extreme emergency, such as snipers on a rooftop or hostages being held by robbers, Case said.

"We have to keep up on modern methods," Case said. "The criminals seem to be well-educated, and we have to keep up."

Starting at the SWAT school Sunday will be Lt. Vernon Wandersee, Sgt. Charles Poellien, Sgt. Timothy Lonergan and Patrolmen Richard Hammer and Marvin Hamann.

Case said his department was lucky to have five men invited because the waiting list for the school includes about 10,000 policemen. There are no costs involved for the city because the FBI pays for transportation, food and lodging, Case said.

He said the school will cover "all different crimes" including bomb incidents. The FBI has a simulated city environment where the policemen will train, Case said.

Library considers vote to hike tax rate

by JERRY THOMAS

The Rolling Meadows Library Board is considering a referendum to seek voter approval of a tax rate increase and expansion of the present library.

Library officials will discuss the feasibility of the referendum with the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday in an executive session. Rodney Dahlin, library board president, said the executive session is "to review information and report on progress and discuss land acquisition."

The amount of the proposed tax increase and bond issue for the library expansion have not been worked out.

Rolling Meadows residents are now taxed 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation for library operations.

"MOST LIBRARIES in the area have a tax rate double that of ours," Dahlin said.

Dahlin said it is premature to discuss whether the library board Tuesday will ask the city to support a referendum.

"We, Mrs. Drescher (head librarian) and I, have been invited by the city council to review information we have gathered, report on progress of the investigation and discuss land acquisition," Dahlin said. "I don't have the right to speak for the library board members but I have been conducting further investigation concerning the idea of a referendum as the board requested," he added.

Dahlin said the proposed referendum will be discussed in executive session because of land acquisition.

"We have a severe parking problem and have been reviewing the possibility of purchasing additional land," Dahlin said.

THE LIBRARY board met with City Atty Donald Rose in executive session last Tuesday also to discuss land acquisition.

Dahlin said the board has not called for a referendum but has been investigating the idea for several weeks.

"A budgetary pinch came to light in May, June and July of this year and we may be feeling its full effect in early 1976. This board is attempting to investigate every means of funding a progressive library and continuing to provide the services the community demands and is using," he said.

Dahlin said the library is not a district with its own taxing powers similar to the city department.

"SINCE OUR BOARD has discussed the feasibility of a referendum we feel the city officials should have all the information we have gathered," he added.

The library board last Tuesday approved a $132,800 budget for 1976-77 that exceeds anticipated revenues by $22,000.

Library and city officials at recent finance committee meetings have expressed a concern that the city's assessed valuation has peaked.

Dahlin said if the assessed valuation of Rolling Meadows stops growing or drops, the library will be dramatically affected.

"Demands for services keep increasing and salaries and contractual costs as well as materials are also escalating. Unless revenues keep up with the increased costs the library can be in an uncomfortable financial situation," he said.

Dist. 15 students post above-average test scores

by MARILYN Mc DONALD

Above-average scores have been posted by Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 students who took the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills.

Administrators said they will study results for each school and each child to see how the district's educational program can be improved.

The Iowa scores show that Dist. 15 pupils are an average of 4½ months ahead of their peers in the nationally-administered achievement tests. But close study of the district-wide scores reveal several trends.

- Pupils in second and third grades made no improvement from last year on tests in math concepts, math problems or total math skills. Fourth and fifth graders showed improvement during the last year in one or two of these tests, but sixth, seventh and eighth graders showed consistent improvement in all three math tests.

- Reading and vocabulary skills consistently improved over last year in grades two through seven, but remained at last year's levels in eighth grade.

- In the writing skills — spelling, capitalization, punctuation, word usage and language arts — fourth, fifth and sixth graders improved from last year on every skill, some by as much as three months. But seventh graders dropped behind last year's scores on capitalization, punctuation and word usage.

- In long-range studies of Iowa scores for seventh and eighth graders, pupils made less than three years progress in three years time on spelling, punctuation and word usage. Seventh graders also made less than three years progress on reading, while eighth graders also fell behind on language arts and graph usage.

Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction, Tuesday said further research is needed to determine why primary grades are not progressing on math tests, why reading and vocabulary scores have stagnated in eighth grade and why seventh graders have slipped on language arts scores.

But Omiatek pointed out that seventh and eighth graders may be showing slowed progress on Iowa tests because of a negative attitude towards testing.

Representatives of Houghton Mifflin Co., publishers of the Iowa tests, say they are noticing a national trend of declining scores in junior high grades. Poor scores may be caused by the fact that junior high students have taken the Iowa tests so many times before and find them routine by seventh and eighth grade, officials say.

"MY PERSONAL opinion is that we give this test too frequently," said Supt. Frank Whiteley at Tuesday's education committee meeting. Whiteley said students fail to get "psyched up" for the test after so many times, and thus, don't perform as well as they might.

Omiatek also said that seventh and eighth graders may have reached their highest level of achievement on some tests, and then began to regress.

District officials value the Iowa tests as indicators of how the district is doing nationally, but they also use them as diagnostic tools to determine where individual children need work.

Education committee members have suggested that Dist. 15 compare its Iowa scores with those surrounding districts. Whiteley cautioned board members against "ending up in academic competition" should a score exchange occur.

"The key is not what this says to the district but what it says to the individual kid," Whiteley said.

Talks tonight on juvenile branch

State Rep Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 6 p.m. dutch-treat dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a new $15 million police and courts building under construction on Schaumburg Road.

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased vandalism in the village.

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocaris, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocaris said Wednesday he feels it

'premature' to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles juvenile court branch," Geocaris said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington. Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres Raymond Kesell said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 22 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

"There is talk of urgent need for this facility and I believe if these communities take the initiative and responsibility, and we can express our local need, then we can make an acceptable package to present to Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle," Rep Macdonald said.

Library board wrapup

Special recognition to 'All-Star' staff

Rolling Meadows Public Library officials will accept the Illinois Library Association's All-Star Library Award at a 3 p.m. ceremony today during the ILA convention in Chicago.

The library staff was commended by board members for dedication and hard work in winning the award.

The award is given to Illinois libraries that have done the most to attempt to achieve ILA standards.

Rolling Meadows Library received the recognition for its efforts to expand services within the community. Judith Drescher, head librarian, said the library has taken services to people who do not or cannot come to the library — the handicapped, the homebound and those who live far away.

Many children participating

Approximately 850 children either came to the library for planned programs or participated in library programs at their schools during November.

Groups from St. Collette's, Willow Bend and Central Road schools as well as Brownies visited the library last month for orientation programs, movies and research.

More than 220 children attended the preschool programs.

'Loan program working well'

Judith Drescher, head librarian, told Rolling Meadows Library board members that the library's teacher loan program is working well.

More than 400 items have been requested by local teachers who use the materials in classrooms.

Drescher to speak at conference

Head Librarian Judith Drescher will be a speaker at the Illinois Library Assn. conference in Chicago Friday.

Lobbyist proposal delayed

Library board member Eunice Semple asked others on the board to consider hiring a part time lobbyist to ensure library interests are promoted on a legislative level. She said the possibility of sharing the cost of a lobbyist has been discussed at the North Suburban Library Systems meetings.

The board made no commitments and had a mixed reaction to the proposal which will be brought up for discussion in the future.

Vehicle stickers, dog tags on sale

Rolling Meadows City vehicle stickers and dog licenses are on sale at the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

Passenger car vehicle stickers and dog licenses fees are $3. There is no special rate for senior citizens. Truck sticker fee rates are available at the city clerk's office.

After Feb. 15 a $5 penalty fee is added to the license fee. The penalty fee does not apply to new residents who have 30 days to obtain a vehicle sticker.

Escapes with unedited film of raids

Maine Township man outsmarts Moslem terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring ruse where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the

30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game

tions. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist, so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Saida, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Postman pulls two children from Buffalo Grove Lake

by JOHN MAES

The mail delivery in Buffalo Grove's Crossings subdivision was a bit late Wednesday afternoon but residents probably wouldn't mind at all if they knew the reason.

Donald Hall, the 21-year-old mail carrier, had to take an impromptu break from his work about 1 p.m. to save the lives of two small children who had fallen through the ice in a nearby lake.

Hall waded into chest-high water and pulled Jacob Aidlin, 4, and Lisa Aidlin, 6, to safety. The children were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment and later were released.

JACOB AND LISA are the children of Emma Aidlin, 1279 Farnsworth Rd. Hall was on his mail route on Farnsworth Road in the subdivision when a boy, apparently playing with the Aidlin children when the mishap occurred, alerted him to the trouble.

"I was coming down Farnsworth Road delivering mail and I heard a cry for help. It was very faint," he said. "I started looking around to see where it was coming from and a boy came over the hill and I asked, 'Is someone in trouble?' He said someone fell in the lake."

Dropping his mail sack, Hall ran toward the lake.

"I saw a kid bobbing in the water," he said.

He went out into the frozen pond and pulled Jacob to safety.

"I DIDN'T KNOW another kid was out there but the other boy kept saying, 'There's another one out there. There's another one out there,'" he said.

Hall said the girl had already gone under but he waded back in and pulled her out.

"She was very close to drowning," he said.

"I just kept thinking of my sister's two little kids, they're just about the same age — it's just the fact that I could see these kids being my nieces and how their parents must feel."

By this time the incident had attracted the attention of several neighbors who began coming outside with blankets to warm Hall and the two children before an ambulance came to take the children to the hospital.

But Hall, who is engaged to be married next June was beset by an injury no worse than a cold chill and wet uniform.

"The uniform is completely soaked and I don't know how that wool is going to turn out," he said.

Police probe gun accident in Arlington

Arlington Heights police are investigating an accidental shooting incident in which a patrolman and a male friend were wounded Tuesday night at the Robin Hood restaurant in the Northpoint Shopping Center.

Police said Patrolman Ronald McClaskey and James Pittzaferro, 40, Des Plaines, were shot when McClaskey's gun discharged while they were examining the weapon.

McClaskey, who was off duty, was shot in the hand, and Pittzaferro wounded in the foot, police reported. They and another friend were talking about weapons, and McClaskey handed his gun to Pittzaferro for examination, police said.

After he looked at the gun, Pittzaferro gave the gun back to McClaskey when it discharged, police said.

Only one of the two men was admitted to the hospital. Police reported the wounds were not serious.

Police are investigating the incident to see if departmental charges should be placed against McClaskey. Police would not release McClaskey's age.

'76 start for Hoffman hospital?

An American Medicorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Medicorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta, Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Medicorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments.

Food costs rise again

Housewives may have their holiday mood dampened when they go to the supermarket this week. Food prices are up again.

dime or even a quarter over last month for some dairy and egg products.

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring.

ALL ABOVE AVERAGE. Students in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are above national averages on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills given this year, but some areas of concern have shown up. Primary math development is slow, and seventh-grade scores have slipped in some language arts areas. District officials will study the results in the coming months.

4 1/2 months ahead of peers

High test scores posted in Dist. 15

by MARILYN Mc DONALD

Above-average scores have been posted by Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 students who took the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills.

Administrators said they will study results for each school and each child to see how the district's educational program can be improved.

The Iowa scores show that Dist. 15 pupils are an average of 4 1/2 months ahead of their peers in the nationally-administered achievement tests. But close study of the district-wide scores reveal several trends:

- Pupils in second and third grades made no improvement from last year on tests in math concepts, math problems or total math skills. Fourth and fifth graders showed improvement during the last year in one or two of these tests, but sixth, seventh and eighth graders showed consistent improvement in all three math tests.

- Reading and vocabulary skills consistently improved over last year in grades two through seven, but remained at last year's levels in eighth grade.

- In the writing skills — spelling, capitalization, punctuation, word usage and language arts — fourth, fifth and sixth graders improved from last year on every skill, some by as much as three months. But seventh graders dropped behind last year's scores on capitalization, punctuation and word usage.

- In long-range studies of Iowa scores for seventh and eighth graders, pupils made less than three years progress in three years time on spelling, punctuation and word usage. Seventh graders also made less than three years progress on reading, while eighth graders also fell behind on language arts and graph usage.

Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction, Tuesday said further research is needed to determine why primary grades are not progressing on math tests, why reading and vocabulary scores have stagnated in eighth grade and why seventh graders have slipped on language arts scores.

But Omiatek pointed out that seventh and eighth graders may be showing slowed progress on Iowa tests because of a negative attitude towards testing.

Representatives of Houghton Mifflin Co., publishers of the Iowa tests, say they are noticing a national trend of declining scores in junior high grades. Poor scores may be caused by the fact that junior high students have taken the Iowa tests so many times before and find them routine by seventh and eighth grade, officials say.

"MY PERSONAL opinion is that we give this test too frequently," said Supt. Frank Whiteley at Tuesday's education committee meeting. Whiteley said students fail to get "psyched up" for the test after so many times, and thus, don't perform as well as they might.

Omiatek also said that seventh and eighth graders may have reached their highest level of achievement on some tests, and then began to regress.

District officials value the Iowa tests as indicators of how the district is doing nationally, but they also use them as diagnostic tools to determine where individual children need work.

Education committee members have suggested that Dist. 15 compare its Iowa scores with those surrounding districts. Whiteley cautioned board members against "ending up in academic competition" should a score exchange occur.

"The key is not what this says to the district but what it says to the individual kid," Whiteley said.

Village needs consultant on sewer work: Harwig

Palatine will need a professional consultant to assist the village in completing a $13 million sewer installation project throughout older sections of town, Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said.

Harwig estimated the cost of the consultant would be as high as $200,000. The village is eligible for partial funding which would pay about 70 per cent of the cost, leaving the village's share of the consultant's fee at between $30,000 and $50,000, Harwig said.

Harwig said the scope of the project, which is necessary to meet the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency clean water standards, is beyond the capacity of the village administrative staff. The consultant will be needed to prepare an inflow and infiltration analysis of the village sewer system. The system is required by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency in order for the village to be considered for federal funding for the project, Harwig said.

HARWIG SAID the sewer project is a long-term proposition and the consultant will be needed throughout the duration of the project. The project calls for the separation of storm and sanitary sewers in the village and the installation of new sanitary sewers for 1,010 acres in the older section of the village and downtown area.

The village is still in the first step of the project, which calls for identifying the scope of the problem. Harwig said. The consultant will help the village prepare an application for federal funds to help finance the project.

The village has asked the EPA to recognize the project as a pollution control project rather than a flood control project so it can qualify for 75 per cent state and federal funding.

The funding would reduce the village's share of the project cost from $13 million to $3.2 million.

HARWIG SAID he would like the village to act soon on hiring a consultant while federal funds for the project are available. The matter has been referred to the planning, building and zoning committee.

Palatine must separate its combined storm-sanitary sewers as a result of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's decision to drop the village from its deep tunnel and reservoir plan. The village was dropped from the MSD project because officials said it was not economically feasible.

Inclusion of Palatine in the plan could jeopardize the MSD's bid for federal funds for the deep tunnel project, MSD officials said.

Dec. 15 deadline for hopefuls

Eight apply for fire chief post

Eight persons have applied for the Palatine fire chief position, Joseph Kiszka, chairman of the citizens' fire chief search committee, said Wednesday.

Kiszka declined to give details on the applicants. Applications for the post will be accepted until Dec. 15.

The special four-member citizens committee will meet sometime after the application deadline to review and process the applications, Kiszka said. Interviews will be conducted with those applicants who meet the qualifications established for the post, he said.

The committee also may decide to visit the fire departments of those applicants who are interviewed for the job, Kiszka said.

THE COMMITTEE was directed to look for a new fire chief in October when Fire Chief Orville Helms was promoted to the newly-created post of fire marshal. Helms will continue to serve as fire chief until his successor is named.

Other members of the committee besides Kiszka are Herman Hertog, director of the Buehler YMCA, Des Plaines Fire Chief Donald Cory, and Fred Roemer, president of the Palatine Rural Fire District Board.

Kiszka said the committee will select three finalists from its list of applicants. These candidates will go through a testing program, including a lie detector and psychological tests, and their names will then be given to Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig for review.

Harwig will recommend a candidate from the three finalists to the village board for approval.

Kiszka said the committee hopes to have its selection process completed by the end of January, but will extend the deadline if it fails to find a qualified applicant. "Our goal is to find the best man for the job, and we don't want a time limit to be a factor in our choice," Kiszka said.

THE NEW FIRE CHIEF will report to Helms and be responsible for the day-to-day workings of the department.

Helms, who will report directly to the village manager, will be responsible for long-range planning and developing equipment needs and the budget for the department.

Fund raisers urged for museum

Several fund-raising events will be planned by the Palatine Bicentennial Committee to spur its effort to raise $60,000 to convert a 103-year-old house into a historical museum.

Thomas Ahern, committee chairman, said several suggestions for fund-raisers have been made but nothing definite has been planned. The committee may schedule a dance on George Washington's birthday in February but Ahern said a location for the dance and other details must still be worked out.

The committee has collected nearly $3,300 in donations for the museum. Ahern said a letter will be sent to the business community seeking its help in raising the $60,000 goal.

THE MONEY will be used to pay for purchase of the house at 224 E. Palatine Rd. The committee bought the house for $48,000 and will use the remaining amount to convert the house into a museum. The house will be given to the Palatine Historical Society and will be maintained by the Palatine Park District.

Ahern said the historical society has not yet acquired title to the house. Once the title is acquired, the committee will have 90 days to pay back a $10,000 interest free loan given by the Palatine National Bank as a downpayment for the house.

Ahern said he does not believe the committee will have any trouble raising the $60,000 goal. "Once we start the momentum going, I don't think we'll have any trouble," he said.

The committee hopes to have the renovation of the house completed early next year so the building may be turned over to the park district on July 4.

A plaque with the names of major contributors to the project will hang in the museum.

Juvenile court branch discussion tonight

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will meet tonight with Northwest suburban officials to discuss Schaumburg's proposal to establish a local branch of the Cook County Juvenile Court.

Rep. Macdonald said the meeting is planned as "an informal exchange of ideas and we will explore forming a steering committee to pursue the proposal in depth." She said village presidents and police chiefs of all towns in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts have been invited to the 6 p.m. dutch-treat dinner meeting at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Earlier this year Schaumburg officials endorsed a recommendation from the village safety, health and recreation committee calling for a satellite juvenile court branch in a new $1.5 million police and courts building under construction on Schaumburg Road.

THE PROPOSAL stemmed from a committee study of increased vandalism in the village.

Virginia Macdonald

Neighboring communities including Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Hanover Park, have adopted resolutions supporting Schaumburg's request which was dismissed as "not feasible" by Judge Anton Smigiel, former chief of the 3rd Municipal District.

Smigiel, who resigned Nov. 30, has been replaced by Judge James A. Geocar, 3rd District acting presiding judge.

Geocar said Wednesday he feels it "premature" to comment on the Schaumburg proposal.

"I ACTUALLY HAVE no thought on the matter at this time, but I will say I feel we are fortunate to have a Niles juvenile court branch," Geocar said.

When Smigiel rejected consideration of a Schaumburg branch court, he said it would "open the door for 23 other municipalities in the 3rd District to make similar requests. The 3rd District covers an area from Niles west to Hanover Park and Barrington. Other Northwest suburban towns are included in the 2nd District.

"Our people would like to see a branch closer to the Northwest suburban area but I don't think there is a problem with regard to keeping it in a certain district," Rep. Macdonald said.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel said village officials turned to the Arlington Heights legislator "for help" because she was "instrumental" in the establishment of the Niles branch court 23 months ago, after more than 10 years of negotiations.

"There is talk of urgent need for this facility and I believe if these communities take the initiative and responsibility, and we can express our local need, then we can make an acceptable package to present to Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle," Rep. Macdonald said.

Escapes with unedited film of raids

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been told to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unimproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring rescue where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died and he remained there much longer.

Mike Schiff

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return,

"and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist group members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Saida, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Postman saves 2 from icy waters

by JOHN MAES

The mail delivery in Buffalo Grove's Crossings subdivision was a bit late Wednesday afternoon but residents probably wouldn't mind at all if they knew the reason.

Donald Hall, the 21-year-old mail carrier, had to take an impromptu break from his work about 1 p.m. to save the lives of two small children who had fallen through the ice in a nearby lake.

Hall waded into chest-high water and pulled Jacob Aidlin, 4, and Lisa Aidlin, 6, to safety. The children were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment and later were released.

JACOB AND LISA are the children of Emma Aidlin, 1279 Farnsworth Rd. Hall was on his mail route on Farnsworth Road in the subdivision when a boy, apparently playing with the Aidlin children when the mishap occurred, alerted him to the trouble.

"I was coming down Farnsworth Road delivering mail and I heard a cry for help. It was very faint," he said. "I started looking around to see where it was coming from and a boy came over the hill and I asked, 'Is someone in trouble?' He said someone fell in the lake."

Dropping his mail sack, Hall ran toward the lake.

"I saw a kid bobbing in the water," he said.

He went out into the frozen pond and pulled Jacob to safety.

"I DIDN'T KNOW another kid was out there but the other boy kept saying, 'There's another one out there. There's another one out there,'" he said.

Hall said the girl had already gone under but he waded back in and pulled her out.

"She was very close to drowning," he said.

"I just kept thinking of my sister's two little kids, they're just about the same age — it's just the fact that I could see these kids being my nieces and how their parents must feel."

By this time the incident had attracted the attention of several neighbors who began coming outside with blankets to warm Hall and the two children before an ambulance came to take the children to the hospital.

But Hall, who is engaged to be married next June was beset by an injury no worse than a cold chill and wet uniform.

"The uniform is completely soaked and I don't know how that wool is going to turn out," he said.

High School Dist. 211

Conant High School's choir and jazz band will present a Christmas program at Tuesday's meeting of the school's booster club. The 8 p.m. meeting will be in the school cafeteria, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates.

The home economics classes at Palatine High School are in the process of collecting recipes to be used in a centennial cookbook. A search for traditional family favorites with prizes to be awarded by category is being conducted by the department. The following major categories will be considered: appetizers, beverages, breads, cakes, cookies, desserts, salads, soups, vegetables, ethnic idea and main dish entrees.

Contest rules are: Single recipe entries must be typed or written legibly in ink, must include name and address, and, if possible, a short family history of the recipe. All entries will be judged on the basis of originality and taste as well as the accurate listing of ingredients, proper measurements and the clarity of directions.

All entries will be reviewed by the home economics department under the direction of Pamela Block. To be eligible for judging, all entries must be postmarked no later than Dec. 15. None will be returned. All entries should be addressed to: Centennial Cookbook Contest, L. B. Newendorp, Palatine High School, 160 E. Wood St., Palatine, Ill. 60067.

The Bicentennial Committee of Conant High School will sponsor a freedom fair, "Reflections of the Past: Images of the Future," in March.

It is intended that the fair be a community project. Any group or individual desiring to exhibit crafts, hobbies, homemaking skills, antiques or collections that relate to American history are invited to participate.

Information may be obtained by writing to: Conant High School, Bicentennial Committee, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172. Phone calls should be directed to Ron Szymanski, 885-4386 ext. 75.

A railroad strike appeared unlikely late Wednesday as union representatives informally agreed to continue contract negotiations past a 5 a.m. strike deadline today without a walkout if management continues in "good faith."

W. J. Usery, chief government mediator, said union negotiators had refused to formally extend the strike deadline, but he had obtained the promise from the union during a marathon bargaining session. Some 70,000 shopcraft workers are represented by the union.

Usery said he was assured by the unions that there will not be a strike called exactly at 5 a.m. "as long as good faith negotiations are going on." In exchange, Usery promised the unions he would not go to Congress Thursday morning seeking legislation to halt a strike. He said the unions promised to give him sufficient warning of a walkout.

Commuters were urged to listen to radio and television reports for any last minute developments. Should a strike occur, commuters will have to (Continued on Page 2)

These price jumps are due partly to the holiday season and the colder weather.

Chickens and cows simply do not produce the quantities of eggs and milk they do when weather is warmer. The smaller the supply, the higher the prices, said a dairy spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. He said cows normally decrease milk production in the winter and peak in the spring. CHRISTMAS IS seen best through the eyes of children — those who believe in Santa. Jack Krisor, Mount Prospect, is spending his sixth season as Santa Claus at Randhurst Shopping Center. This youngster will find that this Santa's beard is real.

Village backs apartments for seniors

A proposed 100-unit senior citizens apartment project has won the endorsement of the Mount Prospect Village Board in an effort to bolster the project's chances of getting federal financial backing.

In a 5-to-1 vote, the board endorsed, subject to zoning, the Dell Corp.'s six-story development proposed for 152 acres directly north of the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center, Rand and Central roads.

Mayor Robert D. Teachert said he will make the board's position known to the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which is expected to allocate funds for such projects in the next two weeks.

TRUSTEE THEODORE J. Wattenberg was the only board member to oppose the endorsement, saying he did not have "the necessary documentation." He said he is not convinced there is a need for such housing in the village, particularly since it would isolate the seniors in a project.

Trustee E. F. Richardson, however, noted that Wattenberg had copies of two village studies on the matter, which he said conclusively show the need for seniors' housing.

Although Trustee Leo Floros was absent from the meeting, he gave his blessings to the project through a memo given to Richardson.

Richardson said the village can expect some objections to the project because of its density and height. He said, however, that senior citizens housing projects by nature have high density.

"The six-story height should blend well with the surrounding commercial development and the Westgate apartment complex," Richardson said.

IN ADDITION, Richardson said the site offers many features that will appeal to seniors, including the nearby shopping center, theater, restaurants and churches.

The Dell Corp. currently has an option to purchase the property subject to zoning.

Teichert noted the village is resuming work on its housing assistance plan. He said he is preparing some comments on the preliminary draft of the plan prepared by a subcommittee of the plan commission.

The mayor said the plan is not needed for the Dell Corp. proposal, since the village is not objecting to the development. He said the plan basically works as a defensive tool, with the village basing its objections to unwanted developments on plans to bring low- and moderate-income housing into the area.

Individuals now must appeal map changes

Any further changes in federal flood hazard maps for the Mount Prospect area will have to come from individual appeals, said William Fucik of the Federal Insurance Agency.

Noting that most objections to the maps at Tuesday's public hearing dealt with individual problems, Fucik said the maps will now be sent to Washington for final study. He said a three-month appeals process will give residents ample time to seek changes in the maps.

When the new maps are finalized, homeowners in special flood-hazard areas will be required to purchase federal flood insurance to apply for a mortgage. In addition, a homeowner who applies for a federal loan to repair flood damage must also obtain flood insurance.

FUCIK SAID, however, the new maps will not be in use for some time because of the lengthy review and appeal processes. "It could be as short as six months, but it could be as long as a year," he said.

The new maps will replace the more general maps now in use and some areas now considered flood hazards will be removed from that classification. As a result Fucik said many (Continued on Page 6)

Some swear this Santa is real

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Is Jack Krisor really Santa Claus? Hundreds of children and even some grown-ups would swear to it.

His fluffy white beard and thick, white hair are real. His belly, buckled under a red suit of velvet, is no pillow. He's 240 pounds of Kris Kringle. Even his jolly, deep "ho, ho, ho's" that echo throughout the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are the real thing.

There's no doubt about it. Children and adults alike waiting in line to see Santa agree that this one must be authentic.

"YOU KNOW," he says, pulling the red cap off his head and leaning over to one side. "I wouldn't think of giving the children anything but the real thing."

Krisor, a 65-year-old Mount Prospect resident, is celebrating his sixth season at Randhurst as you-know-who from the North Pole.

The jolly gentleman thought earlier this year that he might not make it through many more Christmas seasons. His battle with cancer took more than 140 pounds from his 380-pound Kris Kringle figure. But he's cured now and all that unpleasantness is behind him. Now he can concentrate on the thing he loves most — playing Santa and delighting children of all ages.

Each year from the day after Thanksgiving until the big day, he leaves his job as a Buffalo Grove real estate broker to begin his holiday duties. He doesn't return to his "second occupation" until after Christmas.

HE ENJOYS HIS role so much that he even makes house calls on Christmas Eve.

"This is what I wait for all year. This is really my work," he says with a sparkle in his blue eyes, "and it's not just during the Christmas season either."

Krisor is "constantly" being stopped in public places and on the street by adults and children who ask him if he is really Santa Claus — even when he's out of his red suit and boots.

"Everyone tells me I look like him. You start to think that you are Santa Claus after a while," he said. Tots stumble up to the white gazebo and the green throne where Santa sits. They gaze up in awe at the kind face of whiskers and smiles.

"They look up to me and they think I'm the King," Santa says. "They are just beautiful."

Some of the children are shy and rock back and forth in an uneasy effort to tell Santa what they want for Christmas. Others, more daring, excitedly rattle off their order for toys, plant themselves on Santa's knee and tug at his beard. Much to their surprise, it's real.

His Santa role started nearly ten years ago when a friend, noting Krisor's resemblance to that jolly, old figure, suggested that he don the red and white outfit and bring the holiday spirit into the Palatine bank.

"I just love kids and I'm just so happy to be able to do this. I read the letters kids send to Santa and place in the mailbox here. It's my therapy," Krisor said. "It's good for me, it's good for the parents who come up to me here and almost anywhere, stare me in the eyes and tell me they believe," he said.

"But, most of all, it's good for the children. They do believe, and it's a wonderful thing."

Dist. 26, custodians reach accord

Custodians and administrators in River Trails Dist. 26 have reached agreement on salary and fringe benefits, board members learned this week.

The district's 14 full-time custodians now say they will not affiliate with the Illinois Education Assn. teachers' union as previously planned, said James Burke, a spokesman for the custodians.

Custodians had organized the River Trails Custodial and Maintenance Assn., an affiliate of the IEA, in May to seek salary, fringe benefits, seniority rights and increased holiday time. They sought recognition from the board this fall, but were turned down.

BOARD MEMBERS asked them to try working with the administration on their requests before seeking union recognition.

Agreement apparently was reached after two negotiation sessions. The board is scheduled to act on the tentative settlement at its Dec. 16 meeting, said Supt. John Fridlund.

Burke said terms of the settlement include:
• A base pay of $4.19 per hour. Starting pay previously was "about $3.75 an hour" Burke said.
• An additional day of paid vacation the day after Thanksgiving. Custodians previously received 10 paid holidays plus a half day on Christmas and New Year's eves

• Four weeks of vacation after 11 years of service. Previously, custodians received a maximum of three weeks' vacation after six years of employment.

• A grievance procedure, something custodians did not have in the past.

• Payment of half of a custodian's accumulated sick leave upon his retirement.

Fridlund said he will recommend that the board approve the settlement at their Dec. 16 meeting. Fridlund told custodians terms of the settlement would go into effect Jan. 1, 1976, should the board approve the terms.

Obtaining easements stalls flood-control work

Work on flood-control improvements along McDonald Creek in Mount Prospect cannot begin until the state obtains all the easements needed along the stream bed.

Most of the easements have been obtained, said a state official.

The project includes widening and dredging of the lower portion of McDonald Creek, allowing the opening of the new Soo Line R.R. culvert west of Quince Lane.

OPENING OF THE culvert is expected to substantially reduce the upstream creek levels.

Ivan McBride of the Illinois Division of Water Resources said most of the needed easements for the project already have been obtained.

"I think all of them have been contacted," McBride said. "I guess there are three or four of them that have not been acquired."

Village officials, however, have been asked to help obtain the temporary construction easements needed to clear out some of the underbrush along the creek banks, which have been eroded into private property.

Bernard H.R. Hemminger said there are about 30 persons who must be contacted for temporary easements. He said his department has begun preparing easement plats for each separate parcel, but will await direction from the village board or manager before taking any further action.

"IT IS SOMETHING we can't do overnight," Hemminger said. "But I have no idea how long it is going to take us."

Fred Nims of the state division of water resources said the project is scheduled to go to bid shortly after the first of the year but said he did not know when actual construction will begin.

"A lot is contingent on weather conditions and things of that sort," Nims said. "But it will definitely be this spring."

Nims said the project should be completed by July or August.

The lower portion of the creek is narrower than the upstream portion, which was recently improved. Residents in the area pushed for the downstream work, saying they were afraid of flooding if the new culvert was opened without downstream improvements.

Actual construction is estimated at about $70,000, with the total project costing about $300,000.

Maine Twp. photographer escapes Beirut terrorists

by JOHN MAES

Mike Schiff moved swiftly that day. He had been warned to leave Beirut at once and hastened his departure, though he had planned to stay two more days.

But leftist Moslem gunmen were moving swiftly. Their purpose was to stop Schiff from leaving the embattled city with numerous rolls of "unapproved, unedited" film depicting 11 days of Moslem raids and terrorist operations spearheaded by the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

He was delivered alive from the city, but only after a daring rescue where he managed to get two Moslem guards to hustle him to Beirut Airport. He told them he had to fly to Cyprus to file part of his picture story on the PLO for Faces, a soon-to-be-published magazine.

"I had a call in the morning from the American Embassy and they advised me to leave very fast," said the 30-year-old photographer from Maine Township. "Then I went downstairs and explained to them I had to get a story out fast, and I was worried that I wouldn't be able to get it to Cyprus in time."

SCHIFF IS CERTAIN he would have become one more death statistic in a city where more than 3,500 have died had he remained there much longer.

"The reality of where I went and what I did are just hitting me," Schiff said a few weeks after his return, "and it's very draining. I was scared, there's no other way of putting it."

Captured in Schiff's more than 1,000 pictures is the scene of strife-torn Lebanon crumbling under the weight of the bitter religious struggle between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian Phalangists.

Death was everywhere, he said. Many of the victims were civilians.

One of his photographs is of a woman and child. Another is of a civilian man clutching a rosary. All had been shot to death.

Mike Schiff

The account of Schiff's 11 days in Lebanon will be featured in the second edition of Faces, to be published later this month.

"IT WAS A STORY on the PLO. To find out what they were doing and why, but we found that out plus," he said, describing his assignment.

His assignment took him to PLO-run training camps where even small children were learning the use of weapons and terrorist tactics, he said. In Tripoli, located in northern Lebanon, he saw a group of Chinese civilians who quickly removed themselves from the scene when he appeared with his camera. He said he later learned the Chinese were learning terrorist tactics from the PLO.

He also found leftist faction members very candid about the "game plan" of the struggle. With Schiff, they talked freely of a Moslem-dominated Lebanon and about "breaking the backs" of Christian-owned businesses.

He managed to get behind the scenes after securing credentials through the PLO at the United Nations. Identifying himself as a sympathizer, he was allowed to go along on Moslem raids and reconnaissance missions, but was told to shoot only scenes approved by the PLO. His film was subject to PLO editing.

"I was right in it, the whole bloody thing," he said. "Other correspondents had to stay in their hotels, but they thought I was a terrorist so I was safe, as ridiculous as that might sound."

NO DAY PASSED without incident, he said.

He had brushes with death more than once. One day he narrowly escaped being gunned down in a Moslem-Phalangist crossfire, and later the same day his car was blown up after being hit by a mortar shell. The blast destroyed some of his camera equipment and some of his film.

Moslem fighters held him prisoner for several hours while checking his credentials near the port city of Sidon, where he was traveling unescorted.

And despite being regarded as a sympathizer, his hotel room was searched daily. He said he knew because the matches he had wedged in the door had been disturbed when he returned. They never did find the rolls of unedited film he had hidden inside a toilet plunger and in his boots.

"I'D HAVE BEEN blown up for sure on the spot" if his cache had been discovered.

He said he later read a newspaper account of Moslem gunmen going into the hotel he was staying at and "shooting the place up, looking for an American. I was the only American staying there," he said.

But having managed to slip safely from the war-torn city, Schiff said life in Lebanon right now is "worth about the price of a bullet."

Parks offer riding, gym recreation

The Prospect Heights Park District will begin offering a variety of winter recreation classes next week.

A wrestling program for sixth-through-eighth-grade boys will be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays, for eight weeks at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. The fee is $8 for the program which is designed to teach young boys the rules and fundamentals of wrestling.

The park district also will offer a beginning horseback-riding class Thursdays from 4 to 5 p.m. beginning Dec. 11. The program fee is $48 for an eight-week session at the Wedgewood Riding Stables, Wheeling.

The park district also will offer basketball instruction and a gymnastics class Saturday at MacArthur Junior High School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd. The gymnastics class for fifth through eighth graders will be conducted for different age levels from 9 a.m. to noon for eight weeks. The program fee is $8.

The basketball instruction program for elementary school children also will be for various age levels from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The program fee is $8.

Residents interested in enrolling their children in these and other park programs should call the park district offices at 394-2848.

The park district also is offering classes in baton twirling, ballet, acrobatics, slim and trim, belly dancing, yoga and children's skiing.

Santa on youngsters' menu

Mount Prospect youngsters will be able to munch hamburgers with Santa Claus Dec. 13 at the Mount Prospect Jaycee Wives' annual "Lunch with Santa."

Tickets are $1.25 for children and adults, and lunch will be served twice, at 11:15 a.m. and 12:45 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. Sec. 400 Ave. Hamburgers, Kool-Aid, potato chips and cupcakes will be served.

Reservations can be made by calling 394-1576 or 439-7976 before Dec. 10.

Scouts paper drive set

Boy Scout Troop 116 of Grace Lutheran Church will sponsor a paper drive Saturday.

Pickups will be made in the northeast section of the village bounded by River Road, Elmhurst Road, Euclid Avenue and Foundry Road.

Persons outside the area with large bundles of papers can arrange for pickup by calling Bob Farley at 392-3176 after 7 p.m.

Altrusa Club Yule party

The Altrusa Club of Northern Cook County has scheduled a Christmas Party Dec. 18 at the Des Plaines Elks Club, 495 Lee St.

The party will be followed by a gift auction, the proceeds of which will be placed in the club's social service fund.

Cocktails are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. with a buffet dinner at 7:30 p.m. The cost is $7.50 per person. Reservations may be made by calling Cathy Smith at 394-5583 or 527-5700 before Dec. 10.

Church starts Awana clubs

Northwest Covenant Church has formed new Awana Clubs for youngsters in the third, fourth and fifth grades. The clubs, called Pals and Chums, will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursdays at the Gregory School gymnasium, 400 E. Gregory St.

Further information is available by calling 265-4671.

Schools

St. Raymond's School

Holmes-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

The London Junior High School versus Holmes Junior High School girls' basketball game scheduled Friday at Holmes Junior High School, 221 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, will be played at 4 p.m.

Two students from Cooper Junior High School, Kathy Dulski and Dawn Lenzler, attended the Buffalo Grove Board of Trustees meeting last month as representatives of the student council. The students reported their reaction to seeing the village government in action to the constitution classes at Cooper.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The corridor walls at Orchard Place School are telling the story of America's history in pictures, cutouts and 3-D reliefs. The students call the project "Bicentennial Time Line" and invite the community to view their project. The school is at 2727 Maple Ave., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 211

The Bicentennial Committee of Conant High School will sponsor a freedom fair, "Reflections of the Past Images of the Future," in March.

It is intended that the fair be a community project. Any group or individual desiring to exhibit crafts, hobbies, homemaking skills, antiques or collections that relate to American history are invited to participate.

Information may be obtained by writing to Conant High School, Bicentennial Committee, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172. Phone calls should be directed to Ron Szymanski, 885-4366 ext. 75.

FOUR NEW city bus routes began operation this week as part of the North Suburban Mass Transit District system. Routes originate at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station and travel to the north, west, south and southwest parts of the city.

New bus routes get few riders

by JOE FRANZ

Ridership on the expanded intracity bus system in Des Plaines appeared sparse Wednesday, but most riders spoke highly of the service.

The expanded service, provided by the Regional Transportation Authority through the North Suburban Mass Transit District, started this week and consists of north, south, west and southwest routes.

Dee Cheopelas, of 764 Timothy Ln., said she was riding the bus service every first two and anticipated using the service two to three times a week.

"I'M SO HAPPY. I have been praying that they were going to start some kind of service to my house," Mrs. Cheopelas said. "I expect to be riding it a lot because I have no other way of getting anywhere."

She said she liked the free rides provided the first week, but said she intended to continue using the service after the regular 45 cent charge started.

"As long as I have transportation, I don't care how much I pay," Mrs. Cheopelas said.

Lois Jack, 1211 Brown St., said she intended to use the bus service every day. "This is great because it practically takes me to my front door," she said.

ANDRE KRISTOPANS, 3927 W. Palmer Ave., Chicago, said he was "checking out" the new bus service and was not headed toward a particular destination.

"I'm just an explorer from the northwest side of Chicago," he said. "I don't have a car and have to keep up on the service in case I need it."

Louise Weber, 918 Tower Dr., said she liked the idea of the intracity bus system, but thought some changes should be made.

"It's very confusing," she said. "I thought they were going to improve the service locally for the suburbs, but I don't know if they have."

RICKY KROWZACK, a bus driver for NORTAN, said he believed some minor changes in routes needed to make the service available to more people, but believed the expanded service was "the best move made out here in 50 years."

"Instead of cutting back service they've added it," he said. "They're giving service to the people who really need it."

Although riders have been sparse, Krowzack and Robert Fredro, another driver, said the number of passengers has increased every day.

"I hauled twice as many people yesterday (Tuesday) as Monday and 15 or 16 more today (Wednesday) than yesterday," Krowzack said.

"I BELIEVE THE service will go because people want it," he said. "The drivers are going to have to take time to explain schedules and help sell people on the service."

Fredro said that it still was too soon to tell whether ridership would increase enough to justify the expanded service.

"It seems to be picking up, but I'm not sure yet," he said. "I do know though that the people who ride are crazy about the buses."

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee, said recently that the new service was a "use it or lose it proposition" for the city.

THE NEW BUS system will be reviewed by the RTA and NORTAN in six to eight months to determine whether they should be continued or modified.

The bus routes, which begin and end at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Downtown Des Plaines, run from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week. The routes are designed to bring bus service to within six blocks of most homes in the city.

The buses run at 30-minute intervals during rush periods and one-hour intervals at other times. They can be used to make connections with regional NORTAN routes operating throughout the North and Northwest suburbs.

Society seeks 200 members

The Mount Prospect Historical Society is in the midst of a membership drive so that it can celebrate the nation's Bicentennial with 200 members.

Letters are being sent to all organizations, churches and schools. The main objective of the society's activities this year is the dedication of the historical museum, the former St. John Lutheran schoolhouse at 1100 S. Linneman Rd.

All persons joining the society will receive a special Bicentennial membership certificate suitable for framing in addition to the society newsletter. Membership costs $3 per person, $1 for students or seniors and $5 per couple.

'76 start for hospital in Hoffman?

An American Medicorp Inc. official expressed hope Wednesday that construction of the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates will begin this spring before zoning for the site expires.

Wayne Lampman, director of development, said negotiations are under way for funding of the $17 million facility, but noted hopefully construction will start after Jan. 1 when the weather allows.

American Medicorp officials expressed the same optimism last year, but tightening of the loan market caused officials to delay groundbreaking plans.

THE COMPANY transferred administrator Terry Schuessler to Atlanta,

Ga., about two months ago, causing local officials to speculate about the fate of the for-profit hospital.

Lampman said, however, Schuessler was in the area to help with development process in the community and that since delays were caused because of the negotiations, there was not much for Schuessler to do.

Lampman said an administrator will be appointed "probably around groundbreaking time."

"The market isn't as good as it might be," Lampman said. "But we don't anticipate any difficulty."

RICHARD REGAN, hospital committee chairman, said the zoning for the 312-bed hospital site on Barrington Road, between Golf and Higgins roads, expires in July.

"As far as I'm concerned we're holding everything until we hear from Lampman," he said. "We've gone as far as we can without actually the bricks being put in."

Regan said plans at the local level have been completed and "the ball's in their court."

In September, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said she was told about half the money for the facility had been secured. Earlier in the year, American Medicorp officials dropped a bid for federally insured mortgage money.

The continuing financial considerations have delayed the groundbreaking for more than a year.

people now purchasing flood insurance will no longer have to buy it once the new maps go into effect, and refunds for one year's premiums will be available.

The maps, as currently revised, do not include present and planned improvements to either Weller or McDonald creeks. A state official at Tuesday's hearing said this information will be taken into consideration at a later date.

Fucik said the village is expected to inform his agency of any other major improvements that would decrease flood areas. "We would expect the city to advise us," he said, because the village must turn in an annual report.

THE MAPS under study were first completed in June 1974 and have been under revision since then. The most recent revisions were made after residents from the Mount Shire area objected to their homes being placed in the special flood-hazard area.

The Mount Shire residents said their area does not flood, but charged the flood hazard classification would make it difficult for them to sell their homes and decrease the value of their property.

On the revised maps, the Mount Shire subdivision in the southwest section of the village has been removed from the flood hazard classification. The change was made because of the construction of the Clearwater Park retention basin, which altered flooding patterns in the area.

Before the new maps can be put to use, the village will be required to pass certain flood plain regulations that would restrict the type of development along floodways.

Flood insurance sold after the new maps go into effect will be based on an actuarial rate rather than the current flat rate.

The flood maps are on display outside the board meeting room, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. The maps also may be viewed in the clerk's office or the engineering department at the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

Arlington, Prospect Heights

Boundary dispute back for talks

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan again will meet with leaders of the Prospect Heights incorporation movement in an attempt to resolve disagreement on the common boundary between the two towns.

Arlington Heights is appealing a Circuit Court ruling clearing the way for a referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation tentatively set for Jan. 31.

Trustee David Griffin tried unsuccessfully Monday night to get the Arlington Heights Village Board to drop its appeal which village officials admit is an 11th hour attempt to forestall the referendum.

"There is nothing to be gained in filing this appeal other than to create hard feelings in the long run," Griffin said.

Arlington Heights officials have never accepted Waterman Avenue as the proposed boundary with Prospect Heights. Instead they have proposed Dale Avenue, east of the Brandenberry Park Apartments as a boundary

THE VILLAGE BOARD rejected Griffin's move to drop the court appeal but adopted Ryan's suggestion that a new effort be made to reach agreement.

"If we drop this, Prospect Heights will go on its merry way," said Trustee Frank Palmatier. "I have always felt this (boundary) was meant to be an imposition on Arlington Heights."

Village officials contend that they are required to provide municipal services to Arlington Heights residents in the vicinity of Waterman Avenue and cannot give up water and sewer mains in the area to Prospect Heights.

They also fear that Prospect Heights will encroach on valuable unincorporated land along Rand Road which logically will become part of Arlington Heights.

No date for the meeting between Ryan and Prospect Heights leaders has been set.

'Annex good move for New Town'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of the New Town area of Mount Prospect cite upgraded services as one of the primary advantages of annexation into the village in 1971.

Previously an unincorporated part of Cook County, the area, a 1.5-square mile parcel bounded by Kensington, Willow, River and Camp McDonald roads chose the annexation route while Prospect Heights did not.

It has been a slow adjustment for the estimated 10,000 residents of New Town. Some residents have protested the changing of street names and the failure of the village to take control of a private utility company serving the area with water which they say is of "low quality."

BUT MOST RESIDENTS polled earlier this year expressed satisfaction with the results of annexation which has provided them with full-time police and fire protection and garbage pickup. Previously, residents had to contract for those services.

Should the Jan. 31 referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation fail, annexation to Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights or Wheeling may be the only way the community's 13,000 residents can obtain satisfactory services.

"The services have improved 100 per cent since we've annexed to Mount Prospect. I don't think anyone will argue with that," said Marie Caylor, a New Town resident and one-time Mount Prospect trustee who was one of the forces behind the 1971 annexation.

Mrs. Caylor said there has been only a slight increase in taxes for most New Town residents during the last four years.

RESIDENTS' FIRE insurance rates drastically decreased when Mount Prospect offered full-time service which took the place of a rural fire district volunteer force.

The taxes needed to support fire, police and garbage service are now included in the village tax rate.

"So, it seemed that the new taxes we inherited by becoming part of the village were offset by our not having to pay more for the services. My tax bill balanced off and I think most residents' bills did," she said.

"ANNEXATION HAS worked out well for New Town. At this point, the people of Prospect Heights have fought long and hard for the chance to hold a referendum on incorporation. Now they can, and I wish them well," Mrs. Caylor said.

In 1971, the residents of New Town hoped that Prospect Heights would annex along with them, Mrs. Caylor said. "Now things have changed, and it's up to Prospect Heights residents to decide on their own future," she said.

Many of the residents have offered their services in the village's municipal boards and committees. They are striving to feel more a part of the village.

"As long as the village backs the residents and helps them with their problems — that's the main thing. We have that going for us and the rest will follow," Mrs. Caylor said.

Postman pulls two children from Buffalo Grove Lake

by JOHN MAES

The mail delivery in Buffalo Grove's Crossings subdivision was a bit late Wednesday-afternoon but residents probably wouldn't mind at all if they knew the reason.

Donald Hall, the 21-year-old mail carrier, had to take an impromptu break from his work about 1 p.m. to save the lives of two small children who had fallen through the ice in a nearby lake.

Hall waded into chest-high water and pulled Jacob Aidlin, 4, and Lisa Aidlin, 6, to safety. The children were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment and later were released.

JACOB AND LISA are the children of Emma Aidlin, 1279 Farnsworth Rd. Hall was on his mail route on Farnsworth Road in the subdivision when a boy, apparently playing with the Aidlin children when the mishap occurred, alerted him to the trouble.

"I was coming down Farnsworth Road delivering mail and I heard a cry for help. It was very faint," he said. "I started looking around to see where it was coming from and a boy came over the hill and I asked, 'Is someone in trouble?' He said someone fell in the lake."

Dropping his mail sack, Hall ran toward the lake.

"I saw a kid bobbing in the water," he said.

He went out into the frozen pond and pulled Jacob to safety.

"I DIDN'T KNOW another kid was out there but the other boy kept saying, 'There's another one out there. There's another one out there,'" he said.

Hall said the girl had already gone under but he waded back in and pulled her out.

"She was very close to drowning," he said.

"I just kept thinking of my sister's two little kids, they're just about the same age — it's just the fact that I could see these kids being my nieces and how their parents must feel."

By this time the incident had attracted the attention of several neighbors who began coming outside with blankets to warm Hall and the two children before an ambulance came to take the children to the hospital.

But Hall, who is engaged to be married next June was beset by an injury no worse than a cold chill and wet uniform.

"The uniform is completely soaked and I don't know how that wool is going to turn out," he said.

Burbank happy with results of incorporation

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of south suburban Burbank say they are glad they voted to incorporate five years ago because it has allowed them to preserve and develop their community.

The 32,000 residents of the city just south of Chicago experienced the same problems that Prospect Heights residents have today as an unprotected, unincorporated area.

Outlying parcels of the community were continually being annexed by neighboring suburbs, depleting the tax base of the area's rural park, fire and library districts.

THE PEOPLE OF Burbank weighed the alternatives and voted to incorporate in 1970.

Burbank officials now have encouraged Prospect Heights residents to do the same when they go to the polls to decide the issue Jan. 31. If the 13,000 Prospect Heights residents vote to incorporate, an area bounded by Sanders Road on the east, Windsor Drive on the west, Hintz Road on the north and Euclid Ave. on the south will become the newest Northwest suburb.

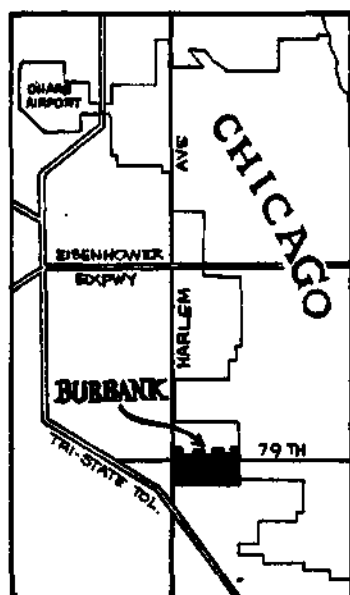

Burbank Mayor John Fitzgerald said the main advantages to incorporation have been the ability to independently coordinate the growth of the area, hold the line on taxes and services and oversee improvements.

There have been "no real problems" in the formation of the new city during the past five years.

"OUR SITUATION was very much like the one that Prospect Heights is in now. We saw that piecemeal annexation to nearby suburbs or incorporation were our only alternatives. We never could have remained a viable unincorporated area," Fitzgerald said.

Burbank residents were undecided on the incorporation for nearly 10 years until 5,000 of the community's 17,000 eligible voters turned out in the 1970 referendum to put the issue to rest.

Today, Burbank operates on a $2.1 million budget that is supported from revenues from motor fuel tax funds, sales tax, state income tax, business and liquor license fees, vehicle stickers and traffic fines, Fitzgerald said.

Burbank's income has increased yearly with only a slight rise in real estate taxes, he said, "and we are still in the black, five years into incorporation, and we expect to remain that way."

BURBANK HAS encouraged commercial development which has boosted municipal sales tax receipts and has prohibited industrial development to protect the "residential character of the area," Fitzgerald said.

"If we hadn't incorporated, by now we would have been partially industrial and annexed into Oak Lawn, Chicago and other nearby cities. We just wouldn't be here," he said.

The advantages speak for themselves, Fitzgerald said: real estate value has more than doubled in the last five years; several unincorporated areas on the city's west boundary were recently annexed, adding 2,000 more residents; overall population has increased by 4,000 since 1970 and assessed valuation has increased from $59 million to $96 million.

Local taxes increased slightly during the first years of incorporation to cover administrative operating costs and improvements requested by the residents, he said. Fire insurance rates simultaneously decreased because the area's rural fire district was absorbed by the city and improved to a full-time force.
